JURY QUIZ ON CITY TREASURY

JUBILEE TO GIVE CITY'S GREATEST FIREWORK SHOW

28 Major Displays on Program.

A pageant of pyrotechnics, the most elaborate show of its kind ever attempted in Chicago, will be given on the lake front on the night of May 11 as a major event of the Chicago Jubilee. The fireworks display is sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, and no expense has been spared to make the occasion memorable for its brilliance.

The show will be held on a tract just north of the Buckingham fountain in Grant park. Its setting is so arranged that more than 250,000 persons standing all around will have an unobstructed view. Moreover, the display will be so brilliant that its glow, and perhaps its fiery details, may possibly be seen from across the lake.

Promises Brilliant Spectacle.

"Many startling innovations in pyrotechnics have been especially designed for this show," said C. H. Duffield, president of the Thearle-Duffield Fireworks company, which will handle the exhibition. "Without doubt this will be a fireworks extravaganza of the most bizarre and most beautiful quality."

There will be twenty-eight major presentations, according to Mr. Duffield. The show will begin at 9 p. m., and for thirty minutes Chicagoland will be regaled with a display outdoing anything ever created in China, the homeland of fireworks.

There will be cannonades, repeating salutes, repeating bombs, star showers, flaming flowers, mysterious air messengers, spider webs, snow avalanches, waterfalls, and a variety of other flaming pictures. The show will be historical, patriotic in tone also.

Program of Fireworks Show.

WANT REVENUE OF 20 MILLIONS FROM TOBACCO

Hot Fight Expected in Legislature.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—[Special.]—A tax on cigarets, cigars, and tobacco, which is estimated to be productive of about twenty million dollars a year for the state treasury, was approved in principle tonight by the joint revenue commission. It is expected to precipitate a fight in both houses. A bill was ordered to be prepared putting a tax of one mill each on the cigarets consumed in Illinois, and 10 per cent on the retail price of cigars and tobacco. It would amount to 2 cents on each package of cigarets.

EDW. J. BARRETT.

The experts figure about 12 billion cigarets are smoked each year in the state, and that Illinois uses about 10 per cent of the manufactured products of tobacco in the United States. The joint committee, which is headed by Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago], is studying means to prevent deficits in the state treasury and to discover new revenue sources to supply funds during the stringency caused by the delay in tax collections and the $17,000,000 overdue the state from Cook county, due to the tax muddle there.

Hard Battle Expected.

The proposed tax upon smokers is expected to be ready for reporting to the house next week, and a hard battle is expected. So far there have been no open hearings, the commission merely meeting to devise a proposed revenue plan. Cigaret and cigar manufacturers and dealers are expected to be given full opportunity to present arguments at a time to be set later.

The figures on which the commission estimates a yearly revenue of nearly twenty million dollars from a tax on cigars, cigarets, and tobacco were compiled by ex-Senator H. S. Hicks of Rockford, expert of the state tax commission.

Probable Revenue.

They were as follows:

Production of manufactured tobacco products for the United States year ending June 30, 1930:

Number of cigars	6,938,413,377
Number of cigarets	122,397,380,846
Pounds of tobacco	381,190,800

Illinois has 6.2 per cent of the population of the United States, and this is divided: Urban, 74 per cent; rural, 26 per cent. From the foregoing figures it is probable that the tobacco consumption of Illinois is 10 per cent of the total consumption of the United States.

Probable tobacco consumption of Illinois:

693,000,000 cigars at 7 cents each	$48,500,000
38,000,000 pounds of tobacco at 80 cents	30,000,000
Total	$78,500,000
Tax at 10 per cent of retail price	$7,850,000
12 billion cigarets at 1 mill each	12,000,000
Total	$19,850,000

The question of whether the proposed tax on smoking materials will be shouldered by the consumer was debated.

"Won't it be absorbed by the cigaret companies?" asked Mr. Schnackenberg.

Will Fall on Consumers.

"No, it will go on the public," replied Edward J. Barrett, state treasurer. "The cigaret manufacturers now pay a heavy tax to the government, and if a tax of this sort is adopted it will mean an addition to the retail price, undoubtedly, as is the case in some southern states which have it."

Private car lines, such as refrigerator car companies, the Pullman company, and oil tank concerns, are regarded by the joint commission as potential sources of revenue. The committee will recommend that the state tax commission be empowered to assess and tax such companies, which are said to number some 300 in Illinois, and Mr. Hicks estimates the state will derive a revenue of $3,000,000 from this source.

Law Always Comes First with Adolph

Last week while the White Sox baseball team was in Chicago Adolph stood at the 35th street entrance to Comiskey park. He was especially alert for traffic violations. When the ball club is out of town Adolph helps school children across the street.

But Adolph is never so busy that he forgets the law. Every now and then he halts traffic and criticizes a motorist for having old license plates, no city tag or something else.

Adolph's Way with a Motorist.

Yesterday Adolph stopped a motorist. He didn't give him a ticket for not having 1931 license plates. He just pointed scornfully to the muddy 1930 plates. The motorist was contrite.

"I agree," he said, "everyone should have their new plates. I ordered mine a week ago."

"Indeed?" remarked Adolph. "It's no excuse my man. The year is five months old and the law even stretches a point to allow you two months of grace."

The motorist cast about for some excuse or distraction to divert Adolph's attention. School children stood about, all eyes and ears.

The Motorist Uses His Eyes.

"But I'm not the only offender," the motorist said, catching sight of a small sedan which was parked in an inconspicuous place. "Put a tag on that car. It has no 1931 plates. It hasn't any plates at all."

Adolph turned red and shuffled his feet. He murmured something about getting an aspirin and ran to the corner store.

The old sedan was Adolph's. Every night he drives it home, weary from a day of enforcing the law.

Capt. Frank Matchett, Adolph's superior, was indignant when he heard of Adolph's laxness. "A breach of good taste," he said. "Tonight I shall give Policeman Olson a ticket."

Father Given 10 Years for Slaying His Son

Menominee, Mich., May 6.—(AP)—Pleading guilty to first degree manslaughter, Frank Cholewa, Harris farmer, today was sentenced to ten years in Marquette prison for slaying his son. He said he struck his son, Stanley, 23, with a club during an argument over the youth devoting too much time to pigeon raising.

SCHNEIDER CUP WINNER DIES OF CRASH INJURIES

AHDERSHOT, England, May 7.—[Thursday.]—(AP)—Flight Lieut. H. R. D. Waghorn, winner of the Schneider cup trophy in 1929, died at Cambridge Military hospital today from injuries received when his plane crashed near Farnborough on Tuesday. Lieut. Waghorn and a fellow pilot, E. R. Alexander, took to their parachutes when their ship went out of control in a high gale. Waghorn landed on the roof of a shed, sustaining injuries to his head and limbs. Alexander was not as seriously hurt. The flyer underwent an operation last night, but he gradually grew worse, until death came. His wife maintained a ceaseless vigil by his bedside.

Lieut. Waghorn attained a speed of 328.63 miles per hour in retaining the Schneider cup for Great Britain two years ago. He started to fly when he was 18.

FLAGMAN KILLED BY TRAIN AS HE STOPS MOTORIST

He was standing on the ground level tracks of the Garfield Park branch at Austin avenue when an east bound train approached. From the south came an automobile, the driver apparently unaware of the lowered gates.

Gasparro stood on the rails. He waved his lantern warningly. The automobile came to a stop. At the same instant the electric train struck Gasparro. Fillmore street police took him to the Frances Willard hospital, where he was pronounced dead. Gasparro lived at 2344 Taylor avenue, Berwyn.

SHIPS COLLIDE; 4 OF ONE CREW ARE RESCUED

New London, Conn., May 7 (Thursday).—[Special.]—The Eastern Steamship line steamer New York, bound from Boston to New York, wirelessed the Radiomarine company's station here early today that she had been in a collision with a towboat off Race Rock. The New York reported she was standing by to pick up survivors.

Several coast guard patrol boats in the vicinity were notified and an hour later one of them reported she had picked up four men. Nothing was learned as to the number of survivors taken aboard the New York.

The captain of the New York reported his vessel had been inspected and as far as could be learned had suffered no damage in the collision.

Colin Fyffe, Lawyer, Party Leader, Dies

Colin C. H. Fyffe, lawyer and legal adviser to the Democratic county organization for many years, died in the Passavant hospital yesterday afternoon after several weeks' illness from liver trouble. He was in his 71st year and a bachelor. He resided at 1446 Dearborn parkway.

Mr. Fyffe was attorney for the Illinois Manufacturers' association, and during the campaign last fall took a leading part in the opposition to the proposed revenue amendment to the state constitution. He was regarded as an expert on election laws and during many campaigns he played an active part in the councils of the Democratic party. From 1915 to 1921 he was attorney for the board of election commissioners.

Terms on Library Board.

Mr. Fyffe was appointed to the board of the Chicago public library in 1923 and in 1925 was chosen president of the board, serving as president until 1927.

Mr. Fyffe graduated from the Harvard law school in 1887. A year later he began the practice of law in Chicago and in 1899 he was appointed an assistant corporation counsel, serving for four years. Recently Mr. Fyffe had been associated with David Clarke in the law firm of Fyffe & Clarke.

Mr. Fyffe belonged to numerous clubs, among them the University, Chicago, Attic, Shoreacres, and Saddle and Cycle. He was a member of the Chicago, the Illinois, and the American Bar associations.

Funeral Services Tomorrow.

Funeral services will be conducted at Rosehill tomorrow at 3 p. m., the Rev. John Crippen Evans of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church officiating.

A sister, Miss Edith Fyffe of Porlock, England; a nephew, Ballinger Fyffe of Highland Park, and two nieces, Edith Fyffe of Highland Park and Mrs. Robert N. Merrill of Chicago, survive. Mr. Fyffe was born in Dublin, Ireland, in 1860.

Quake-Torn New Zealand Area Shaken for 5 Hours

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, May 7—[Thursday]—(AP)—The district of Hawkes bay, recently devastated by earthquakes, was shaken by a series of earthquakes beginning at 2:20 this morning. At one point south of Gisborne thirty-two shocks were felt in five hours. The damage was trifling and no casualties were reported.

Barefooted Footpad Busts Up a Soiree

Oscar De Pue, manager of the Burton Holmes studios in Chicago, and six other members of Rogers Park's amateur little symphony orchestra were playing harmoniously last evening in the De Pue residence at 7460 Sheridan road when a discord came in loudly.

"This is a holdup!" he shouted over the strains of the sweet refrain. "Drop your instruments and raise your hands."

Mute Their Instruments.

Merrill Burger, 1220 Jarvis avenue, sadly dropped his clarinet. William H. Bennett of Evanston put aside the cornet and let his cheeks go flat. M. G. Simonds, 723 Monroe street, Evanston, the violinist, quit his sawing abruptly, and J. L. Reppey, 1419 Greenleaf avenue, tootled his saxophone in a manner that betrayed his astonishment.

Then they all lined up against the wall. The barefoot robber went down the line. If the musicians had been surprised when he broke into their concert they were little less astounded when he refused their jewelry.

"Keep your rings and watches," he said. "I am only stealing to live."

Mrs. Berkman was the biggest loser among them. She gave up $15. From the male members of the orchestra the robber got $25 more. Then he ordered them all to go upstairs. Padding behind them in his bare feet, he forced the seven music lovers into a bedroom.

Wife Frees Herself.

It was the same room in which he had met Mrs. Grace De Pue, wife of the flutist, when he climbed in a rear window. Their movements unheard in the flood of melody from the living room below, he had put her in a bathroom and left her there, believing that the spring lock would keep her in.

But Mrs. De Pue had emerged and had gone to a telephone. She had told the Rogers Park police about the discord and a squad was on its way to the scene. The robber, sensing the situation when he saw her in the hallway, raced to the window.

He slid down from a porch roof and fled into an alley behind the house. So great was his haste that he left behind him the shoes he had removed before his climb.

100 FIREMEN ARE OVERCOME AS ARMORY BURNS

Buffalo, N. Y., May 7 [Thursday].—(AP)—Flames last night destroyed the four story graystone armory of the 106th field artillery regiment and early this morning spread to houses in the adjacent area. Among other buildings attacked by the fire were the American Scandinavian church at Northampton street and Masten avenue, a block away, the pastor's house and a dwelling across the street, and houses in Masten avenue. The whole neighborhood was endangered by flaming embers which were showered by a high wind.

The fire was discovered in the basement of the armory shortly before 10 o'clock. The flames, breaking through the roof illuminated the city, attracting more than 150,000 persons to the scene.

At least 100 firemen were overcome by smoke. Of these a score were attended in hospitals.

Coincident with the announcement yesterday that the audit of the city's finances as they were handled under the old city hall regime would be ready in a day or two the special grand jury showed signs of resuming an investigation into rumors of shortages in the city treasury.

J. A. Farmar, foreman of the special grand jury, is reported to have held a conference yesterday with Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court and Assistant State's Attorneys Charles J. Mueller and Charles Lounsbury regarding a resumption of the inquiry, which was started before election time.

The Questioning of Wolfe.

The jurors are reported to have obtained their first intimation that all was not well in the city's financial affairs from Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works in the old régime. Wolfe was called before the grand jury before the election to be asked about a reported $25,000 campaign fund check from Al Capone's Hawthorne Kennel club.

Before he finished his testimony, it is reported that he told the jurors about a midnight meeting at the Congress hotel in which $40,000 was pledged to make up a reported deficit of one city official.

The jurors are said to have been surprised at the statements of Wolfe and at the time are reported to have favored going right ahead with the inquiry. After deliberation, however, it was decided that it would perhaps be better to wait until the election was out of the way and an audit of the city's finances had been made. One reason was to stop any cry of politics, it was reported.

Report Audit Nearly Ready.

Foreman Farmar yesterday instructed Prosecutor Mueller to communicate with City Treasurer James A. Kearns, recently elected, to determine how soon the audit will be ready. Efforts were made by the prosecutor to reach Kearns, but he was not found. It was reported, however, that an auditing company employed by Mr. Kearns is about ready to report.

Rumors yesterday were that three distinct shortages will be shown by the audit. One of them at least, or at least part of one, was covered by restitution, so Wolfe is reported to have told the grand jury on March 31. Wolfe's story is to be the basis of the grand jury inquiry at any rate, no matter what the audit may show, it was indicated.

Charles S. Peterson was city treasurer prior to his promotion just before the election to the office of city controller. He, too, it is said, will be questioned about the midnight meeting at the Congress hotel which was first told about by Wolfe.

Singer Becomes Treasurer.

August Singer, who was deputy city treasurer, was appointed to take Peterson's place when the latter became controller. Peterson was made controller to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of George K. Schmidt, who became a mayoralty candidate.

While Peterson was controller he announced that he had been advised by counsel not to permit payment by the city of a disputed $200,000 bill of the Ketler-Elliott company for excavation in connection with the Wabash avenue bridge project. Wolfe was under fire for his handling of this project and he protested Peterson's refusal to pay the bill.

Because of this situation the jurors decided to act with caution at the time in view of the fact that Wolfe gave them the first story of the reported shortage and told of the meeting at the Congress hotel which he said was attended by such men as Samuel Ettelson, then corporation counsel; Robert Perbohner, a member of the board of local improvements, and Chris Paschen, then building commissioner.

Jury to Call Conferees.

Peterson was in an adjoining room, according to Wolfe's story to the grand jury, and was brought into the conference room after the discussion had started.

It was indicated that the jurors will call before them every one who attended midnight meeting described by Wolfe. The grand jury's investigation of the police department probably will be sidetracked for a few days to take up the coming audit, it was said.

The story as told to the jurors by Wolfe was obtained from a reliable source. He was first questioned regarding the Hawthorne Kennel club check incident, which he emphatically denied, and then Prosecutor Mueller started to question him regarding a conference with Ettelson. It was then that he told of the midnight meeting.

After admitting that he had attended the midnight meeting, Wolfe, so it is reported, told the grand jury men that he had forwarded his $5,000 check the following day to be applied on the shortage fund. Seven others were present at the meeting, he added.

He was then asked by Assistant State's Attorney Mueller to name them. Those he remembered were Ettelson, Carter Blatchford, member of the school board; Louis E. Golan, a city hall henchman; Perbohner and Paschen. Mrs. Golan also was in the meeting, Wolfe is said to have testified.

The date of the meeting was fixed, rather vaguely, as a Wednesday before March 31. Wolfe related that he had been called by Perbohner, who told him the mayor wanted to see him. When he arrived in the conference room, he asserted, he was met by Golan, Ettelson and Blatchford. The plight of a certain city official was then explained to him by the corporation counsel.

Informed of $40,000 Discrepancy.

Wolfe's testimony, it was reported, showed that Ettelson told him this city official was short $40,000 in his accounts and would have to pay up the shortage before 11 o'clock the following morning. It was presumed by Wolfe at the time, he said, that the bonding company had made the demand under threat to expose the official unless the payment were made.

It was put up to him, according to his reported testimony, that it was a matter of loyalty to the mayor's cabinet to pay his share and save the official from scandal and criminal prosecution. Wolfe said that he had received no evidence of any indebtedness to him in return for his donation, although he had been assured that Ettelson was to be made trustee for the property of the official and that this property would be administered for the benefit of the donors of the fund.

In the property to be turned over to the corporation counsel was furniture valued at $35,000 and an equity in Wisconsin lands, Wolfe is said to have testified.

Wolfe Wants to Forget.

The only explanation given as to how the official got in trouble was that he had engaged in business in which he lost money. Wolfe is reported to have said that he didn't know whether he would get any of his $5,000 back and would like to forget it.

Wolfe apparently only knew definitely that he and Blatchford had paid in their shares of the money. He is reported to have said, however, that Michael J. Faherty, then president of the board of local improvements, and Lewis Myers, president of the school board, were mentioned at the night conference, although they were not present.

He could not be sure whether Faherty and Myers, or even Ettelson, had put up their shares. Perbohner, he indicated, had done the telephoning to get the donors together.

Wolfe is reported to have testified that the official who was short in his accounts gave a brief explanation as to how he had gotten into difficulties, but he did not elaborate much on this.

The grand jurors are said to have traced the $5,000 Wolfe check and found that it was cleared through the Central Trust company.

Holland Drys Want Local Option; Too Many Drunks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, May 6.—The "drys" in the Dutch parliament today announced they will introduce a bill establishing local option for Dutch municipalities. They cite increasing drunkenness. Twenty thousand drunks, they allege, were sentenced last year out of 30,000 offenses. The government opposes the bill.

General Answers Ministers' Attack on Air Maneuvers

Objections of the Evanston Ministers' association to the army air maneuvers scheduled for May 20, during the Chicago Jubilee, were answered yesterday by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the 6th army corps area. Mayor Cermak also issued a proclamation, proclaiming May 20 as "Air Defense Day."

The Evanston ministers denounced the air corps exercises as a move for increased armaments, but Gen. Parker explained:

"The purpose in staging these field exercises over a territory that runs all the way from Chicago to Atlantic seaboard and along the Atlantic seaboard from Virginia to Maine, is to test the mobility of air craft and to put to a practical test our tactical theories in coast operation, a function entrusted to the army at a recent joint conference in Washington.

To Test Air Force.

"It seems a tremendous undertaking to assemble 670 planes, 797 officers and 657 enlisted men under one command for training operations that cover a territory of many millions of square miles, but the very problems involved in command, maintenance and tactical operations are the important factors we must test. Lessons learned this year in the handling of this air division are only those made necessary by modern military conditions.

"The air corps excercises are not alone conducted to find the correct answers to various tactical and maintenance questions, and to test the flying and maneuvering efficiency of the air corps, but also to determine how far we may depend upon municipal and commercial airports in maintaining and increasing air corps efficiency so far as mobility is concerned.

Stresses Airport Factor.

"So far as the air corps is concerned, the distant between the Atlantic and the Pacific is a little more than 24 hours of forced flight. But our army air corps coast defense is no stronger that the system of airports from which it must operate, and airports in states that are far from the sea are just as important links in that system as are the airports that serve cities on or near the seaboards."

SENTENCES THREE UNION HEADS TO 60 DAYS IN JAIL

Three labor union officials were found guilty of contempt of court yesterday for violating an injunction order and were sentenced to 60 days in jail by Superior Judge Robert E. Gentzel. A fourth official was fined $200 on the same charge.

Those who must go to jail are Joseph B. Iwaniec, president of the Laundry and Dye House Drivers and Chauffeurs' union; B. A. Albert, president of the Cleaners, Dyers, and Pressers' union, and James P. Gorman, president of the Retail Cleaners and Dyers' union. Aaron Maltz, business agent for the Retail Cleaners and Dyers' union, was fined.

The union officials had been restrained by a court order from picketing the plant of the Michigan Cleaners, 1333 West 63d street. The injunction had been asked by Louis Hollman, owner of the plant, after a strike had been called when he refused to discharge a few nonunion men. Hollman told the court yesterday that the picketing had not been stopped.

BARR WORLD FAIR BILL STIRS UP STORM IN SENATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—[Special.]—A sudden squall blew up in the senate tonight when Senator Roy C. Woods [Rep., Chicago] threatened to resign as chairman of the Century of Progress committee of the senate unless Senator Richard J. Barr [Rep., Joliet] withdrew the bill he introduced last night to create another World's Fair commission with an appropriation of $350,000 for an Illinois building and a state exhibit.

Senator Woods is author of a bill which passed the senate March 4, creating a commission and furnishing an appropriation of $500,000. It is now on first reading in the house, and Woods charged the Barr bill was an attempt to supersede the present commission and to push through another bill in violation of "ordinary senatorial courtesies."

Senator Woods Rebels.

The fur flew for 10 minutes in the first open mutiny against the present senate machine, of which Mr. Barr is chauffeur.

The Woods bill originally suggested an appropriation of $750,000. Later the committee decided on $500,000. The $350,000 Barr bill, the Joliet senator says, comes from Gov. Emmerson.

"It is immaterial to me what sum is appropriated," said Senator Woods, "but the appearance of the Barr bill and the effort to push it along on the calendar without reference to a committee is an affront to the present commission. My bill has passed the senate and is now in the house, and the proper procedure is to amend it there."

"Let me ask whether Senator Barr will withdraw his bill."

Barr Refuses to Withdraw It.

"I cannot do that," said Mr. Barr. "The governor asked that it be introduced. He said he had conferred with President Dawes of the World's Fair and that it was agreed that $500,000 was too much."

"Well," replied Senator Woods, "if an attempt is made to punish the Century of Progress committee of the senate in this way, I will resign as its chairman."

It was agreed finally that further action should be deferred until next week.

BUCHAREST, May 6.—As the result of an interview between King Carol and King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia on the latter's yacht on the Danube, it was announced that Princess Helen, Carol's divorced wife, left the country tonight for Jugo-Slavia. She is stated to have left on a private car attached to the Orient Express, accompanied only by a lady-in-waiting.

It is well known that for a short time past strenuous efforts have been made to get her out of the country, but for the sake of her son, Prince Michael, who is at the moment ill, and for political reasons she has steadfastly refused to go.

The news that the princess who refused to become reconciled with King Carol has quit the country, lending the rumor that Carol intends to have a morganatic marriage with Mme. Lupescu to circulate freely in the capital again.

THE SAD MEETING AROUND THE CRACKER-BARREL

It was a despondent group of clothing merchants who gathered around the cracker-barrel back in 1913. They had just witnessed the birth of the 2-pants suit and the overwhelming ovation which the public had accorded to this idea of Benson & Rixon's. "How can it be done?" they asked in perspiring tones. Well, if these merchants were puzzled then, we wonder what their reaction would be to the new and greater value-giving era which Benson & Rixon will inaugurate with the opening of their new State Street store. SCHOOL BOARD WON'T QUIT TO PLEASE CERMAK

Trustees Assail Mayor in Private Conference.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

No member of the board of education would admit an intention of resigning yesterday, in conformity with Mayor Cermak's desire to control the board's affairs.

The attorney of the board, Thomas V. Sullivan, said the mayor has no power to compel the trustees to resign. Furthermore, he said, the mayor is without authority to remove them.

The trustees told each other at a private meeting recently in the Hotel Bismarck that they would not resign. All of the trustees were present at this meeting except Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, who was reappointed to the board yesterday afternoon by Mayor Cermak at the same time that he appointed Robert F. Carr, former trustee of the University of Illinois, as a member of the board.

Trustees Discuss Mayor.

The Bismarck meeting was called for the purpose of discussing Mayor Cermak's attitude toward the school board, his charges of waste in expenditures and his argument for desiring control of the schools.

Each trustee who has visited the mayor told his colleagues what the mayor had said to him and the reply of the trustee. Each trustee has a summary of what the mayor has to say in the privacy of his own office on school affairs, as well as what he has given out for publication.

It was learned yesterday that some of the trustees made sharp comments upon Mayor Cermak's attitude. "I have known about city affairs for forty years," one trustee is said to have commented in the secrecy of the hotel room," and I never before heard of a mayor who openly and brazenly proclaimed to the public his purpose to get control of the school board."

The Supreme Court Ruling.

"It has been public policy for many years for the mayor to keep his hands off school affairs," said another trustee, according to the reports of the meeting. "That is so sound that the Illinois Supreme court has declared it the law that the mayor cannot remove trustees. That has been made a statute. Let the mayor announces his desire and intention—if possible—to override this sound public policy."

That is a sample of the defiance hurled at the mayor in private. The trustees in their meeting are reported to have discussed the mayor's announcement that he might appeal to the legislature to give him control of the board. That was looked upon by some of the trustees as a bluff, and another trustee is said to have remarked that the mayor "does not have the nerve to try it."

The Matter of Coöperation.

"The mayor tells the public he wants control of the board because he cannot get coöperation," another trustee is reported to have said. "Every one of you know that is pure bunk, but he has the nerve to try to get away with that piffle. I'll say right now that I will coöperate with him on anything, at any time and in any way for the benefit of the schools and the taxpayers—but not for other purposes."

And so the meeting went on with similar comments, according to reports.

With his appointments yesterday Mayor Cermak gained two votes out of the eleven on the board. The annual board election will probably come May 20. What influence the mayor will have on the selection of the officers remains to be seen, but that election is expected to be a center of interest.

The terms of two more trustees expire next year and the terms of three others in 1932. So if the mayor waits for terms to expire, he will not get control until the World's Fair year, unless two trustees should die.

Statements Are Courteous.

In statements for publication the trustees have been courteous towards Mayor Cermak. Each one interviewed has said that he was willing to coöperate with the mayor for the good of the schools. Most of them said they would go along with the mayor's proposed survey, if for the benefit of the children, teachers and the school system generally.

Asked yesterday if he intended to resign, President Lewis H. Myers said: "There is no more likelihood of that than there is that Mayor Cermak will resign. I have seen the mayor and have told him that I am willing to coöperate and that the board has the same attitude.

"The mayor's references to me are not complimentary. They are undeserved and offend me. It is not becoming to hold up to public ridicule a man who is doing his best for the schools. Still I am willing to coöperate with the mayor, or any one else to improve conditions."

Suggests Board of Five.

"Do you approve of an increase or decrease in the number of trustees?" President Myers was asked.

"I suggested to Mayor Cermak a reduction to five members," he replied "That would make a nice little compact body."

"And one that could be more easily controlled," added Joseph P. Savage, another trustee.

"Are you willing to resign?"

"No," said Mr. Savage. "Do you suppose any one will resign when the mayor criticizes us at every opportunity? He asked for coöperation through the newspapers, but nearly all of his interviews published appear to have been designed to prevent coöperation.

"The legislature, in passing the Otis law in 1917, decided in accordance with public policy that no mayor could hop into office and then jump over to the school board and gain control. The terms of the trustees are staggered and the mayor was given no power to remove them."

Says Board Is Economical.

"The school appropriation this year was cut $5,000,000, yet $3,000,000 was added to the expenditures for teaching. Money is not thrown away at the school board. We are cutting expenses."

"And doing it now," interposed Trustee James A. Hemingway.

Asked if he intended to resign, Mr. Hemingway said: "I haven't been asked to. Suppose a majority of the board did resign, would that take politics out of the schools? I believe every member of the board is willing to coöperate with the mayor to perform any service to the schools or the public."

Mrs. Hefferan's Question.

"Why can't the rents the board receives be used to pay the teachers a week's salary, at least?" she asked Trustee Savage. At committee sessions earlier in the day James A. Meade, James Tillman and other teachers' representatives had protested against the failure to pay teachers since April 2.

"Some of the teachers were caught in the bank failures," said Mr. Meade at that time. "Hundreds are in the hands of loan sharks as is disclosed by the applications for loans of our newly formed credit union. Other teachers need money to pay taxes and life insurance. The teachers are in desperate straits."

In reply to Mrs. Hefferan, Trustee Savage said: "Those rents amount to about $175,000 a quarter and there is only $200,000 of that money on hand." The teachers' salary roll, now overdue, is about $3,775,000.

Proposes Pay in Tax Paper.

At the committee meetings Trustee Savage suggested that the teachers be given tax anticipation warrants bearing 6 per cent interest in lieu of cash. President Myers suggested that the tax warrants for the teachers be placed in a trusteeship.

The teachers wanted to know whether the banks would accept the tax warrants from them, and whether the banks would accept the warrants as collateral for loans, but the trustees could not tell them. Various teachers' organizations are to meet tomorrow to decide whether they want tax anticipation warrants.

"From what school fund was the money taken to pay for that letter to the teachers?" asked Mrs. Hefferan, referring to a campaign letter which told the teachers there was no foundation for the rumor that the board was so short of cash that salaries would not be paid after election.

Savage Makes Retort.

"Let me tell you," said Mr. Savage to Mrs. Hefferan, "that I do not know, but I presume that the expense was borne privately. I haven't seen any bill for that expense; have you?

"Let me tell you something else. There has been more Democratic politics injected into this board than Republican politics.

"When the last Democratic administration finished there were several thousand 60 day appointees on the pay roll, while today there are 339."

ENGINEER AND FIREMAN KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Frank S. Crew, 30 years old, 7057 Eggleston avenue, a fireman for the Wabash railroad, was killed and his engineer, Matthew O'Heir, 50 years old, 7927 Vernon avenue, was fatally injured late yesterday afternoon when the locomotive they were driving struck a string of box cars south of Chicago and was overturned.

O'Heir died of scalds and burns a short while after he had been taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital in Evergreen Park.

The freight train on which the two men were working was proceeding north at a moderate rate of speed, when, midway between Chicago Ridge and Oak Lawn, cars being switched on a siding were pushed out in front of it. The locomotive, in turning over, broke apart. Crew was buried under the wreckage.

A south bound freight train was passing at the time and the crash of Engineer O'Heir's train and the cars being switched hurled debris against the rear end of this third train and derailed the last two cars. In all about twenty cars were piled up in the wreck.

DR. BUNDESEN BECOMES CITY HEALTH CHIEF

He Accepts Cermak Offer and Council Approves.

By appointment of Mayor Cermak, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen returned yesterday to his old post as city commissioner of health, which brought him into national prominence under the Dever administration.

Dr. Bundesen's name was submitted to the city council yesterday afternoon when, after twenty-four hours of consideration, he wrote a letter to the mayor accepting the offer of his old post. His appointment approved by the council, his bond was accepted, and he will take complete charge of the department this morning.

The aldermen also approved several other appointments. The most important were the appointment of Robert F. Carr to the board of education and the reappointment of Mrs. W. S. Hefferan to the same board. Others were the appointments of Dr. Frederick Tice and Dr. Allen J. Hruby as trustees of the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium.

Aëro Commission Named.

Mayor Cermak also announced the personnel of the municipal aëro commission, reappointing a number of the members named by the preceding administration.

M. C. Meigs was named chairman. The other members are James Simpson, George B. Foster, Maj. Reed Landis, Lieut. Col. P. G. Kemp, Maj. R. W. Schroeder, Allan Jackson, Winsor Williams, Lester D. Seymour, Maj. John N. Thorp Jr., L. B. Manning, Warren Wright, Fred V. Maguire, Edward J. Kelly, and Ald. John P. Wilson, Dorsey R. Crowe, John A. Massen, and George D. Kells.

The council approved two minor appointments announced in advance, those of Harry Minski, a former legislator, and Edward Fortau as masters of the Maxwell street and south side markets, respectively.

Dr. Bundesen's Acceptance.

In accepting appointment as health commissioner Dr. Bundesen said that he would serve without pay from the city as long as he is "attached to the coroner's office."

Dr. Bundesen did not say in his letter or in any supplemental interview how long he expects to remain as coroner. But there was immediate comment, chiefly in a lighter vein, to the effect that even without any of the long discussed state legislation toward that end Mayor Cermak is gradually effecting something approaching semi-consolidation of some of the local governments.

Cermak himself is both mayor and member of the county board. One of his inauguration appointments was that of Benjamin F. Lindheimer as president of the board of local improvements. Mr. Lindheimer already was a member of the south park board and retains that office.

Szymczak Holds Two Offices.

Cermak also appointed M. S. Szymczak as city controller and Szymczak is still clerk of the Superior court, although the Democratic ward committeemen have indorsed Frank V. Zintak for election as his successor by the judges of the Superior court.

With Dr. Bundesen officiating in both the city hall and the county building there are now four Cermak cabinet members each of whom is serving in two public offices.

In addition it was pointed out that while the mayor had no appointing power in the matter, there are three members of the Cermak majority of the city council who also are members of the state legislature. They are Thomas O'Grady, Thomas P. Keane, and J. F. Rostenkowski.

Resignations Are Expected.

It is expected that Controller Szymczak and Commissioner Bundesen will give up their county places as soon as their successors have been determined upon. The new coroner will be elected by the county board, which is controlled by the Democrats.

"In accepting the responsibility," said Dr. Bundesen in his letter to the mayor, "I pledge myself to a single objective, the health protection of Chicago. I propose to direct policies and coördinate efforts toward that end and to focus all the resources of science and research upon the reduction of health hazards, so that we may live better and longer in greater comfort and security.

"I realize that much of the health of Chicago is in the hands of the medical profession and I shall continue to give them my wholehearted coöperation in the future as I have done in the past."

Controller Szymczak announced that Mrs. Anna L. Smith, commissioner of public welfare under the last administration and a former Democrat, had repaid to the city $1,500 of the $3,000 paid to her out of a contingent fund by the former mayor.

ADVOCATE PAYMENT OF COUNTY'S BILLS WITH TAX WARRANTS

A recommendation that tax anticipation warrants be used in lieu of cash, to pay part of the $3,500,000 in bills incurred by the county board, will be made at the board meeting on Monday, by Commissioner Maurice F. Kavanagh, chairman of the finance committee. This was decided yesterday at a conference of the county's financial advisers.

Commissioner Kavanagh said that not all of the creditors are expected to accept the warrants, but that he believes many of them will. Many of the bills date back as far as last July.

Only enough funds are available in the corporate fund to meet the next few pay rolls and to pay a few of the essentials, such as mothers' pensions, relief for the blind, and fees to jurymen. The county is still trying to sell its 1931 tax warrants.

The highway fund has been exhausted, Deputy Controller Michael J. O'Connor said, and no money is in sight with which to pay the bi-monthly pay roll of $50,000, which is due the 504 highway employés on Friday.

Open Bids for Bulkheads to Extend Island for Fair

Bids for the construction of two bulkheads to extend south to 18th street from Northerly island were received yesterday by the south park board. Each bulkhead will be 1,400 feet long and the area between them is to be filled in as an extension of the island for use as exhibition grounds for the 1933 Century of Progress exposition. The lowest of 5 bidders yesterday was the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company with their bid of $254,692.

GOVERNOR SAYS NO TO PLEA FOR RAISED HIGHWAY

Refuses to Start So Big a Project.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—[Special.]—Gov. Emmerson told the Chicago Motor club this afternoon that he will not sponsor legislation at this session of the general assembly authorizing the state to build an elevated highway. It was his first definite statement on the subject.

THOS. J. COURTNEY.

"I could not finish such a project during the remaining two years of my term in office," he said. "I can not obligate the next governor or the next two governors to continue a project that I might start.

"Furthermore, there is not assurance that the gasoline tax law will not be changed by future legislatures, shutting off funds for the completion of an elevated highway, if one were to be started.

"Also, the first obligation of this administration is to complete the bond issue system, a project that was approved by the electorate when it voted for the bond issues.

Sympathetic to Chicago's Problem.

"I am not out of sympathy with Chicago's traffic problems. This administration has done more than any other for the highways of the metropolitan area, setting aside $19,000,000 for expenditure in two years on the roads within 35 miles of the city.

"If Chicago wants to build an elevated highway, the state could help under house bills 269 and 270, which authorize the highway department to take over city streets used as extension of state highways."

The extent of any such help was disclosed before a senate committee this afternoon as being insignificant. The committee, after a heated two hour session with Senator Thomas Courtney [Chicago], fighting to protect Chicago's jurisdiction over its streets, voted to recommend the bills for passage.

During the hearing State Highway Engineer Sheets, asked for his interpretation of certain paragraphs, said they would authorize the state to build within cities pavement similar to that outside the cities and that the additional cost for any extra width or different material within the municipalities would have to be born locally.

Would Pay Small Fraction.

On an elevated highway, costing almost $2,500,000 a mile, the state would pay $40,000 a mile for a forty foot surface if the elevated were a continuation of a forty foot state highway, it was said.

Mayor Cermak proposes paying for an elevated highway with gasoline tax revenue, providing the legislature passes the Galvin bill, which would give municipalities a third of the 3 cent excise. This bill is pending in the house.

Bills for Ballot Reform Discussed at Legislature

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—[Special.]—Reforms which will trim the size of the blanket ballot, which now curls around the voter's heels in the booth, and will banish the caucus which in years past has sometimes loaded up the ballot with tickets containing men who sometimes never knew they were running, were discussed at a joint hearing late today in the senate. Members of the Illinois commission on revision of the election laws argued in behalf of the 22 bills they have presented in both houses.

One major bill provides that independent candidates or slates shall be printed in one column instead of being strung across the ballot with a column apiece, causing a vast consumption of blank paper and inconvenience to the voter. Judge Edmund K. Jarecki of Chicago, chairman, said this change would result in the saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars each general election in printing.

Two Members Appear.

Gen. Milton J. Foreman and Judge James S. Baldwin of Decatur, members of the commission, appeared. With them were Cassius M. Doty and Robert L. Taylor, attorneys for the group.

Five of the bills provide uniform hours for keeping the polls open—6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

The main bill aims at the caucus abuse.

It removes old provisions relating to any convention of delegates, caucus or meeting and makes provision for new parties to be organized by filing a petition with 25,000 voters' signatures in case of a state office and 3 per cent of the resident voters if organized merely for a political subdivision.

Independent petitions are to have 25,000 signatures for state office and 5 per cent of the subdivision for offices in a political subdivision.

Cites Past Experiences.

"In some cases," said Judge Jarecki, "unscrupulous individuals or political groups have procured the nomination by petition of irresponsible candidates with names similar to or even identical with the names of well known candidates. The purpose was to create confusion. Sometimes the object was to obtain money or other things of value for the later withdrawal of these irresponsible candidates.

"It was stated to the commission, for example, that in a recent state election a group composed of three persons in Amboy held a caucus and nominated a complete list of candidates. It cost thousands of dollars for printing, posting and canvassing the ballot. Later the caucus members admitted it was held merely as a result of a wager."

Points to Large Size.

Gen. Foreman dwelt upon the present size of ballots.

"In November, 1930," he said, "the general ballot in Cook county was about 31 inches in length and 40 inches from side to side. It contained, in addition to the party columns of established political parties, at least half a dozen separate columns under other party appellations.

"The proposed changes will tend to eliminate irresponsible candidacies and reduce the size of the ballot without seriously restricting the capacity of responsible political groups, if dissatisfied with the candidates nominated by the existing parties, to nominate independent candidates, or to create any political party."

KINNEY INTEREST INQUIRY KILLED BY HOUSE ACTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—[Special.]—The Doyle resolution to determine why Director of Finance Garrett D. Kinney does not follow the example of Secretary of State Stratton in collecting interest on daily balances from banks who hold his state funds was killed in the house today by a vote of 75 to 58, but not before it had been swung as an anti-administration weapon.

Arguments, charges, explanations and political digressions attending it consumed two hours.

Representative Ed Ryan [Rep., Lawrenceville] said that a Democratic member had told him that Mayor Cermak of Chicago wished to "whitewash" the investigation and had asked him [the Democrat] not to vote for it.

"Name the Democrat that told you this!" demanded Representative Ray O'Keefe [Dem., Chicago].

House Group Approves Bill to Bar Sale of Fireworks

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—[Special.]—Representative Thomas J. O'Brien's bill to forbid the sale and use of fireworks, save at celebrations staged by reputable organizations, was passed by the house judiciary committee this afternoon. An amendment was tacked on to the measure putting it into effect on Jan. 1, 1932, in deference to dealers and manufacturers who have already laid in their supply of explosives for the July 4th celebration.

GROUP OF HOUSE LISTENS TO PLEA FOR INCOME TAX

Measure Which Passed Senate Advocated.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—[Special.]—Adoption of a state income tax was urged this afternoon, the house revenue committee considering the Lantz bill, which has already passed the senate.

The committee took no action, preferring to devote another session to hearing the other side of the question before taking a vote.

Ralph B. Field of Galesburg, executive director of the Illinois Association cipal spokesman. His organization, he said, while favoring the idea of a state income tax, do not approve of the Lantz bill. They believe that the only fair tax will be one which allows the deduction of property tax from it.

Wants Property Owner Relief.

"We want a tax," Mr. Field said, "that will protect the owner of income producing property, who is in just as bad shape as the farmer. To have a real estate owner pay an income tax and property tax besides would be to add just another burden to his load. We must reach the owners of intangible property—the class that is not now taxed. We want an offset of real estate taxes against the income tax.

"If both an income tax and a property tax are imposed more than 1,000 owners of office buildings in Chicago will lose their property, for right now there is between three and four billion dollars' worth of property in Cook county which is in the hands of receivers because the owners cannot pay the taxes upon it."

Gives Farmers' Side.

E. A. Eckert of the Illinois State Grange insisted upon an income tax, representing the farmers as men almost broken beneath a burden.

Fred E. Diehl of the property owners' division, Chicago Real Estate board, said that an income tax was a good thing in theory, but that it became just another tax if the bill were not amended to subtract the property tax from the income tax. Real estate must have relief, he said, inasmuch as it now pays 85 per cent of all taxes.

KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE GAS.

Joseph Strombach, 48 years old, 2414 South East avenue, Berwyn, was killed by the exhaust gas from his automobile yesterday in a closed garage in the rear of his home. Death is believed to have been accidental.

SOLDIERS' HOME SUES FOR CASH CUSTODIAN LOST IN INVESTMENT

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—(AP)—Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom announced today he had filed suit at Quincy on behalf of H. H. Fletcher, custodian of the Soldiers' home, to recover money invested by Col. O. C. Smith, the preceding custodian.

The suit was against the company which bonded Smith for $95,000. Carlstrom said the state proceeded on the theory Smith should not have made the investments, which have decreased in value because of the depression. The regulations, Carlstrom said, provided when Soldiers' home funds reach a certain point the surplus is to be used for "entertainment" and not investment.

ASKS STATE TO APPROVE OUTER DRIVE EXTENSION

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—[Special.]—Representative Michael L. Igoe [Dem., Chicago] introduced a bill in the house today to give authority to the south park commissioners of Chicago to acquire submerged lands upon which the continuation of the outer drive south would be built from 67th street to the Indiana boundary. Mr. Igoe, one of the commissioners, explained that the improvement will cost $10,000,000 and that a $2,500,000 bond issue is now available to start it. The extension of the present drive would be about six miles long.

Bill in House Would Create State Criminal Bureau

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—[Special.]—A bill to create a state bureau of criminal identification and investigation in the department of public welfare was introduced in the Illinois house today by Representative Richard J. Lyons [Rep., Mundelein]. The bureau would contain a complete file of the fingerprints, Bertillon measurements, and criminal records of every person ever convicted of a felony in Illinois.

KENTUCKY TOWN ARMS FOR FRAY; TROOPS ON WAY

Women and Children Are Leaving Evarts.

BULLETIN.

Harlan, Ky., May 6.—(AP)—Two blasts, believed to have been of dynamite, reverberated through the hills tonight as Kentucky National Guardsmen were on their way to restore order in the Harlan county coal fields. Deputy Sheriffs were sent in an effort to locate the blasts.

Harlan, Ky., May 6.—(AP)—Fear that serious trouble might break out in Evarts, center of the coal field disorders, before arrival of troops was expressed by officials here tonight, coincident with reports that a number of women and children had left the town and that a large crowd of armed men had gathered on the streets.

GOV. FLEM D. SAMPSON. [Associated Press Photo.]

State troops ordered into the coal fields by Gov. Flem D. Sampson were not expected to reach Evarts before midnight. Circuit Judge D. C. Jones expressed fear of immediate trouble. At the sheriff's office here it was said deputies had been sent to Evarts to reinforce those on duty there.

The crowd at Evarts was reported gathered on the principal street in the community, a town of 1,400 population. Many were armed.

Send Calls for Help.

Frankfort, Ky., May 6.—(AP)—The first detachments of approximately 325 Kentucky National Guardsmen began moving into the Harlan coal fields late today as a result of pleas from Sheriff J. H. Blair and other county officials that they could not control disorder there.

After ordering out the troops Gov. Flem D. Sampson at a press conference declared "a reign of terror has been precipitated by some interlopers, communists from outside the state who have taken advantage of the discontent resulting from unemployment."

Clashes between deputies and mine guards and groups of discontented men have resulted in five deaths near Evarts, the center of the disturbance. Four were killed yesterday morning in a fight in which rifles and machine guns were used, and commissaries and stores have been robbed and 14 unoccupied miners' houses burned. There are approximately 20,000 miners in the county.

The governor said he was informed that the trouble in Harlan county was not due to the United Mine Workers of America.

Outsiders Accused.

"It has been a fertile field for communists and Reds," said Gov. Sampson. "Outsiders from Illinois and other states are responsible for the situation. They have brought in machine guns and rifles. On the other hand, the companies have mine guards who have been deputized as deputy sheriffs or constables. There must be about 200 of them.

Adjt. Gen. W. H. Jones Jr. said Col. Daniel Carrell of the 138th field artillery, Louisville, would be in command and that the troops would consist of infantry and cavalry units, medical corps and military police, equipped with an armored tank and machine guns. Gen. Jones said Col. Carrell had instructions to take charge of Evarts and adjacent territory and to "take any necessary steps to completely establish order."

While troops were en route a special grand jury was impaneled by Circuit Judge Jones at Harlan today and ordered to make a thorough inquiry into the lawlessness.

CANNON QUITS STATE PAROLE BOARD INQUIRY

Legislative Member Calls Him "Vicious."

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—(AP)—Thomas Cannon, Chicago member of the state board of pardons and paroles, tonight withdrew from a session of the special state legislative committee investigating prison conditions after a committee member had declared he was "vicious."

Cannon had spent considerable time testifying concerning the parole board's action and had undergone a stiff cross-examination by committee members about convicts' stories that Cannon was discriminatory at board meetings.

"If you want to make capital of a prisoner's story, I'm through," Cannon shouted, his face flushed.

He refused to participate further in tonight's session.

Cannon and William Jones of Streator, chairman of the pardon and parole board, were the only witnesses summoned tonight for the committee's first meeting since its sessions at the two Joliet penitentiaries immediately after the violent convict riots last March.

Outlines Convicts' Charges.

Representative Roger Little of Champaign, chairman of the legislative committee, opened the meeting by outlining prisoners' charges that the parole board refused to treat them fairly.

Jones cited the case of William Harrison, Chicago Negro board member indicted in connection with charges of parole graft.

"We are trying to keep the parole board clean," Jones said, "and Harrison's case is an example."

Jones denied the charge made by Joe Moran, a convict, that the board had sold a parole.

"We're not dealing with a lot of innocent boys," he said. "We're dealing with a lot of anti-social people. We feel that we owe a duty to the prisoners and yet we owe a duty to the people of Illinois to protect them. We are not going to be swayed by sentimentalists who want to release murderers and rapists without an adequate punishment."

Denies Parole Payment.

Cannon then was called to testify and was asked immediately about Moran's charges that a house and lot had been given him for a parole. He emphatically denied the allegation and said the committee "should get the real story."

Cannon volunteered the statement that he knew a legislator who offered to get a convict a parole for $1,100—"$100 for himself and $1,000 for the parole board." The representative's name was not divulged.

GUNNER M'GURN WEDS GIRL WHO GAVE HIM ALIBI

The marriage at Waukegan last Sunday of "Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, Capone gangster, and his blond alibi witness, Louise Rolfe, was revealed yesterday. The couple were married by Justice of the Peace Walter D. Wright of Waukegan a few minutes after they obtained a marriage license from Mrs. Lew A. Hendee, wife of the county clerk of Lake county.

The marriage license bore the names of Vincent Gebardi, 28 years old, and Louise Boex, 24 years old. McGurn, under the name of James Demory, was divorced here last Saturday by Mrs. Helen G. Demory, who charged the gangster deserted her seven years after their marriage.

Mrs. Demory is expected to testify as a government witness when McGurn and his new wife appear on May 26 in the federal court on charges of violating the Mann act. They were arrested in June, 1929, on a warrant which charged they had taken a trip to Florida together.

It was through the testimony of Louise Rolfe that McGurn escaped trial for the murder of the seven Moran gangsters on St. Valentine's day, 1929. She said that she and McGurn were in a loop hotel on the day of the massacre.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

CHAMBER AGAIN TOLD TO RETAIN TARIFF BARRIER

Economist Warns Against Lower Schedule.

War Debts Coming Up?

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(AP)—Reports were current in international Chamber of Commerce circles tonight that the British delegation was considering the offering of a resolution tomorrow on war debts and disarmament.

Members of that delegation would not discuss the reports. Other delegation members were understood to have conferred with the British on the proposal, Abraham Frowein, head of the German group, cutting short a visit to Mount Vernon to join in the conversations.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—Another forthright negative was shot back today at Europe's demand for a downward revision of the American tariff as the International Chamber of Commerce progressed through the third session of a meeting which has fulfilled the prediction that it would be a sparring match of discussion, Europe united versus the United States.

It was Dean Wallace B. Donham of Harvard's graduate business school who issued the "no," and he backed it up with a warning.

To lower the tariff, he declared, would be to lower the American standard of living. To lower the American standard of living would be to send the United States into the world market "the most dangerous of competitors."

Points to Conditions.

European social conditions, he foresaw, would prevent a general extension of the products of American mass production abroad. In parallel fashion, he advised his European auditors, foreign nations cannot expect to win a share of the American domestic market.

For both sides of the globe he counseled development at home.

Dean Donham's American viewpoint was not allowed to go unchallenged. A paper by Sir Arthur Salter, former director of the economic section of the league of nations secretariat, was presented to the meeting in his absence.

It contended that for a creditor nation, owning the largest portion of the world's gold supply, to maintain a high tariff was inconsistent. It listed as causes of the world-wide depression the 1929 frenzy of stock speculation in the United States, the dearth of gold in circulation due to the large stocks held by a few countries, and the tariff barriers, particularly those erected by nations with sums due them on past loans.

Other persuasive arguments were reported under discussion behind the scenes. American, British and German resolutions committees all have resolutions concerning the war debts before them. Some of the more optimistic delegates from abroad are proposing a resolution for 25 per cent debt reduction in keeping with the general commodity price decline. It is considered doubtful, however, whether the leaders in control will permit so controversial an issue to become the subject of open debate.

For the rest the day's session brought forward Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company, prophesying that industry would treat unemployment as it learned to treat industrial accidents, provide against it, and in the end receive more than the cost in increased production and efficiency.

Aloyse Meyer of Luxembourg, president of the European steel cartel, doubted that because high wages worked well in the United States they must produce equal benefits in Europe; and Oskar Sempell of Berlin, chairman of the Vereinigte Stahlwerke, defended mass production methods in Germany.

Begins with Warning.

The talk which Dean Donham finished with a warning to Europe, he began with a warning to the United States, home of mass production.

Mass production has reached a point where it is in danger because of the increased cost of marketing. There is a limit, he declared, beyond which the consumers' wants can be stimulated only at a prohibitive cost.

Nor do the European markets offer prospect of an outlet for American mass production, Dean Donham declared. By contrast to the American social makeup, he explained, Europe is highly integrated, bound by custom, and a selling appeal must be directed, not at the mass, but rather at a particular group.

As for Europe's hopes of selling in this country and for a tariff reduction he asserted: "I believe our distinguished guests will be well advised if they warn their countrymen against the serious risks of making large capital expenditures on the assumption that they can secure a share in our market. Stability, like charity, begins at home, and this country is one which inevitably finds its greatest market among its own people.

"Much talk we shall indulge in about lower tariffs. This we have always done. But in my judgment our problem of stabilization at home is impossible of solution except through our protected home markets. There is little chance that we shall deliberately unstabilize numerous social groups, reduce standards of living here and concentrate our labor in the few industries where our home markets and mass production give us an advantage. All of these consequences would follow a radical change in our old established tariff policy. Moreover, if these things were done and if we did reduce our standards of living we should indeed become a dangerous competitor in the markets of the world.

"Practically speaking, we are at present a feared competitor only where our home market gives our mass products the advantage of very low cost. If we reduce our standard of living to the standards of living of Europe or if we approach such standards our great natural resources, our highly developed mechanization and our energetic population would make us the most dangerous of competitors. All of us may well be reassured that under ordinary conditions this is unlikely to happen.

Leadership Needed.

"Nevertheless," he went on, "if we have not in our several countries the brains, the ability and the coöperative spirit necessary to cure such world wide conditions as those in which we now find ourselves, then our mass production, our scientific progress, our control over nature may actually destroy civilization. Mass production mechanization and control over nature will bring about either a great age or a return to the dark ages, according to the leadership we get from business men like those here."

Winchester, Va., May 6.—(AP)—Through miles of decorated streets lined with solid walls of humanity Miss Patricia D. Morton, "Queen of Shenandoah," of the apple blossom festival today led the parade of the trail of pink petals. Thirty-two bands and bugle corps and fifty industrial floats were in the parade.

Council Orders Police to Ban All Street Carnivals

A ban on street carnivals that are operated by professional promoters was ordered yesterday by the city council at the request of Ald. Toman [23d]. Many of them operate crooked games of chance, he said, and the crowds attracted to them are profitable fields for pickpockets. The resolution, approved by the council, ordered Acting Police Commissioner Alcock to refuse to issue permits for such carnivals.

NOVEL SEASONING GIVES LAMB CHOPS SAVORY FLAVOR

Blend of Sugar, Salt, Vinegar, and Oil Is the Secret.

This seasoning may be used for roast shoulder or leg of lamb as well as the chops.

First make a mixture of ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 level teaspoonful sugar, 2 teaspoonfuls lemon juice or vinegar and 5 tablespoonfuls of salad oil. Pour this well-shaken mixture over the chops, shoulder or leg of lamb a few minutes before cooking. If you wish you can use the mixture for basting the meat as it cooks. You will be delighted with the way this seasoning heightens the flavor of the lamb.

The sugar is an important ingredient in this mixture just described because it blends the salt, lemon juice and oil into a smooth, zestful goodness.

A combination of sugar and salt is a good seasoning to use in vegetables as well as meat cookery. Some cooks use equal parts—others increase salt or sugar content to taste. Most foods are more delicious with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

LEWIS DEMANDS TAX REDUCTIONS TO AID BUSINESS

Urges Delay in Payment of Liberty Bonds.

Measures to lighten America's annual tax burden of thirteen billion dollars and to end unemployment and revive business were proposed by United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis at a dinner for him by the Chicago Bar association. The senator advocated:

1. Postponement of payment of the principal of three billion dollars' worth of Liberty bonds now due and the use of the money to revive commerce and industry and to reduce the national income tax.

2. Elimination of millions in taxes by cutting off superfluous government machinery and political bureaus, twenty-six of which were created in the last two years.

Would Bar Foreign Loans.

3. An embargo on foreign loans either by the government or American financiers while national necessities remain pressing and the problems of unemployment and revival of business and industry remain unsolved.

"Today our government drains the citizens of five billions of dollars each year to meet the national expense to which must be added the multiplied millions which increase the burden through state, county and city taxes to the startling total of thirteen billions of dollars annually," said Senator Lewis. "The government at Washington, through the President, announces that the deficit is one billion dollars. It is an amount in excess of the whole annual expense of government under Theodore Roosevelt and under Woodrow Wilson, preceding the great war.

Cites Rising Cost.

"In 1913 the national industrial conference board declared the combined cost of government was $3,000,000,000 with a population of one hundred million. Now in 1931 you have $13,000,000,000 with a population of only twenty million more. The interest on Liberty bonds and government obligations, due in 1931, amounts to $600,000,000, while the interest from foreign governments due, if paid, is less than $200,000,000, leaving us a debit of $400,000,000 with no offset and a principal of Liberty bonds, now demanded as due of $3,000,000,000."

All this, Senator Lewis declared, threatens to effect a drain on the American citizen of such proportions as to bankrupt his business, destroy his credit and close down his establishments, throwing millions of workers out of employment.

FERRELL HEADS BAR ASSOCIATION.

Marion, Ill., May 6.—[Special.]—H. V. Ferrell of Marion, was elected president of the Williamson County Bar association at its annual meeting here today. State's Attorney Roy Browning, Marion, and George H. Crichton, Herrin, were elected vice presidents.

PAIR THREATEN BOY WITH TORTURE TILL FATHER GIVES UP CASH

Two bandits forced Anthony Shurder, 1057 Belden avenue, to reveal his $180 savings last night when they threatened to torture his 10 year old son, Billy. The robbers entered the house by a ruse and when Shurder said he had no money they seized Billy and said they would torture him unless the money was given up. After taking the savings, the bandits ransacked the house and stole $100 worth of clothes and a Carnegie life saving medal bequeathed to Billy by his uncle, George P. Girard, who won it in 1918 for saving two children from drowning.

COUNCIL ORDERS FAKE STARS OFF ALL AUTOMOBILES

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock was directed by the city council yesterday to advise all extra legal agencies to discontinue the issuance of fake official stars for display on automobiles and to request all owners of automobiles carrying fake stars to remove them. The action was taken at the request of Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th].

At the same time Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress, denied that officials of the fair had issued or are issuing metal stars for use on automobiles.

"If any such devices are in use they are without the authority of the World's Fair," Mr. Dawes said. "We have steadily refused to grant advertising companies which have offered to make and distribute automobile stars bearing the name of the exposition. And in one case we ordered a company distributing them to discontinue the use of our name on such stars."

TIE UP BUTKE'S ESTATE TO REGAIN STOLEN FUNDS

Fail to Trace New Losses to Suicide.

Friendly proceedings to settle the affairs of Fred A. Butke, auditor of Kane county, who committed suicide after his peculations had been exposed, were proposed yesterday by State's Attorney George D. Carbary of Kane county. He said he would ask the heirs of the suicide to reimburse the county for Butke's shortage of $65,000 from the $83,000 trust fund established by Butke on Monday night just before he shot himself in a room at the Fort Dearborn hotel.

Auditors working on the Kane county books since Monday afternoon, following revelations that Butke had been converting county money to his own use, said they had found no additional shortages. Attorney John P. Hart of Aurora, representing Butke's widow, Mrs. Marjorie Butke, declared he was ready to negotiate on the basis of the present financial showings.

Brother Is a Witness.

At the inquest held yesterday at the Cook county morgue it was pointed out by Emil A. Butke, brother of the dead man, that the family had noticed during the last few weeks that Fred Butke was acting strangely and appeared to be extremely nervous, indicating a possibility of mental derangement. Coroner Herman N. Bundesen, who presided at the hearing, said he wanted further testimony on Butke's mental condition before closing the inquest. Butke's widow, who is ill, also asked that the inquest be delayed.

Act to Protect County.

As a protection to the county, while proposals for recovering the county's money are pending, State's Attorney George D. Carbary and Sheriff Harry Crawford took action yesterday which tied up Butke's estate. Butke came to Chicago on Monday, while his books were being examined, and deposited stocks and bonds to the value of $83,000 with the Chicago Title and Trust company to create a trust fund, the income of which was to go to his wife for life.

Sheriff Crawford served an injunction on the trust company restraining the disposition of the fund pending a hearing in the Circuit court of Kane county on May 18. The officials also attached Butke's bank accounts in Aurora, his home, and his automobile.

Morton and Kinsman Get 18 Months in Rum Case

Paul Morton and his brother-in-law, Abe Sutton, wholesale north side bootleggers, whose trial on conspiracy charges showed the importation of many thousands of dollars' worth of liquor from Canada, were sentenced to eighteen months each at Leavenworth prison yesterday. Federal Judge John P. Barnes also fined the bootleggers $7,500 each. The pair were granted a stay of sentence to May 16.

Complications from injuries suffered when she fell while holding an all day sucker in her mouth caused the death last night of Josephine Wreshni, 1 year old, 5015 South Hoyne avenue. Don't let Rancid Oil in Stale Coffee keep you awake!

No RANCID OIL in Chase & Sanborn's... it's guaranteed fresh

Every can plainly marked with an expiration date!

MEDICAL research has now discovered that rancid oil found only in stale coffee is directly responsible for indigestion, headaches, sleeplessness.

There is one certain way you can avoid this menace. Use Chase & Sanborn's, the coffee that's guaranteed fresh.

This coffee is rushed to your grocer, straight from our roasters, every can plainly marked with an expiration date. Regularly our inspectors visit your grocer and check those dates. If they find any can whose date has expired, it is immediately replaced with a fresh one.

There seldom is need to replace any, because our deliveries are so frequent and your grocer's needs so carefully analyzed. But at any rate, you can't possibly buy a stale can of Chase & Sanborn's Coffee.

Avoid the dangers of stale, rancid coffee. Insist on Chase & Sanborn's, and look for the date when you buy!

ALL COFFEE CONTAINS OIL ::: approximately a half cup to every pound of coffee. In fresh coffee this oil is as sweet and fragrant as fresh butter. But when the coffee gets stale this oil turns rancid, just as butter does. It actually spoils ::: becomes toxic and dangerous. Science says this rancid oil causes indigestion, headaches, sleeplessness. Don't take chances. Use Chase & Sanborn's, the coffee you know is fresh. Then you'll be safe from the dangers of rancid oil!

THIS photograph was taken in a Virginia grocery store where the photographer bought expensive coffee that was more than six months old. His affidavit is on file!

Guaranteed FRESH ... Look for the date on every can!

Cites New Figures on Contract Graft.

United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson yesterday discerned "the dawn of a new day" for Chicago in an address before the Chicago Association of Commerce at the La Salle hotel.

G. E. Q. JOHNSON.

Mr. Johnson discussed the crime problem and also the proposal originated by him to curb the waste of public funds through graft in contracts.

"Every man and woman today believes that for Chicago the dawn of a new day already is brightening the skies," said the federal prosecutor. "This faith in a new order is well founded. A new broom is sweeping. Many agencies are at work for the common welfare. Best of all, our problems are being studied by many able men and women, and problems understood are half solved."

Mr. Johnson cited additional statistics on contracts which have come under his scrutiny in income tax investigation, showing how pay rolls are padded and other expedients are employed by crooked contractors to cover up bribes paid to public officials. Disclosures of this nature made by Mr. Johnson some weeks ago resulted Tuesday in the introduction of a bill in the legislature to curb contract graft.

The district attorney explained that federal investigations frequently revealed the withdrawal of huge sums of currency from banks, "arbitrarily charged to the cost of the contract, where it was evident from the account that overhead, material, and labor had already been taken into account and proper charges made."

"I have in mind one instance," he said, "where a single contractor drew from the bank in this manner more than $1,000,000, which was charged to costs of various contracts of public improvements where material, labor, and overhead were all paid for by checks."

He cited figures showing discrepancies between amounts charged by contractors to pay rolls in their own books and amounts paid out for labor reported to the insurance companies under the workmen's compensation act.

"In one contract of $2,000,000, there was charged to the pay roll in round figures $350,000, and the amount of labor reported to the insurance company by this contractor was $9,000. In another instance, in a contract of $900,000, there was a pay roll deduction of $140,000, and $20,000 reported to the insurance company. In another instance there was a reported pay roll of $407,000, and a return to the insurance company of $70,000."

The bill provides that complete records of all sources of income and expenditure by public contractors and taxing bodies shall be filed with the commission in its county offices on or before the 10th of each month.

RUNAWAY GIRL IS HELD TO TESTIFY AGAINST 3 MEN

15 Year Old Heiress Charges Assault.

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—Miss Doris Louise Dempsey, the 15 year old Pennsylvania heiress whose adventure into Manhattan ended in a furnished room in which she was found yesterday, living with another girl and three men, was held in the Children's court today as a material witness against the men.

A little earlier she had signed a complaint in the Washington Heights Police court charging one of the men with criminal assault upon her and two others with acting in concert.

Three Held on Her Charges.

Mark A. Cooke, 23 years old, was held in bail of $5,000 on the assault charge. His younger brother, Edward, was held in bail of $3,500 on a charge of being an accessory to the assault, and Harry W. Steirwalt, whose prison record was found to include a sentence for the theft of an automobile, was remanded without bail, also as an alleged accessory.

The hearing will be held on Monday next, and until that time Miss Dempsey will be kept in the custody of the children's society.

After the arraignment of the young men Miss Jean Culver, the girl who made Miss Dempsey's acquaintance and introduced her to the Cookes, was brought into court, charged with being a fugitive from the Clinton reformatory in New Jersey. She, too, was held for a hearing on Monday.

Embraced by Father.

Miss Dempsey's father, William W. Dempsey Jr., and her grandfather, William W. Dempsey, were with her in the office of the court when she signed the complaint against the men.

The father chatted with his daughter as they prepared for the court formalities. He kissed her when she left the building to return to the Children's society.

At the Children's court Justice Edward F. Boyle explained to the elder Dempseys that in the interest of justice it would be necessary for the girl to give evidence against the men who took advantage of her unsophistication after an accidental meeting.

GETTING DIVORCE IN RUSSIA EASY AS GETTING WED

Sign on Dotted Line; It Takes Only Moment.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, April 17.—[By Mail.]—Divorce has become nearly as prevalent in Moscow as in New York. Statistics show that there has been a slight increase in the last year after nearly a stationary decade. There have been more divorces in the last year, and the rate will continue to advance, it is feared, because of the slow but gradual solution of the housing crisis.

Lack of space, the impossibility of one of the quarreling parties finding another place to live, was a strong hindrance to divorce for these many years.

"You horrid old man. I'm leaving you the minute I can find a room," stormy mamas would cry.

But that didn't mean a thing to pop, because he knew she couldn't find another room any more than she could discover perpetual motion.

Couldn't Find a Room.

"Listen, woman. We are through. I'm quitting right now, and I will move my book and my other shirt and that odd sock and my soap right out of here the minute I find another joint, even if it's in a corner with newlyweds," pa would bark when the radio got out of order.

But that night he would drag himself home. He couldn't find another home.

People here never speak of getting "married" any more. They refer to it as "getting registered." Couples living together are considered as much married as though they had a ceremony by the soviet state. If you stay all night anywhere, you must register with the police. They must know where you are and when. So, if a man registers that he is sharing a cozy nook with a lady friend he is considered by the authorities as "roped" and the woman can get a court order requiring him to support any children that may bless their union.

If some vodka saturated "high lifer" takes a fair companion home with him, to show her his perfected radio that will get Omsk, and she refuses to get out that "laughing lad" is just the same as married and the best thing he can do is to turn over the lodging to her and hike for the north woods with the kulaks.

Divorces Rare Among Peasants.

Outside of Moscow, Leningrad, Kharkoff, Odessa, and a few other large cities, the divorce rate is extremely low. Peasants, who form 80 per cent of the population, haven't gotten educated to divorce ideas as yet. They are just learning to wear shoes instead of bark twisted around their feet.

Religion is the chief bar to divorce out in the rural districts. Some say that is why the soviet government is tolerating the Greek Orthodox churches despite its atheistic ideas. The popes, as they call the priests, warn peasants against divorce.

"If you divorce your wife and remarry, you will have a dwarf for a son," the priest warns the peasant, because the crafty clergyman knows Mr. Moujik would never get such an idea as that, unless he considered marrying some one else. The pope also knows the fears all peasants have of dwarfs, which dates from when ruling czars and potentates had their favorite jesters buried alive with them just to keep them in good humor on the long journey.

In the cities when a husband wants a divorce he just walks into the nearest registry office and has it written down. That's enough. There's no argument, no testimony, no witnesses to decide who is wrong. He leaves five kopecks as the price of a postcard, which authorities send his former wife notifying her she is no longer a wife. One ruble charges. That's all.

Must Select a Name.

Couples getting married have various problems beside finding a place to live. They must decide what name they will use, the bride's or the bridegroom's. Sometimes a neutral name is chosen from the phone book, or maybe a composite label made up from the better portions of their respective surnames. Strange names are saddled on children.

Twins were born the other day and christened, respectively, "Industrialization" and "Electrification" in honor of the five year plan.

Primate Reminds Them King Backed Church.

TOLEDO, Spain, May 6.—(AP)—Cardinal Primate Pedro Segura, Spain's highest ecclesiastical authority, issued a pastoral letter today counseling all Spanish Catholics to participate actively in the coming elections at which the members of the national assembly will be chosen.

The cardinal urged the election of deputies "who will defend and guarantee the rights of the church."

The present moment, he said, was "very grave" for the church, and the recent changes in government had already damaged the church's rights. There would be no disposition on the part of the church, he said, to take a partisan stand, if its rights were not infringed upon.

"As republicans or monarchists," he said, "you can justly dissent over what form of government is best for Spain, but when the rights of your religion are menaced it is your unalterable duty to defend them."

He added that Alfonso, the fallen monarch, and his family "steadfastly kept the Catholic faith" while in power.

It was believed the cardinal's letter may have a very important influence on the Spanish political future. Many people expressed the opinion that the situation at present does not contain probability of a religious controversy such as occurred in Mexico a few years ago, but the fear exists that strained relations may develop.

Disagrees with Cardinal.

MADRID, May 6.—(AP)—Commenting tonight on the pastoral letter of Archbishop Segura, issuer at Toledo today, Marcelino Domingo, minister of public instruction, said:

"The pastoral of the cardinal primate seems to me to be not in the spirit of the church as it exists in those countries where new democracies have been established, similar to the new republic of Spain. The rules of the church require respect for constitutional government, in whatever form it may be. I cannot agree with the cardinal's position."

Legion Revolt Reported.

LONDON, May 6.—(AP)—A Reuter's dispatch from Tangier today said that it was rumored the troops of the Spanish Foreign legion at Souk El Arba where in revolt.

It said that artillery in the central plaza at Tetuan had been trained on the native quarter as a precaution against further riots. The streets of Tetuan, the dispatch said, were patrolled by infantry and cavalry.

SUES FOR RETURN OF MONEY CALLED BRIBE BY COURT

Indianapolis, Ind., May 6.—[Special.]—Convicted in March, 1928, of giving $500 to a fellow member of the city council, O. Ray Albertson, former Councilman Boynton J. Moore today announced he is taking legal steps to recover the $500.

"If it was a bribe, then it should be returned to me, because it was accepted as a bribe," he reasoned.

The money is now in possession of the county prosecutor's office, inquiry tonight developed, the prosecutor ruling it "confiscated."

Moore never went to jail, despite his conviction. He resigned from the council, then after paying a fine was pardoned by Gov. Ed Jackson.

COMMONS O. K.'S SNOWDEN PLAN TO TAX LAND VALUES

LONDON, May 6.—(AP)—The house of commons tonight adopted the resolution of Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, authorizing imposition of a land tax of a penny a pound, starting in 1933. The motion was carried by a vote of 289 to 230.

Although the proposed tax, with its threat to large landowners, is expected to become one of the most controversial issues in British politics, the proceedings in the house tonight were uneventful.

The Conservative view of the proposal, generally speaking, at present is that it is still too nebulous to become excited about. The party leaders have announced that they will wait until the details of the proposal appear in the finance bill before taking a definite stand.

WHEN CHILDREN FRET

MANY things can make a youngster fretful—sluggish bowels; a touch of colic; when teething or at other trying times. But there's only one remedy a mother should ever use to comfort an ailing child in any of these conditions. Castoria!

This pure old-fashioned remedy most mothers have learned to depend on, comforts a child like nothing else. It has an important place in five million modern homes where mothers keep it always on hand, so they will be ready to render first aid when a child is ailing.

Watch your child's tongue; when it is coated, or whenever the breath is tainted, let this pure vegetable preparation come to the aid of that sour stomach or clogged bowels.

The beauty of Castoria is that it can be given as often as needed. It contains no harmful ingredients. The recipe on the wrapper tells you how mild and bland it is. It is a children's remedy, made especially for the children. Ideal for infants—yet effective in larger doses for a child in his teens.

POPE PIUS BACKS BUILDING DRIVE TO AID CHICAGO

Mundelein Told to Push General Campaign.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

ROME, May 6.—George Cardinal Mundelein will leave for the United States tomorrow determined to push with new vigor his plans to relieve the unemployment distress in Chicago and his archdiocese. He discussed these plans with Pope Pius XI. in a farewell audience with the pontiff for more than an hour this morning.

Pope Pius was pleased when the cardinal told him how the Chicago archdiocese was providing work for the jobless through the construction of a number of new churches, school buildings and other structures. These include the addition of another building for the Mundelein seminary and additional playgrounds at various parochial schools. In pursuance to the pope's suggestion, Cardinal Mundelein, on returning from his audience, said that he would lend his aid and the church's influence to a general building campaign in Chicago in order to provide further relief for the jobless.

Lauds New Vatican City.

Cardinal Mundelein, while here, has spent considerable time inspecting the progress of building and reconstruction of Vatican City, for the development of which he expressed great admiration, remarking at the same time at the great amount of employment it gave hundreds of workers.

When the cardinal, in audience, was discussing Chicago and the affairs of the archdiocese, the pope suggested that the inauguration of a general building campaign with the church's backing might go far toward solving Chicago's unemployment problem.

"His holiness's activities in all ways are astonishing," said Cardinal Mundelein after his audience. "I think his pontificate is the most noted for building and construction since the days of Pope Sixtus V. Vatican City has not only been amazingly transformed, but in addition, the building of schools, churches and homes for clergymen have been proceeding all over Italy.

Builds Houses for Priests.

"In southern Italy alone the pontiff has seen to it that 1,500 houses were built for priests, providing residences for them adjacent to their churches in accordance with our plan in the United States. Two thousand more of such residences are planned."

At the end of the audience the pope, through Cardinal Mundelein, imparted an apostolic benediction upon Chicago and the archdiocese and gave the cardinal a gift for Chicago which the cardinal said he would not reveal until he returned home.

Cardinal Mundelein received from the pontiff papal honors for several laymen of his archdiocese, which he will make known on his return to Chicago. He announced, however, that his chancellor, Father Robert McGuire, had been promoted to domestic prelate, which carries the title of monsignor.

Presents Chicago Priest.

Following his audience today, Cardinal Mundelein presented Thomas Linke, James Shannon and James Keane to the pope. These three, graduates from Mundelein seminary in Chicago, are now completing ecclesiastic studies at the Canadian college in Rome. The cardinal also presented Father René Pugny, curate of the French church of St. Louis of Chicago, who arrived in Rome yesterday from Palestine.

Cardinal Mundelein will leave tomorrow afternoon for Paris, where he will spend about a week before sailing for home. He expects to be back in Chicago by May 28.

ASKS INQUIRY INTO DEATH.

The coroner's office yesterday requested the police to investigate the cause of injuries to Frank Knuts, 45 years old, 12251 South Green street, which resulted in his death at the county hospital.

TO BE MARRIED

Sylvia Breamer, former movie star, who joins Douglas Wood, stage actor, in the announcement of engagement. No date has been set for the wedding.

5 HELD IN DEATH OF CO-ED SLAIN IN AUTOMOBILE

Jackson, Ky., May 6.—(AP)—The slaying of Miss Cassie Patton, 18, co-ed at Lee's Junior college here, which her companions declared was done by a group of men who fired on them from the roadside, resulted in five men being detained for questioning today. Sheriff Lee Combs continued to search for two others.

Miss Patton was en route in an automobile with George Daniels Jr. and Thomas Meadows, also Lee college students, to the home of another girl at Quicksand. Daniels and Meadows said four or five bullets were fired at them. The girl died at a hospital here from a wound in the head.

Of those in custody Bryan Murcham and Odie Malone were placed in the Breathitt county jail here, and the sheriff had personal charge of three others whom he described as "the Turner brothers."

New York Taxi Drivers Protest Against New Board

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—More than 1,500 taxi drivers wedged their way into the board of estimate chamber in city hall today to protest against the proposed board of taxicab control.

The ordinance, which would create a board of five nonsalaried members with wide powers, was assailed as a measure that would drive many independent cabmen out of business.

RADIO COCKTAIL TO REVIVE TIRED MAN IN FUTURE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—The cocktails of the future may come in a radio tube, much to the confusion of the bootlegging industry. When the tired business man wants a quick pickup all he will have to do will be to press a button and he will not need cracked ice nor ginger ale for a good tall highball. It is all a matter of equipping the office with an electronic tube.

O. H. CALDWELL. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

The tube does not distill anything nor mix the drinks. It merely supplies body heat, a gentle exhilaration and speeding up of the mental processes. Orestes H. Caldwell, former member of the federal radio commission, told engineers here something about the new electro-magnetic field today.

Among the possibilities of this high frequency radio heat which induces a sort of artificial "fever" and which was vaguely described several months ago when it was first tried out in hospitals in this country, are:

Stimulation of the brain and speeding up of mental processes.

Ridding the body of blood infections by raising the patient's temperature to 103 to 105 degrees.

Removal of diseased portions of the body by a controlled, wasting fever in the affected area.

Internal heating of the body from the external radio field, which may some day make it useless to heat houses at all.

Discussing the "cocktail" possibilities of the tube, Mr. Caldwell at a luncheon at the Engineers' club said the Volstead law of the future may be aimed at high frequency stimulations instead of alcoholic stimulants.

"In Vienna," he said, "Dr. Wagner-Jauregg has made frequent experiments with high frequency stimulation applied to the brain by putting the subject's head in a heat cabinet. The result was very much the same as the stimulation obtained from a properly mixed cocktail.

"I can very well imagine," he continued, "that the business offices of the future might install high frequency cabinets for the refreshment of brain weary executives. In the more completely electrical world of the future there will be no need for the swinging doors or the present day bootlegger."

DELAY DEADLINE FOR ACCEPTANCE OF TRANSIT ACT

Company Must Act by January 31.

An extension of time until Jan. 31, 1932, in which to accept the new transit ordinance was granted to the Chicago Local Transportation company yesterday by the city council with only one dissenting vote. The negative vote was cast by Ald. Wiley W. Mills [37th], who has actively opposed the ordinance.

The council also extended until the same date the period in which the Chicago Surface lines will continue to operate under the old franchise. The last acceptance date set was May 22.

City Officials Present.

Both extensions were recommended by the council committee on local transportation at a session yesterday morning which was attended by Mayor Cermak, Corporation Counsel Busch, James Simpson, chairman of the citizen's traction committee, and Charles F. Clarke, president of the Chicago Local Transportation company.

Mr. Clarke explained, in asking the extension, that delays over which the company has no control prevent acceptance at an earlier date. Most of the delays are concerned with litigation in the federal and county courts in which decisions cannot be expected until late this year.

"No Alternative," Cermak View.

Mayor Cermak said the aldermen had no alternative. Mr. Simpson, Mr. Busch and Attorney Walter L. Fisher, representing the city, also recommended the extensions.

Mayor Cermak cautioned the aldermen against spending too much money on the traction plan until the courts have declared the ordinance valid.

The committee was informed that all the protective committees have signed the financial reorganization plan, and Halsey, Stuart & Co. reported sufficient securities in hand to make the purchase of the elevated and surface lines by the new company.

BIDS ASKED FOR NEW TANKS TO REPLACE OBSOLETE MACHINES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—The first move toward replacement of the obsolete light combat tanks used by the infantry since the world war has taken by the war department, it was learned today. The department has asked manufacturers to submit bids for the construction of from five to seven Christie armored fighting machines for delivery this fall.

W. J. CHRISTIE. [Associated Press Photo.]

The decision to purchase a number of the Christie light tanks as replacements was taken after a long series of tests of armored vehicles developed by Walter Christie, veteran civilian inventor and automobile racing driver and by the war department. While the new machines will be subjected to another series of field tests before any tank is adopted as standard, they will be built for use in actual combat.

Purchase of the new Christies will mark the first time since the war that the army has purchased more than one pilot model at a time of any type of tank designed for infantry modernization.

The tanks will weigh not more than fifteen tons, have a sustained speed of more than forty miles over hard roads and from twenty-five to thirty miles across country. They will use rubber tires on roads and caterpillar tracks in the fields.

SHERIFF TO SEEK KIRKLAND JURORS IN STREET TODAY

Only 3 Picked in 8 Days; 38 Bare Prejudices.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Valparaiso, Ind., May 6.—[Special.]—After eight days of examination of prospective jurors, attorneys in the Virgil Kirkland murder trial tonight had reached an agreement on only three men, who said they were ready to give the youth an impartial trial on charges of raping and slaying 18 year old Arlene Draves.

A continuation of the present rate of selecting jurors would result in the breaking of all records in the history of American jurisprudence for length of the time consumed in picking 12 men, the lawyers said. But emergency methods will go into effect tomorrow when Sheriff Burney Maxwell scours the streets and highways with the power to take into custody any man or woman he sees and bring them to the courthouse for jury service.

May Complete Jury This Week.

Under this extraordinary system, never used before in this district, hopes were raised that a jury may be completed before the end of the week.

The wall of prejudice built up in this community against the young defendant was never so clearly revealed as in today's hearing. Man after man, and one woman, total of 38 in all, paraded through the jury box and with varying degrees of sternness, glanced at the somewhat sullen Kirkland and said:

"I've formed my opinion of his guilt. No amount of evidence at this second trial could change my mind."

The specter of the Ku Klux Klan was raised for the second time. The defense strove to get a klansman on the jury and the state promptly opposed this move by introducing this question to the veniremen:

"Would the fact that the father of Virgil Kirkland was a member of the klan influence you in any manner?"

Klansman in Jury Box.

Ernest Miskimmins, the klansman questioned, intimated that he would not be so influenced but the state indicated he would be challenged. He remained in the jury box temporarily.

Similarly, when Morgan Borch, a farmer, admitted having once been a member of the klan but added scornfully that he had soon dropped out of the organization, he was challenged by the defense.

A husband and wife were among those who passed through the jury box. Mr. and Mrs. Leon Henry agreed in their statements that they were prejudiced against Kirkland and were excused.

Argentina Closes Up Paper Which Criticized President

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, May 6.—(AP)—Police announced today that the newspaper Critica had been ordered to suspend publication for "reasons of public order." The newspaper has been criticizing the government of President Uriburu.

RAID GAMBLING HOUSE IN KIDNAP INQUIRY; 40 SEIZED

Detectives from the state's attorney's office, led by Lieut. William Blaul and Lieut. Neil Kahler, raided a gambling house at 7808 South Ashland avenue late yesterday afternoon, arrested forty men, and seized a large quantity of paraphernalia.

The police went to the place after receiving a tip that some of the kidnapers of James Hackett, Blue Island gambler who paid $150,000 for release from a gang of extortioners, would be found there. Questioning of the patrons of the house convinced the raiders that none of them was involved in the Hackett case and all were released.

William McGovern, 1627 West 67th street, the keeper, and Henry Finnegan, 8100 South Hermitage avenue, a clerk, were held on the usual charges of maintaining a gambling house. According to Lieut Blaul there were large charts on the wall and bets were being freely accepted on the races. The raiders broke down the front and rear doors to enter.

That means they retain their mildness, freshness, and natural moisture until they come to you.

It is peppery dust and parched-dry tobacco that are harsh and unkind to a smoker's throat.

If you want the proof of that, try Camels in the new Humidor Pack today, and switch back tomorrow, if you can.

FRANCE SUBMITS NEW ANSWER ON NAVAL PROPOSAL

British Deny Negotiations Have Broken Down.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 6.—Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson denied in the house of commons today that the Franco-Italian naval limitation negotiations had failed, and he expressed hope that they would yet be successful.

Rene Massigli, the French expert, returned to London tonight. It is reported that he brought a new French reply to the British-Italian reply to the French note. The French reply is not, however, expected to contain any serious suggestions, as it is recognized that the French are stalling until after the French presidential election next week and the meeting of the foreign ministers at the league of nations council session at Geneva in the middle of May, when it is hoped some basis will be found for a serious resumption of the negotiations.

ARTHUR HENDERSON.

Deputies Vote Stern Hand.

PARIS, May 6.—(AP)—Simultaneously with the return to London of Rene Massigli, head of the French naval delegation, the naval affairs committee of the chamber of deputies took action today which may force the government's hand in naval negotiations. The committee, in substance, voted for insistence upon the French thesis in regard to replacement of superannuated vessels during negotiations for the naval treaty.

The committee also laid plans for action on the 1931-32 naval building program, which has been sidetracked since February due to attempts of France and Italy to reach an accord.

Vote Soon on Program.

Two members of the committee were appointed to visit Minister of Marine Dumont to insist that Massigli and his collaborators in London should not give in on the French view toward the Franco-Italian accord of March 1.

The 1931-'32 naval building program has not yet been voted on by the committee, but it was understood after today's meeting that this will be done and the bill will be placed before the chamber as soon as possible.

POLICE TO PATROL GARAGES TODAY; AUTO TAG DRIVE

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock yesterday ordered policemen to be stationed at public garages and garages of cartage companies to prevent automobiles or trucks from leaving the buildings unless properly licensed. Trucks appearing at freight yards, markets or similar places will be ordered to return to their garages or the drivers will be arrested.

At a meeting attended by Alcock Municipal Judge John F. O'Connell and Fred Fischman, acting superintendent of the license department, yesterday the officials decided on these measures to save the city the expense incurred in issuing arrest slips to delinquents.

ROOSEVELT AND AL SMITH AGREE ON PROHIBITION

Apparent Differences Found Imaginary.

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, sailing tonight for France to see his mother, now recovering from influenza, carried with him a belief that he and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith have reached a friendly understanding on the subject of prohibition.

GOV. ROOSEVELT. [A. P. Photo.]

Though neither would discuss the meeting today, it was learned they had discussed apparent differences in their attitudes toward handling the prohibition question in preparation for next year's presidential campaign.

These differences, which the governor is believed to have convinced Mr. Smith were more apparent than real, had caused considerable concern to the governor's friends, who have feared Mr. Smith's rival candidacy for the presidential nomination.

Gov. Roosevelt, it was said, assured Mr. Smith that their views on the handling of the prohibition issue were much alike except as to the committing of the convention in advance. Mr. Smith, it was indicated, yielded to Roosevelt's view.

Gov. Roosevelt andhis son Elliott sailed on the Aquitania at midnight.

MACHADO DENIES PLAN TO RESIGN; DEFIES HIS FOES

HAVANA, May 6.—(AP)—President Machado today issued a personal denial to reports that he intended to resign and turn over the presidency on May 14 to Dr. José C. Vivanco, secretary of state.

"I have not resigned, I am not resigning now, and you may rest assured I shall not resign," he said. "I named Dr. Vivanco secretary of state because he is well qualified for that office and in order that, from his new post, he might work to the end that I be not replaced.

"Some say I am sick. They may be certain that my health is good and that while it lasts and I live I shall not resign. I shall not quit while I have what I have: the mayors, the governors, the institutions, the congress, the army, the navy, the police, and the people. To get me out of the presidency, it is not only necessary to say that I am resigning, but it is necessary to provide the way. Let them do it!"

RAILROADS OPEN BATTLE AGAINST GRAIN RATE CUT

Counsel for 72 of the nation's leading railroads began arguments yesterday before the United States District court here to enjoin the enforcement of the interstate commerce commission's order for reduced freight rates on grain, effective June 1.

Federal Judges Sparks, Lindley and Woodward, sitting en banc, are hearing the arguments, which are expected to last several days. The railroads are opposed by the government and the utilities commissions of twelve western grain raising states, which would benefit by the reduced rates.

Attorney Frederick H. Wood of New York occupied most of the day's session arguing on behalf of the railroads. He charged that the proposed rates would cut $21,500,000 from the annual earnings of the carriers, and that the interstate commerce commission had fixed the schedules on 1928 railway earnings data, now obsolete.

BRITISH ART PUTS IN CRAFTY BID FOR YANK CASH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 6.—What was to have been a highbrow discussion of Chinese, Indian and Japanese art of the India society, summoned this afternoon for deliberation on the question of establishing a "central museum of Asiatic art," suddenly took a western and unscholarly turn when the question of money arose.

While the bearded authorities were urging the necessity of creating a housing place for ceramics, textiles and other examples of eastern arts and crafts, R. L. Hobson, formerly of the British museum, delicately hinted that money might be needed and brought up the question of American interest in the project. The next speaker, E. H. Keeling, pointed out that there is little use for the word "Asiatic" in the United States.

"I think the name 'Museum of Oriental Art' would reach American pockets quicker than 'Asiatic,' and therefore I move that the name of the museum be altered," he said, and Lieut. Col. Sir Francis Young, husband of the chairman of the society, made the alteration accordingly, in a resolution to set the ball rolling, and it was unanimously adopted.

MR. TRAYLOR ON THE DEPRESSION.

It is to be hoped the very sound and timely remarks of Melvin Traylor upon the present depression will not be overlooked while his proposals for the eliminating of floor trading and limitation of speculation upon margin take the forefront of discussion. As to these suggestions there will be excited debate, pro and con, but, whether they are deserving of adoption or not, they are not of importance comparable to that of prayerful consideration of Mr. Traylor's meaty comment on the main causes and conditions of our situation. "We have not failed," Mr. Traylor reminds us, "because of ignorance of economic theories, but because of our utter disregard and defiance of all economic laws. Ambition, stupidity, and greed have dictated policies, and trouble has been the result." Mr. Paul Warburg put it still more briefly when he said that our present troubles are the result of "cupidity and stupidity."

Mr. Traylor and Mr. Mellon, who also made a telling analysis of our situation, agree that there are no panaceas for our condition, and both emphasize the truth that reliance upon government and political nostrums will not bring back our normal prosperity. But as to the cause of our ills it is advisable to realize and to remember that while a very large part of our public must share responsibility for the excesses which brought about the collapse, a greater share rests upon the shoulders of the financial and business leadership of the country. Mr. Traylor emphasizes the rôle of the speculative agencies, the exchanges, but the government, the great banking interests, the corporations which, seeking maximum profits, loaned reserves for speculation and expanded with too little regard to economic laws, failed in their function of larger control and guidance. We all contributed to our own punishment, the farmers, who have been charging everything except their own methods with their condition; the wage earner and salaried man, who forgot thrift and lived beyond his means; business managers and directors, bankers, and even economic prophets and the press, all share responsibility, but certainly wise leadership has been sadly lacking.

This is not an error easily or quickly cured. But it is fundamental. The cure must come from the fostering of better standards of life among us all and the development of a greater sense of responsibility for our common welfare among the directors of our main financial and economic activities. It is not a quick and easy remedy, but it is the only effectual one. The air is and will be full of the clamor of political and economic quacks. Our good judgment must resist and refuse their fallacies. Chiefly the demand will be for government action, but as Mr. Traylor truly says: "Governments cannot effectively or efficiently suspend the operation of economic laws, as witness failure after failure in the field of price regulation and, most recently, the almost complete breakdown of economic conditions in Australia and New Zealand, where government ownership and operation have had their most universal application. We must not travel that path. Government coöperation is imperative, but leadership must come from business."

But resisting mistaken devices will not alone answer our needs. Mr. Traylor is right when he calls upon our financial leadership to take stock of its failures and to accept responsibility for better policies. We are not underestimating the part that those who directly effectuate speculative activities or the part the treasury and reserve boards must take in reform. But the great financial and business forces of the country can bring this about if they will broaden their vision and their sense of responsibility for our general economic and financial policies and practices.

This will not relieve the general public of its duty toward itself and the nation. An important factor in economic restoration is as much relief as we can contrive to get from the mounting burden of public expenditure. We can have no adequate check upon this without a public opinion resolutely opposed to it. Public expenditure grows under diverse influences, many of them plausible in themselves, but regardless of the ultimate and general result. It is the product of many selfish special interests and many altruistic urges. These are difficult to defeat, but they can be limited and controlled by the growth of a strong sentiment against government expansion and expenditure. Already this sentiment has made itself felt to some extent. Leadership from the press and business and civic agencies will make it more effective.

CAROL SHOULD BE NEXT.

It may be overly optimistic to assume that the Spanish house cleaning will be regarded as exemplar elsewhere in Europe, but Rumania could satisfy a general desire by chasing Carol out again. Practically it seems to be of little concern how Rumania is governed, but that may not be as true as it appears to be. Trouble can start in the back yards of Europe, as has been proved time and again. The little fellows start things for the big ones to take up, but even as merely a moral nuisance Carol is outstanding.

Alfonso had his points. He was a fair salesman. He did not mind selling automobiles to his callers and just as he was departing, without abdicating, the American movies were showing him here in a talking picture in which he invited all Americans to visit Spain and enjoy a hospitality which would, among other things, permit them to travel excellent roads at any speed they liked. A modern king, but once a Bourbon always a Bourbon.

Carol lacks mitigation. He is not a Bourbon but a bounder. His career lacks only the crowning accomplishment of some stunning perfidy achieved by him against himself. For the present king of Rumania this may not be as difficult as might appear, and it is certain to appeal to him as a worthy act. An ejection would give him the proper curtain.

SENATORIAL MISCHIEF MAKERS.

The postmaster general has disposed of the pretended exposure of scandal in the purchase of the Chicago postoffice site. In so doing he has done more. He has exposed the character of the inquiries Blaine and the small group of senators of which he is a member have been conducting in recent months. Under pretense of seeking facts and exposing evils these men, clothed with the authority of the highest legislative body of the nation, have been carrying on an unscrupulous and often lawless inquisition and prosecution. The postmaster's disclosure of Blaine's irresponsibility in accusation and allegation is not merely or chiefly important in clearing the credit of the postoffice site transaction and of the citizens and officials responsible for it. It is of more moment as disclosing the animus and disregard of justice and truth which characterize not only the Blaine proceeding but that of the whole series of prosecutions for which his associates, the self-styled progressives, are responsible. The case of Nye will be discussed later, but in the meantime Senator Blaine's activities may be taken as a fair example of this group's methods and intentions.

The immediate objective of these senators is, obviously enough, publicity for themselves and credit among the unthinking for devotion to the public good. But the general purpose is to foment public distrust and rancor. No more irresponsible and vicious influence exists in our political life today. Its evil is augmented by the abnormal conditions from which the American people are suffering. The crime against the public good which it represents is therefore the more inexcusable and heinous. The responsible membership of the senate of both parties should bring it to an end. These unscrupulous mischief makers should no longer be permitted to carry on their political conspiracy with the authority of the senate, whose dignity and good faith they are dishonoring and will continue to dishonor as long as shortsighted and narrow party tactics permit them to go on.

REGULATION OF AIR SERVICE.

The order of the aviation section of the department of commerce withdrawing 35 or 40 trimotor Fokker planes from passenger service we hope indicates the beginning of a stricter supervision over this service. We are convinced it is needed and if firmly established will result in the reduction of serious accidents. The investigation of the tragedy in Kansas, which cost the lives of several passengers, including that of Knute Rockne, no doubt was thorough, although the public report was not as satisfactory to informed users of planes as it might have been. If it results not only in the withdrawal from passenger service of planes unsuited or unfit for it, but also in a general improvement of regulation, an important gain can be set off against the loss.

In the present stage of air transport the strictest supervision and the highest practicable standards are due to the public, and we believe it has not yet had the benefit of them. The whole rapidly expanding field of commercial service, we think, should be carefully and thoroughly surveyed, both as to equipment in use and as to conditions of operation, discipline of personnel, ground work, weather reports, conditions at airports, etc. This is an urgent duty of the department of commerce, which should lose no time and spare no effort in organizing a system of the most reliable regulation for the public safety.

FROM THE PAST.

[Baltimore Sun.]

At a recent meeting of the Mediæval Academy of America in New York, Prof. Dana C. Munro of Princeton dealt with the nature of war propaganda in the great days of chivalry and romance, more especially in the period of the Crusades. War propaganda and the exposure of its lies is a familiar subject, but most of us think of it only in terms of 1914-'18. Certainly, it was then that it did reach its peak in systematization and psychological boldness. But from Dr. Munro's remarks one can realize that the matter, the manner and intent of wartime propaganda, a form of "vital lie," have been much the same through the ages.

In the war against Islam it seems to have attained to considerable diversity and refinement. All the groundwork for the later methodical poisoning and hypertrophying of national passions was laid in those days of high deeds in the east. Stories of frightful atrocities were widely circulated; the Moslems were pictured first as ridiculous and cowardly fighters and next as dreadfully immoral and dangerous people. Their prophet was made the subject of all kinds of stories. His private life was assailed, his sanity impugned. The whole faith of the Moslems was pictured as one of unrelieved and subtle viciousness, just as not so long ago the writings of Nietzsche and even those of Kant were seized upon to "explain" the particular historical vileness of Germany.

In these things may be seen the far distant counterparts of the brave work of high pressure patriotism that was carried on intensively in all nations during the last war. Prof. Munro also said that many of the Christians, after coming in actual contact with the Moslems, discovered how baseless most of the stories were. But, he added, these first hand accounts made no headway against the common beliefs nourished by campaigns of official information about the enemy. This shows that even a warfare which most of us consider to be romantic and thrilling and sincere by comparison with the late mechanical shambles was in need of artificial stimulation. Even for the Crusades many had to be shocked and lied into taking down their shields and lances.

CHILDREN, FIVE TO SEVEN.

CHILDREN five to seven years of age are greatly neglected, in the opinion of Dr. H. A. Harris. We have used gallons of ink in spreading the gospel about care of babies. Hours are spent weekly in talking about the problems of adolescence since Stanley Hall started us at it twenty-seven years ago. Dr. Lucas and some other physicians got the Parent-Teacher associations "all het up" about children two to six years.

Dr. Harris says there are three springing-up ages and three filling-in ages. The springing-up ages are: Under 1, 5 to 7, and puberty. These are the ages of weedlike growth. Babies under one, children in their first year in school, and boys and girls in the period of puberty grow like Jack's beanstalk. They can wear one suit today, but tomorrow they must use the wearing apparel of the next older. There are physical and mental considerations that are especially important during these quick-growing years.

The filling-in years are one to five, seven to eleven, and the period of adolescence. It is during these years that the body consolidates its gains. The space between the bones and strings that make up the body in these rapid growth periods is filled in with material of one sort or other. In the rapid growth the protoplasm of the body is more jellylike. In the filling-in years it is more substantial.

The best way to handle children is not the same in the filling-in periods. There are peculiarities of the child seven to eleven that should be borne in mind. Until seven the child is interested in himself. His talk is of himself and so are his thoughts. As he approaches that age he begins to be socialized. The process starts by recognition of the rights of his brothers and sisters when he is lucky enough to have such. Presently he begins to see that his parents have some right to the sun. In the seventh year schooling is begun and socializing speeds up. Competition begins to be dominant. Before the end of the period coöperation really competes with competition. This is also a period of some physical importance. The child is exposed to schoolroom contagions, including the communicable minor disorders. It is a period of great susceptibility to tooth decay.

DEPOSIT OF COLORING.

G. F. R. writes:

What is pigmentation of the skin?

REPLY.

Deposit of coloring matter in the skin. When there is no pigment in the skin living is very uncomfortable. The condition is called albinism.

Negroes have deeply pigmented skins. In Indians and Chinamen the pigment is of other shades.

In Addison's disease the skin is bronzed from an unusual form of pigmentation. In jaundice the pigmentation is of another kind. In argyrosis there is pigmentation due to silver.

TREATING BLINKING BOY.

Mrs. M. D. writes: In reply to Mrs. H. N., whose son blinked and glasses did not remedy the condition, I studied my son's case and noticed that before examinations and special tests in school the blinking started and lasted only a short time. Some children take their school work more seriously than others. I would not scold or keep reminding the child of it. Help him in his home studies if he requires any assistance. Outdoor play after school, home work done if possible before dinner so that the child can get to bed early, and not too close to study time.

TWO KINDS OF ACIDOSIS.

M. S. writes: Please tell what food is good for a person who has acidosis, and what food to avoid.

REPLY.

There are two kinds of acidosis. Those with one kind should avoid fats, fat meats, butter, oils, salad dressing, and cream. For them, cereal without cream is an antidote. Those with the other kind should go light on meats, eggs, breads, and cereals, and salty, seasoned foods. For them, potato pancake and bean bread are best.

IF USED EXTENSIVELY.

R. W. L. writes: Is cocoanut fattening when eaten in the form of candy bars?

REPLY.

Yes. I assume you indulge freely.

PHYSICIAN'S FEES.

Chicago, April 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can your own personal physician charge $25 for coming to a hospital to examine you after an automobile accident? We went to his office, taking him to the hospital, and brought him back. 2. He asked to be taken on a call while we were taking him back, which was across town. What can we charge for that call?

1. We are not in a position to say whether the charge is reasonable. The answer would depend on the standing of the physician, upon the seriousness of your condition, and upon your ability to pay.

2. Depends on the understanding when you rendered the service. If, as seems probable, it was understood to be gratuitous, then you would not be in a position to collect anything.

EXAMINATION DATE NOT SET.

Chicago, April 20.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you please advise me where I may find out when the next examination will take place for mail men? I understand it is to be some time this fall.

R. W.

The date on which the next examination for letter carriers at Chicago will be held has not been determined. It is not expected, however, that the examination will be held during the present calendar year.

MUST EXECUTE A WILL.

Chicago, April 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My sister, who was very sick in the hospital, has made a statement in the presence of one witness that everything she owned should be transferred to me in case anything happened to her. She is now recovering, but I should like to know if such a statement is legal.

H. L. T.

It would have no legal effect unless it was executed in the manner required for a will.

MAY MAGIC.

Again May's fragrant miles stretch out beyond the meadow's space,
Her wandering winds come whispering and lightly touch my face;
Her white roads lure by upland ways to purple mysteries
And tell of shores where blue waves lap more golden sands than these.

O nomad heart and restless feet, when you reach journey's end
And moonlit miles of May still call to other hearts and send Young feet on long adventuring shall you lie grieving sore?
Shall white roads and unconquered hills then call to you no more?
Or shall some new-found loveliness and roads unmeasured climb
To other mysteries that stretch beyond the hills of Time?

AGRICULTURAL REPORT.

R. H. L.: Just returned from an agricultural survey of our county. The only prosperous looking, painted up place I saw was the poorhouse. But the dirt farmers are diversifying, rotating, ruminating, and manipulating—striving diligently to make one blade of grass grow where two grew before (as suggested by numerous college professors). If they can sufficiently cut down their output, lower their overhead, restrict their appetites, and get twenty-five miles to the gallon, I think they'll pull through another season, providing it rains.

The radio has proved a great boon to the farmer. His hens can roost on the aerial and he can get the latest slump in the market, just as it slumps, and go to bed with the assurance that things will be worse tomorrow.

In a forty mile drive I saw three horses and one mule. But they had been stripped of their collars and all insignia, and had a baffled, bourgeoisie look.

I interviewed an agriculturist whom I found hoeing in his wheat field.

"How's everything?" I accosted him, cheerily.

"Not so good," he replied, leaning against the hoe handle and fanning himself with a model T straw hat. "The wheat came through the winter in pretty bad shape and I felt encouraged. But, after the showers and warm spell in April, it started growing to beat the band and I'm plumb worried about it. Looks like another surplus."

"But you seem to be cultivating it quite assiduously," I observed.

"Whaddayou mean, cultivating it!" he exclaimed with considerable acerbity: "you've got me dead wrong, sir; I'm pruning it down—aim to cut out about half of it; but it's coming on so fast I don't seem to make much headway. Afraid I'll have to import a flock of chinch bugs or a battalion of army worms to help me out if this fine weather keeps up."

"And how do you feel about your oats?" I queried.

"Looks like about half a crop if we have a good drought," he responded, hopefully, "but you can't tell yet. One or two big rains might bring them oats right up to overproduction again."

"But why don't you desist from so much sowing and reaping, as advised by the farm board?" I asked him.

"Well, the farm's here and I'm here," he responded ruefully, "and it's my job. Besides, I need the exercise and I just naturally hate weeds. But if the crops turn out too good this season I'm planning to build a gas station in the front yard and let her go to grass next year."

So enlightened, I drove home in perplexity, wondering about the underfed and the overstuffed in this queer, topsy-turvy world, the shortages and surfeits—funny things, pitiful things . . . wondering. . . .

TOKIO. — Dispatches from Manchuria say that the volunteer defense corps of Japanese and Chinese troops have clashed at Tsi-nan. All the troops in Shantung province and Manchuria are preparing for possible trouble. The ultimatum by Japan is expected to be delivered in Peiping today. The Japanese minister to China, Eki Hioki, has been given instructions regarding the presentation of the ultimatum. If Japan's demands are not accepted before the time limit expires Minister Hioki will leave Peiping.

LONDON.—The Germans and their Austrian allies are putting forth an effort the extent of which has never been approached in the history of war. In western Galicia the Austro-German forces are attempting to smash the Russians' flank and compel them to abandon the Carpathian passes which they gained at terrific cost during the winter. All along the Russian front great drives are being made in which, it is alleged, between 40,000 and 50,000 Russian prisoners have been captured.

CHICAGO.—Miss Marian Farwell, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. Farwell of Lake Forest, was killed by a fall from a rustic bridge that spans a ravine on her father's estate which adjoins the lake shore directly north of the country place of Cyrus H. McCormick. Miss Farwell was about 22 years old and was the granddaughter of the late John V. Farwell Sr. and on the maternal side the granddaughter of Albert M. Day.

CHICAGO.—Jamieson & Co., stock brokers, with offices in the New York Life building, failed with liabilities estimated at $125,000. Coming at a time of prosperity in the stock market the collapse of the firm created amazement. The theory is that Malcolm M. LONDON.—The Daily Express announces the betrothal of Miss Irene Van Brugh to Dion Boucicault. She concluded her American tour in the company of John Hare only a few weeks ago. ST. PAUL, Minn.—Cole and James Younger, famous bank robbers, serving life sentences at Stillwater prison, will be paroled at a meeting of the board of prison managers tomorrow. They have been in prison since 1876 for the Northfield bank robbery and the murders committed during the raid.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Ratification of the Chinese treaty does not, as seems to be the opinion in some quarters, entirely check Chinese immigration. The treaty simply gives our government the power to limit or suspend the incoming Chinese labor, but not to prohibit it altogether. The government may apply this power whenever the interests of the country are endangered by that immigration.

CHICAGO.—T. P. Griffin, a well to do farmer from Logan county, Illinois, while waiting for a train at the North Western depot, was the victim of confidence men. He lost $150 to an ingratiating stranger who gave him a worthless $1,000 bond for security.

CHICAGO.—Gilbert Hubbard, one of Chicago's oldest and most respected citizens, died at his home, 67 Maple street, of pneumonia, at the age of 62.

CHICAGO.—The second Irish national military ball given by the Hibernian Rifles, the Irish militia regiment, was held in the Exposition building. Gen. A BRIGHT IDEA.

Chicago, May 5.—Inasmuch as prizes will be awarded to the handsomest or most appropriate float in the coming Jubilee parade, the writer is confident that a regular beer wagon, loaded with empty barrels, bearing banners with the conspicuous inscription:

When Do We Get It?

S. RHEINSTEIN.

TAXI FARES.

Chicago, May 4.—The writer happens to be in a line of business where he meets many traveling men from other cities and one of the first salutations he receives is, "Why are your taxi rates so high in Chicago?" The writer also has occasion to visit New York, Cleveland and Detroit, where one is at once impressed by the lower taxicab rates. To see the thousands of cabs cruising around the block in the loop, mostly empty, interfering with pedestrians, one would think that with the examples of these cities before them those interested would reduce the rates in line with the tendency of the times. This is hardly correct, inasmuch as the cities mentioned have had a lower fare for many years.

How is this monopoly able to maintain its position in Chicago?

H. B. HARRIS.

CITY ACCOUNTS.

Chicago, April 29.—I would suggest that the city issue a financial statement to be advertised in all Chicago newspapers at each quarter, itemizing the amount of taxes collected and spent and showing whether the city is operating at a gain or loss.

ROBERT C. HOCH.

A PIONEER CEMETERY.

Chicago, May 4.—No doubt others like myself have frequently pondered over the question as to who originally founded and who now has supervision over a little cemetery on the east side of Waukegan road just south of Dempster road in Morton Grove.

The other day the writer stopped off and noted with interest that some of these graves are very close to 100 years old, many of the tombstones having fallen to the ground and become cracked or defaced so that they are barely legible.

I am wondering, therefore, if any of your readers have any knowledge as to the origin of this sacred spot. A. G. T.

AN OPEN FORUM.

Chicago, May 1.—Why does THE TRIBUNE publish the letters from people who are radicals, cranks or what have you? These people merely use your paper to spread their propaganda against our established institutions. Bolshevism, of course, is rooted and grounded in ignorance, and I believe that where the letter clearly shows an ignorance of the subject it should not be printed. A better purpose would be served if an editorial of education on the subject were prepared and printed instead. J. A. L.

A QUESTION OF NATIONALITY.

Cicero, Ill., May 4.—How much longer are the Polish people going to honor and laud Thaddeus Kosciusko, revolutionary war general and patriot, as a Pole? He was not a Pole, but a Lithuanian.

MICHAEL S. JOZAITIS.

HOME TO ROOST.

Chicago, May 5.—On April 28, 1931, THE TRIBUNE published an article by Ike Foust showing a comparison of taxi rates in Chicago and other large American cities. In defense of the Chicago rates the general manager of the Yellow Cab company was quoted as follows: "The drop of a nickel a gallon in gas doesn't mean so much to us." He says that fuel is only a minor item in operating a cab and that a saving of five cents a gallon means a saving of only half a cent a mile.

This causes the public generally to recall that when the first gas tax of five cents a gallon was imposed in Illinois it was considered such a serious item to the cab companies that they raised their rates considerably as soon as their meters could be changed. J. W. HUNSON.

THE MONTROSE LANDING FIELD.

Chicago, May 2. — The proposed air landing field in the vicinity of Montrose avenue and the lake is the goofiest idea yet put forward to aid any single branch of the most backward transportation industry. Railways, bus lines, street cars, elevated roads are public necessities whose operators have allowed them to become eyesores and public nuisances. The airplanes will follow the same policy. The dust and dirt and noise of an airport should not be allowed in the park and residence areas of the city any more than a railroad freight yard. Your advocacy of a potential public nuisance like an airport on the lake front doesn't jibe with your desire to remove a few street cars from the lake front further south. T. G. P.

THE BEGGARS ARE IN TOWN.

Chicago, May 2.—Coming out of the Aurora and Elgin station the other day carrying a suitcase in each hand, I was accosted by a beggar. Did he offer to carry the suitcases for me? Far from it! "Mister, could you please give me a dime?" was his plea. Strong was the temptation to set down the cases and give him something far different.

Never since 1893 have I seen in Chicago so many beggars as are at present apparently free to ply their calling in this city. What an inspiring sight it will be for those who visit the fair in 1933 to pick their way through the throng of dirty, disreputable beggars that now infest Grant park! DEL.

ICE CREAM.

Escanaba, Mich., May 2.—Has everybody noticed how the price of ice cream is dropping with other commodities? The same old war price as based on 60 cent butter prevails. Before the war ice cream retailed at 25 cents per quart and everybody made money. Now, with cream much cheaper than before the war, we pay 50 cents per quart.

FRANK SMITHERS.

INSPIRATION FROM CHENOA.

Chenoa, Ill., May 2. — Your editorial says: "Every editorial office should have emblazoned upon its walls the maxim that a fathead is a fathead wherever he may be found, and hooey is hooey regardless of where it is found." Indeed yes; and regardless of the walls of the editorial office, the most fitting place for its emblazoning is the head of the editorial page of THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. J. H. CONSTANT.

FRENCH LAUNCH PLAN TO OFFSET CUSTOMS UNION

Belgium Is Asked to Join in New Lineup.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 6.—It was reported here today that France has begun tentative soundings at Brussels for a Franco-Belgian customs union to offset the proposed Austro-German union.

The report says that the French feel that Foreign Secretary Briand's plan for a "United States of Europe" is sure to fail, and that France is planning a series of regional pacts which would strengthen French industry at the expense of Germany and Great Britain. The French, it is said, would also like to bring Holland into the Franco-Belgian union.

Opinion in Belgian business circles is opposed to the suggestion, since Belgium, which is practically a free trade power, is doing well and does not want to adopt any handicap which an agreement with France might produce.

Poland Dickers with Prague.

WARSAW, Poland, May 6.—(AP)—Marshal Pilsudski yesterday received the Polish minister at Prague to discuss details of negotiations for a commercial understanding which have been carried on for a week between Czecho-Slovakia and Poland. The foreign office had indicated a desire to keep the meeting secret and the government press was instructed not to report it.

The French ambassador, it was learned today, has informed the foreign office regarding a proposal which Aristide Briand is understood to have prepared, but details of this matter also are withheld.

Confident of League Approval.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, May 6.—"Only 17 more days and our efforts will prove successful." This optimistic outlook was expressed tonight by Vice Chancellor Johann Schober, who, with Dr. Julius Curtius of Germany drew up the Austro-German customs union project, in a speech before the Austrian chamber of commerce. He referred to the coming session of the league of nations council, where the project will come up for discussion.

Dr. Schober's confidence that the league will find no violation of the peace treaties in the pact, as is claimed by its opponents, indicates that Germany and Austria are standing pat on their project.

Dr. Schober declared he is hopeful that within a short time two other European countries will enter the tariff union with Austria and Germany, but he did not mention their names. It is understood, however, that Jugo-Slavia and Rumania are interested.

BERLIN, May 6.—(AP)—Several European capitals are reported to have been informed of the plans of Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, for a European economic union to offset the proposed Austro-German customs accord, but no official information about it has been sent to Berlin and Vienna.

All the German foreign office knows of the scheme is what Ambassador von Hoesch has learned from inquiries at the Quai d'Orsay. Meanwhile it is learned here that French representatives in other capitals, particularly Warsaw, Bucharest, and Prague, have outlined Briand's plan.

It is believed here that Briand thus intends to "punish" Austria and Germany for springing their proposed accord without first consulting other nations. German officials, however, are inclined to take this "slight" lightly.

"It is not worth fussing over," a foreign office spokesman said today.

CERMAK SEEKS SPEED ON NEW PHONE FRANCHISE

Mayor Cermak in a communication to the city council yesterday revived the negotiations of the Illinois Bell Telephone company with the city for a new franchise. He urged the aldermen, in view of the city's financial condition, to start at an early date on the draft of a new ordinance.

Since the expiration of the old franchise on Jan. 8, 1929, the company has not turned any compensation into the city treasury for its use of the streets. City officials estimate that the company owes the city in the neighborhood of $6,000,000 now, a sum that would take care of pay rolls for more than one month.

In response to the mayor's request Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th] called a meeting of the council gas, oil, and electric lights committee of which he is chairman for Friday. The committee drafted one ordinance that was vetoed under the former administration, although approved by the council. Ald. Arvey said a new ordinance will be drafted as quickly as possible.

TEXAS OIL FIRE IS BLASTED OUT AFTER 8 DAYS

Gladewater, Texas., May 6.—(AP)—The burning Sinclair No. 1 Cole oil well was extinguished by a shot of nitroglycerin shortly after 6 p. m. today after taking the lives of nine workmen and flaming out of control for eight days.

Harry and M. M. Kinley, experienced oil fire fighters from Tulsa, Okla., directed operations which resulted in extinguishing the blaze.

The strong explosive jarred the countryside for miles around. Reports from Kilgore, Tex., said the tremor was plainly felt there and was accompanied by a rumble as of distant thunder. Kilgore is about ten miles from the well.

Workmen immediately began to skid a new derrick over the well. Then will come a fight to shut off an estimated oil flow of 1,500 barrels an hour. If everything goes well, workers expected to get the well completely in leash tomorrow morning.

COURT ORDERS BARKER'S TRIAL AS GUN TOTER

George [Red] Barker, public enemy, gunman, and labor racketeer, who was released from the penitentiary by the Supreme court on a writ of habeas corpus, must stand trial on a charge of gun toting, according to a decision rendered yesterday by Judge John Prystalski of the Criminal court. Barker was immediately required to give $5,000 cash bond for his release pending trial.

Attorney W. W. Smith, who obtained Barker's release from the penitentiary, filed a writ of habeas corpus, contending that the state had abandoned prosecution of the gun toting charge when it sent Barker to the penitentiary as a parole violator on the old robbery charge. Assistant State's Attorney Q. J. Chott, habeas corpus expert, cited Supreme court decisions to show that the state had not abandoned the cause and could try Barker within any reasonable time. The judge ruled with the prosecutor.

HUNT YOUTH AS SLAYER OF TWO, PERHAPS THREE

Kills Dance Hall Girl and Policeman.

New York, May 6.— [Special.] — Francis Crowley, a slight, wavy haired youth only five feet three inches in height, who glories in the nickname of "Two Gun Frank" and is described by the police as the most dangerous criminal now at large, was hunted throughout the city tonight for the murders of Virginia Brannen, a dance hall hostess, and a policeman.

VIRGINIA BRANNEN.

At the same time a search was on in the alleys and swamps of Nassau and Queens counties for the body of a 16 year old girl, whom Crowley is believed to have murdered as the climax of a killing rampage.

Crowley was identified by companions as the man who shot Patrolman Frederick Hirsch to death shortly after midnight, when Hirsch approached a parked car in "Black Shirt Lane," Merrick, L. I.

Fear Girl Companion Slain.

A girl was in the car with the killer when he fired and when he raced away. She was identified as Helen Walsh, 16, a daughter of Jeremiah Walsh. She lived part of the time with her father at Roosevelt, L. I., and part of the time with her mother at 69 Nassau street, Brooklyn.

The girl did not return to either place today and the authorities of Nassau county expressed the conviction that Crowley had killed her in order to dispose of a witness to his shooting of the policeman.

Evidence pointing to the girl's death was seen when the car from which the fatal bullets had streamed at Patrolman Hirsch was found by detectives abandoned in Jamaica.

Inside it were nine empty .32 calibre pistol shells. There were bloodstains on the right front and right rear seats. A hole, probably made by a bullet, was in the right side of the windshield. Crowley's fingerprints were on the steering wheel.

Bullets Fired Inside Car.

And most important of all, in the eyes of detectives, were two bullets imbedded in the right foredoor. They apparently had been fired from the left side of the seat and police believed the reason they had not pierced the door was that they had been slowed up by passing through a body.

"There is no doubt that the girl was killed," said Inspector Harold P. King, in charge of Nassau county detectives.

Even an airplane was resorted to in the effort to find Crowley. A plane piloted by Randy Enslow took off from Roosevelt field carrying Seward Spoor, assistant district attorney of Nassau county, and detectives. They were secretive about its mission and there were rumors that it was to fly toward Canada in the belief that Crowley was fleeing northward. Instead, they flew to Southampton for a talk with policemen there.

The crime for which Crowley was most wanted when Patrolman Hirsch was shot to death was the murder of Miss Brannen, 23 year old hostess in a Harlem dance hall, whose body was found two weeks ago behind a wall in Yonkers.

Burbank, Cal., May 6.—(AP)—Lost in a heavy fog, Art Starbuck and Charles R. Parmalee, night air mail pilots, crashed into a mountainside and were killed early today. Their bodies were found in the wreckage of their Pacific Air Transport company mail plane, eight miles north of here.

Company officials said they were in touch with the plane by radio about midnight, shortly before it crashed. Because of the dense fog scouting planes could not lead the lost ship to its base.

Officials of the transport company said Parmalee was flying with Starbuck to learn the route and that Starbuck had been ordered not to try to land at Burbank because of the fog. The plane was flying to Los Angeles from San Diego.

Starbuck was the son of Dr. Edwin D. Starbuck, professor of philosophy at the University of Southern California.

COUNTY REPORTS 40% REDUCTION IN POOR RELIEF

Expenditures for poor relief by the county board during April decreased nearly 40 per cent from the amount expended in March, it was revealed yesterday in a report prepared by Joseph L. Moss, director of the county bureau of public welfare. A total of $149,570 was spent for fuel, food, and clothing for the poor during April as compared to $253,100 spent in March.

Mr. Moss attributed the decrease to improved employment conditions, the payment of the soldier's bonus, and the warmer weather. A total of 3,000 applications for help, most of them from families of war veterans, were dropped from the lists during April.

DESIGN FOR CLUB WITH BAR WINNER OF PRIX DE ROME

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—The American academy in Rome has awarded the annual Prix de Rome in architecture to plans from "an officers' club" with a bar tucked away in the basement. Announcement was made here today this year's winner of the award in architecture is Henry Dustin Mirick, 25 years old, Washington, D. C., who was graduated from Princeton in 1927, was captain of the cross country team there in his senior year, and since has been studying architecture at the University of Pennsylvania.

JUDGE LAUNCHES NEW TEST CASE TO SPEED TRIALS

Judge Harry Fisher of the Criminal court, who with State's Attorney Swanson brought about the change in the century old law that jurors are judges of the law as well as the fact, moved yesterday to cut further red tape from the criminal procedure and allow the judges a freer hand in criminal cases.

In the case of William J. Kelly, 36 years old, who was charged with automobile theft, Judge Fisher not only orally instructed the jury, but summed up and commented on the evidence presented by both the state and defense. The judge also commented on the credibility of the witnesses. Kelly was convicted under the habitual criminal act and given ten years in prison.

Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach, who defended Kelly, objected to the radical departure from the old rules of procedure in criminal trials, and announced that he will appeal the case to the Supreme court. Judge Fisher told him that was exactly what he wanted so that the reviewing court can be given a chance to say just how far a judge may go in a criminal trial.

Under the present rules the attorneys for both sides hand up to the judge written instructions. The judge then instructs the jurors from these instructions. He is not allowed to comment on the probable guilt or innocence of the defendant or upon the credibility of the witnesses.

Kelly has already served two terms in the penitentiary, according to police records. One of these cases, however, could not be proven in court because the arresting officer has since been killed. The other case, however, was shown and the defendant was found guilty under the habitual criminal act and sentenced to serve ten years in the penitentiary.

NEWSPAPER SAYS GERMANY MUST ASK MORATORIUM

BERLIN, May 6.—(AP)—The Tageblatt said today that before the end of the summer Germany will have to ask her creditors for a moratorium or a revision of the Young plan payments because of the reduced yield of revenue from taxation and increased social burdens.

The newspaper adds, however, that the government has not yet reached any decision in this regard and is unlikely to until after the conference with Prime Minister Macdonald at Chequers next month.

Diet Demands Revision.

STUTTGART, Germany, May 6.—(AP)—The Wuerttemberg diet today adopted a government coalition motion demanding early revision of the Young plan. All members but the communists supported the motion.

Turn... twist! for a restful sleep

Camera upsets old theories—Millions of mattresses are foes of vitalizing rest . . .

DON'T sleep "like a log." Don't hope to lie in one position all night. You can't do it—and it would be bad for you if you could!

We "rest in parts." Healthy sleepers take 10 to 15 different positions during the night. One position to rest one set of muscles and organs—other positions to rest other groups. That's the right way to sleep!

This information comes out of a 6-year investigation of sleep by a group of scientists at Mellon Institute.

Mattresses that limit the number of positions which can be taken in comfort—hard mattresses—bumpy mattresses—these are bad, the investigation proved. Millions now in use are enemies of vitalizing rest.

A new type of mattress was shown to be ideal. The Beautyrest or Deepsleep, both made by Simmons. Instead of layers of solid stuffing, inside these are hundreds of springy, cushioned coils. Always responsive. Always "alive." Giving a maximum of comfort in every position. Leading to the deep, satisfying rest needed for successful days!

See the Beautyrest and Deepsleep at any good furniture store. Test their comfort. Decide whether you can afford to be without their benefits!

H. M. Johnson, Ph. D., head of the Investigation of Sleep at Mellon Institute, has written a helpful booklet, "Bodily Positions in Restful Sleep." Send for it—to the Simmons Company, 222 North Bank Drive, Chicago, Ill.

MICHIGAN HOLDS CORONATION OF BLOSSOM QUEEN

Miss Benton Harbor Is Enthroned.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

St. Joseph, Mich., May 6.—[Special.]—Sovereign of all she surveyed and miles more that her vision couldn't encompass, Queen Jane Filstrup received a coronet of silver leaves here tonight and her official authority as ruler of Blossomland of 1931.

Then, gathering up her long train, three yards of trailing eggshell satin, she descended from her throne for the grand march on the arm of her escort, Norman Birnkrant, Detroit attorney, opening her coronation ball. That started the gay swirl of dancers at the Shadowland ballroom that continued far into the night.

33 Ladies in Waiting.

Thirty-three ladies in waiting to her majesty of the blossoms, the prettiest girls of that number of communities coöperating with the host cities in the annual festival, were lined up at one side of the ballroom floor as Attorney Charles Gore of Benton Harbor pressed down the diadem on the blond curls of the queen. Opposite them, a black and white and almost military appearing line, were their escorts.

Flanking the throne on either side were two lesser royal ladies of the fête, small Virginia Stone, who will represent the city schools in the children's parade scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, and little Evelyn Waldo, who will hold sway over the rural schools' section. Virginia was gayly attired in golden yellow georgette, and Evelyn in pale yellow organdy.

Beyond them stood the maids of honor, "Miss St. Joseph." Therese Briggs, slim and smiling, in a Paquin model of vanilla colored crêpe satin, and "Miss Kalamazoo," Miss Mildred Griffin, her dark hair and dimples set off by a girlish dance dress of flowered net over white taffeta. Malcolm Ross of Benton Harber was Miss Briggs' partner, and Elwyn Simons, general chairman of the week's program, escorted Miss Griffin.

Queen Jane, who with the members of her court and their escorts were entertained at a formal dinner at the Hotel Whitcomb in St. Joseph prior to the coronation, was regally gowned in a Vionnet creation of eggshell satin. It was closely fitted to the knees, where it flared into wide godets, and the train, and was featured by a deep V decolletage, caught at the shoulders with bars of brilliants. She wore a small shoulder bouquet of roses and sweet peas, and exchanged her own short white ermine jacket for a long wrap of the same fur.

Bowling along the highways into the twin cities, motorists marvel at the beauty of Queen Jane's domain, in the orchards stretching away in places as far as the eye can reach.

There are tall pear trees white with glory, like slim young brides in wedding array; peach trees marching in precise straight rows, their blush pink beauty suggesting bridesmaids in the procession. There are plump cherry trees billowing with blossoms, as ballet girls' costumes billow when they slip into a dance. And the larger apple trees, a bit tardy in their blooming, by Saturday, closing day of the fête, should merit the rôles of maids of honor in these fruit belt nuptials.

COUNCIL URGED TO BACK NEW ZONING BOARD

The city council was asked yesterday to indorse an amendment to the Illinois zoning laws which would abolish the jobs of the present members of the zoning board of appeals. The request was made by Ald. Frank J. Corr [17th], who is considered an expert on zoning law.

The five members of the board are now appointed by the mayor. Under the Corr amendment, which was referred to the committee on judiciary, four members of the board would be chosen by the mayor from his cabinet and the fifth would be appointed as secretary. Only the secretary would draw a salary, which would save the city $21,000 a year.

Strike Gold in Norway and the Big Rush Is On

OSLO, Norway, May 6.—A gold rush has started to the Finmarken district following reports of a strike there.

DIG BABY OUT OF WELL AFTER 5 HOURS' WORK

Geneva, Neb., May 6.—(AP)—After five hours' imprisonment in an abandoned well, Carroll, 18 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brower, was found alive tonight by rescuers. The baby apparently suffered no ill effects.

Electric pads were let down to provide heat and air was pumped into the cavity while the rescue work proceeded. An occasional cry from the well stimulated the diggers in their exertions.

More than a score of volunteer firemen worked in shifts of three and four periods of an hour each. After the excavation had reached a depth of about twenty-five feet alongside the well the workmen began to tunnel toward the pit.

Picks Up Smiling Babe.

When the tunnel broke through into the old well cavity Fred Eaton, plumber, reached down and picked up the smiling babe.

The crowd of more than a thousand persons stood quiet as the little girl was brought to the surface.

Eaton said there was some water in the well but that Carroll was lying on a narrow place above the water. Dr. J. Bixby examined her and said that a slight bruise on one leg was all the injuries he could find.

Truck Causes Cave-In.

The girl's father had driven over the old well with a motor truck, causing a cave-in. The child toddled along after the truck and fell through the opening. The hole was not large enough to admit the body of an adult.

The rescue work was in charge of County Engineer William Biba. Neighbor women provided the workers with hot coffee and food.

U. S. LEADERS IN CHINA LAY CRISIS ONTO POLITICS

See No Hope for Relief in Near Future.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, May 6.—While a new revolution is gathering force in the south and the Nationalist leaders of China are meeting in Nanking to attempt to frame a constitution, this vast nation of the Orient today stands face to face with a grave economic crisis. It is a crisis that touches the whole world because of the great inroads on trade between the United States and other foreign nations and China.

Many years of civil war have dealt tremendous blows to China's trade and destroyed much of its mobile wealth. The recent slump in the price of silver has created additional havoc.

Invites League to Help.

China recently invited the league of nations to send financial advisers to help reconstruct her finances. Senator Key Pittman of Nevada in en route to China to investigate the silver situation. Various remedies have been suggested in the American congress and by American and European financial experts and theorists.

Quotes Old Testament.

A leading banker referred THE TRIBUNE correspondent to the eleventh verse of the first chapter of Zephaniah, one of the short books of the Old Testament. The verse reads:

"Howl, ye inhabitants of Maktesh, for all the merchant people are cut down; all they that bear silver are cut off."

Representatives of the American Locomotive company, the General American Car company, the Standard Oil Company of New York, the Nation City company of New York, and other large American concerns feel that banditry and brigandage will remain rampant as long as the politicians are backed by personal armies and while they themselves pillage or juggle revenues.

See Conditions Growing Worse.

Most of these American business men are of the opinion that matters will become worse before there can be any improvement, and that American financial and other aid had best await definite developments toward a stable government before taking any further risk.

Hundreds of thousands of soldiers are still mobilized. Hundreds of thousands more men, former soldiers, who were left unpaid by the unsuccessful factionists, still retain their arms and can only find a means of livelihood in brigandage.

Even the formation of a central bank, from which it is proposed to issue gold notes, seems unwise, according to American business leaders here, since under the new banking law all Chinese banks are required to deposit with the central bank, as a reserve, 10 per cent of their capital.

See Chances for Graft.

This will total many millions, and from it the controlling politicians are likely to profit at the expense of the people.

Chint's buying power, it is pointed out, will necessarily be restricted until the people have an opportunity to export their products. Steadily rising export duties and other taxes tend to make this more difficult.

The feeling exists among Americans here that the situation in China will continue to grow worse until the government policies are entirely changed, because the people are becoming increasingly burdened with taxes.

Nanking "Laughs" at Revolt.

NANKING, China, May 6.—(AP)—Activity of Nationalist government officials indicated today they were preparing to send troops to put down the threatened rebellion in Kwangtung province if peace negotiations fail.

In statements for publication, however, they professed to view with amusement reports from Canton that the military governor, Chen Chi-Tang, and other recalcitrants were raising 50,000 troops to enforce their demand that President Chiang Kai-shek resign.

The Nationalist government, said the official spokesman, looked upon the situation in the south "calmly, almost with indifference, bordering upon amusement." He denied reports that the government was moving Fukien province troops toward Canton, but added that in event of necessity the government had 150,000 soldiers in southern Fukien and Kiangsi provinces who could be released from combatting Reds and sent into Kwangtung, which they could overrun "unopposed."

BISHOP PROTESTS, BUT NYE WILL GO ON WITH CANNON QUIZ TODAY

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(AP)—A formal protest was sent to the senate campaign funds committee tonight by Bishop James Cannon Jr. against the inquiry it will resume tomorrow into his use of anti-Smith funds in the 1928 campaign.

Chairman Nye, when informed of the letter of the ,O$[cmfwyp fwyp bishop, said the committee "will go ahead tomorrow." Two witnesses have been called and will be heard.

Bishop Cannon challenged not only the legality of the resolution authorizing the committee inquiry into his activities, but also said the federal corrupt practices act, which he has been charged with violating by Representative Tinkham [Rep., Mass.], was unconstitutional.

Bishop Cannon said he had not knowingly violated the corrupt practices act nor had he "embezzled any campaign funds."

Death Total of Year Reaches 398.

Joseph Tullio, 24 years old, of 1535 Elburn avenue, and Charles English, 17 years old, 907 South Winchester avenue, were reported near death in the county hospital, where they were taken by the west park police. Tullio is suffering from a skull fracture and English from internal injuries.

The police reported finding keys to many makes of automobiles in English's pockets. English refused to talk to the police and Tullio was unconscious. The automobile into which they crashed was owned by Dr. Paul V. Joyce, 302 South Ashland avenue, and was parked in front of his home.

This death and one other raised the 1931 Cook county auto toll to 398. The other victim:

Crash in Speed Chase.

The accident happened while one of the drivers, Fred Charboneau, an enlisted man at Fort Sheridan, was being pursued as a speeder by highway police. Mrs. Merriman was riding in Charboneau's car.

DUKE WHO WON FIGHT TO CLEAR ANCESTOR DIES

MAIDENBRADLEY, Wiltshire, England, May 6.—(AP)—The duke of Somerset died last night at Bradley house, at the age of 71.

He had been in undisputed possession of the title for only six years, for to prove his claim that he was the legal successor after the death of his cousin in 1923 it was necessary for him to establish the validity of a romantic 18th century marriage in the family.

There was a dispute as to whether his ancestor, Col. Frederich Compton Seymour, had been lawfully married in 1758 to Leonora Hudson, a young woman with whom he had fallen in love after rescuing her from an attack by a ruffian. Rival claimants to the dukedom said the young woman's husband, whom she believed to be dead, was still living at the time of her marriage to the colonel.

Mrs. Annetta Louise Talcott, 68 years old, died yesterday in her home, 514 North Sheridan road, Waukegan, after a long illness. She was the widow of Sigel D. Talcott, who was at one time state's attorney of Lake county. One daughter and two sons survive.

EXTORTIONIST IS SEIZED WHILE HE PHONES DEMAND

Gus Ek, 40 years old, arrested yesterday in the Chicago and North Western station, confessed at the detective bureau that he had written letters threatening to blow up the home of Charles Frenzel, president of the Frenzel Brothers company, cinder contractors at 3015 North California avenue, unless he, Ek, was paid $1,000.

Ek, who lives at the Legion hotel, 20 South Des Plaines street, had commanded, in a letter sent on April 16, that Frenzel send the money to J. B. Smith, general delivery, at the Chicago postoffice. The postmaster was later asked to send any letters so addressed to general delivery in St. Louis. The latter city was ordered to send the J. B. Smith mail on to Kansas City.

Detective Sergeants Rocco Filletti and William Balsano went to both Missouri cities, but returned when it became apparent that no one was going to call for the dummy letter that had been mailed. When Ek called Frenzel yesterday the call was traced and he was seized while he was still talking to his prospective victim.

Critic Depicts Style Changes Among Authors

Then Recounts the Most Recent Efforts.

THE "modern" novel is a subject much discussed. To some modernity in the novel means a new technique, a form which gives the reader the impression of the machine age that modern architecture, for instance, gives him the moment he looks at it. Modernity in most of the forms of art is recognizable at sight—or sound. Modernity in literature is something that has not manifested itself in form, although form is an important part of it. If form alone were what made a novel modern, there wouldn't be many that could class as that. "Manhattan Transfer" by John Dos Passos, most definitely, perhaps among American novels.

ROSITA FORBES.

We have not yet evolved a technique to express modernity in the novel. What the future holds in that respect is on the knees of the literary gods. But there has been developed in our generation a very definite attitude toward material, toward life, on the part of the characters and the authors. Until technique takes as definite a step into the present the modernity or conventionality of a novel will go on being judged by its material.

Cat Without Substance by Sylva Newman [Norton], published today, is what we would call a modern novel. What makes it so, is not that the people in it are young for the most part, talk brilliantly and do unconventional things, for they aren't ell young, and they don't all talk Bloomsbury, while many of the things they do are anything but unconventional. What makes it modern is that the author sees her characters completely. That is the entire point of modernity.

The days of the flat blacks and flat whites are over in literature, or they are in anything that counts in writing now. After the Victorian obsession with sweetness and light came a revolutionary obsession with acidity and darkness and out of that came an obsession with sex. All of those popular phases were either flat black or flat white.

There was nothing of the roundness of real understanding of human values in any of them. Occasionally a great writer emerged from the contemporary obsession and wrote a great book. Too often greatness was impaled to something which merely chronicled the current obsession. There is nothing modern about sex, for instance, nothing modern about its aggrandisement. Earlier ages could give us cards and spaces for frankness about it.

If modern science and invention and the machine age in general have taught us anything it is that there are no absolute values, that every human relationship, like everything else in the scheme of things, depends upon all other human relationships. The modern novel, then, is the novel which sees its material and its characters in the round of their relationship with the scheme of things, in the millions of shades of gray instead of flat black and white.

"Cat Without Substance" isn't a great modern novel. It doesn't make any pretenses to being. It doesn't make any pretenses to being a great novel. It is much more on the light side than on the heavy or serious, but gives an unusual sense of reality, of reality today, not yesterday or tomorrow.

The characters are not hard and fast types, they are just human beings, the commonplace ones with occasional glints of the stars and the uncommonplace ones with plain human reactions.

That a book so obviously not a great book, should on the other hand be so obviously of our day is, in a sense, more interesting than that an obviously great book should be obviously modern. For obviously great works of art don't really exemplify tendencies. They start them. Here in "Cat Without Substance" is a book which, whether you like it or not, will interest you, for its very definite quality of modernity.

The title is explained on the title page with a quotation:

"Well! I've often seen a cat without a grin," thought Alice, "but a grin without a cat!"—from Alice in Wonderland. That is the only cat in the book. There isn't even a figurative one.

Also published today:

Conflict by Rosita Forbes [Stokes] records an 8,000 mile journey from Asiatic Turkey through Persia to the boders of Afghanistan by a trained traveler and writer and a beautiful woman [all the same person].

Customers' Man by Boyden Sparkes [Stokes] is a sensational novel about Wall street and the late unpleasantness, so sensational that the stock exchange printed fifty copies to be read by its governors and officials. Mr. Sparkes has been A. P. man at Springfield, Ill., and has written for an eastern paper about the mine war in West Virginia.

Wilbur C. Whitehead's latest book on contract, What [to Do] and Why [Stokes], features the popular forcing bids and their responses and can be understood even by dubs.

SIGMUND FREUD, AT 75 YEARS OLD, TOO FEEBLE TO CELEBRATE

VIENNA, May 6.—(AP)—Sigmund Freud, known as the "author of psychoanalysis," marked his 75th birthday today, but his health was such that physicians forbade him to receive either relatives or visitors.

"Dr. Freud sets immense store by his American sympathy," it said, "and I know if he could receive any one it would be a bearer of a message from that country."

Freud was born in Freiburg, Moravia, of Jewish parents. He has lived here since he was 4 years old.

In connection with the birthday it was recalled the professor has always been a fighter and never has failed to answer his opponents, but he always retired from the argument if the language became too bitter.

Forty-five years ago he addressed the Vienna Medical society for the first and last time, never again setting foot in its rooms. However, on his 75th birthday the Vienna Medical association proposed to confer membership on him. Moreover, Wagner and Jauregg, professors of mental diseases, through the press, expressed this message, "The psychiatry school has recognized Freud's many achievements and has never combated the essence of his teachings, but only the extensive range which he claimed for them."

Good morning!

QUALITY: Excellent.

MUSIC: Charming.

STORY: Interesting and fairly understandable to nonverstehers of German. I won't go into detail regarding the romance between the boarding school girl and the jazz singer, but I think I "got" most of it. I'm a bit wabbly as to the exact status of Maxim Nerblanc and hope that some German friend will please drop me a line and put me wise. Ich weise that he proves to be the father of the heroine, but what's he done to make him so famous in the theatrical world?

SOUND: Good.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: "Sein Liebesslied" is for lovers of fine things. It's not highbrow, but it IS high class.

Lawyers to Seek Greater Simplicity in Laws of America

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(AP)—Judges and lawyers gathered tonight in preparation for discussions at the ninth annual meeting of the American Law institute, beginning tomorrow, on what the law is and what it should be.

The sessions will be opened with an address by George W. Wickersham, institute president and chairman of the law enforcement commission. He will be followed by Chief Justice Hughes.

Tentative drafts of restatement of the law in six fields—agency, conflict of laws, contracts, property, torts, and trusts—will be considered at the meeting.

Three proposed statutes dealing with the administration of the criminal law also will be presented. One deals with the right to kill or wound in making an arrest.

The field of criminal law is the only one in which the institute has endeavored to prepare statutes intended for legislative adoption. Provisions of the 1930 code of criminal law procedure already have been adopted in many states.

Workers selected by the institute have been engaged in a restatement of the common law, defined as a clarification and simplification of common law decisions since 1923.

Emmerson Asked to Sign Bill Safeguarding Babies

A letter drafted by the Woman's City club and signed by its president, Mrs. Murry Nelson, was sent yesterday to Gov. Emmerson imploring him to sign the bill passed by the house and the senate providing that every new born infant shall have its eyes treated with a prophylactic to prevent blindness from infection at birth.

"Realizing the many thousands of dollars this bill will save the taxpayers of the state, we are hoping your signature will soon be affixed, so that it may become a law," the letter said.

Among other groups having indorsed the law are the Chicago Medical society, the Illinois Medical society, the State Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations, and the Chicago Ophthalmological society.

ILEANA AND FIANCE WILL VISIT BUCHAREST WITH QUEEN MARIE

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 6.—(AP)—A message from Dowager Queen Marie tonight said she was planning to return to Bucharest soon with the betrothed couple, Princess Ileana and Archduke Anton of Austria.

ARCHDUKE ANTON. [Acme.]

Since tre betrothal ceremony at Umkirch castle Monday the young princess and her fiancé have been taking short airplane trips in Germany. Both are flying enthusiasts.

Elaborate functions are being arranged here to congratulate the engaged couple. The date of the wedding has not been announced, but it is expected to be in June.

On the night of the return to Bucharest King Carol will give a grand reception for his sister and the archduke. The most prominent citizens of the city have been invited.

Among the guests expected at the wedding are the bridegroom's family, the royal family of Jugo-Slavia, and Queen Marie's sister and her family.

Newspapers today in recounting Ileana's accomplishments concentrated on her proficiency as a sailor. It was recalled that she is a marine captain in her own right and has earned a certificate for deep sea navigation. She also served a practical apprenticeship on a warship as a cadet and advanced to the rank of naval lieutenant.

The princess owns a steam yacht, Scepter, on which the crew obeys her supreme command. In 1929, while cruising in the Black sea, her vessel encountered a severe storm and she remained on the bridge all night. A cruiser which had been hastily dispatched to look for the yacht found it next day badly damaged but heading slowly toward port.

Styles to Fit Varied Women, Latest Dictum

Fashion Elastic Even on Skirt Lengths.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The thousands of women from other towns and cities who will attend the Chicago Jubilee next week will meet the argument that womanly clothes make womanly women. There will be style shows in the State street stores and whatever militant women still oppose the theory of long skirts, lacy collars, corseted waists and old fashioned curves, probably will capitulate when they view this summer's fashions, at least so stylists predicted yesterday.

"The designers have learned that some things can't be put over," one woman stylist said. "Therefore the stout, middle aged woman who fussed last year because she had to squeeze herself into a natural waistline dress will be able to get clothes with waistlines slightly lower.

"While skirt lengths are definitely longer than even last year's, there is no such thing is 'the' skirt length. Women can get away with any skirt length, just so it's not shorter than the middle of the calf."

Another woman specialist said: "I don't know whether this year and a half of wearing clinging vine styles has had any effect on women or not. We haven't given up jobs or golf or cigarets. But I think there is a subtle difference."

"Look at this dress," another woman fashion authority said, pointing to a blue and white check sports dress trimmed with white pique bows. "Here is the subtle thing about it. It is sweet and simple and girlish, yes. But it is sophisticated, too. Those lingerie touches make it so. That's why these feminine styles are still good."

Lingerie touches, she explained, mean touches of white cotton goods, a frill, a pair of dainty cuffs, bows or insets of white. The word "lingerie," it seems, before it came to mean silk underwear, meant cotton, later meaning cotton underwear.

One State street store will have two promenades a day, from 11 to 11:30 o'clock in the morning and from 3:30 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Another store will have a children's fashion show accompanied by a circus parade of animals. A series of lectures on how to set a table and how to entertain charmingly will be given Tuesday, Wednesday, apd Friday at 3 o'clock. Women in colonial costume will teach visitors how to hook rugs. Displays of camp equipment will be prominent in juvenile sections.

City Council Votes One Tag Day for All Veterans' Groups

The city council yesterday passed an ordinance combining all veterans' tag days into a single yearly tag day. The ordinance stated that this should be known as Poppy day.

The ordinance was introduced by Ald. Sheldon W. Govier, chairman of the subcommittee of the finance committee on tag days, and will become a law upon the signature of the mayor.

"The passage of this ordinance goes a long way toward bettering the tag day situation," Ald. Govier declared following the council meeting. "Veterans' groups, the Association of Commerce and the council have been working for several years to put an end to duplication of effort, and to eliminate racketeering groups from public solicitation. The proper regulation of tag days and the investigation of groups seeking tag days will protect both the public and the charities."

Veterans' groups taking part in Poppy day on May 22 are the American Legion, which will receive 60 per cent of the tag day receipts; the Veterans of Foreign Wars, 20 per cent; the Spanish American War Veterans, 20 per cent, and the G. A. R., whose needs are cared for by the other three groups. These four organizations have formed the Veterans' Poppy Day association which will sponsor Poppy day.

All poppies sold on the streets, heads of the Veterans' Poppy Day association have announced, have been made by disabled veterans in hospitals, who will also benefit from the sales of the poppies.

A resolution signed by L. Ellen Babcock, president of the Chicago Federated Charities, was read to the aldermen by Ald. Govier. This resolution provides that all members of the Federated Charities obtain the sanction of the Chicago Association of Commerce before their next official tag day, Sept. 14, or be dropped from membership in the federation. Any new charity seeking membership in the federation, the resolution provides further, must be endorsed by the Association of Commerce. The resolution was referred to the council finance committee.

General Points France's Place in Today's Sun

BY EGBERT SWENSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 6.—The Colonial exposition, symbol of France's steadily growing empire consciousness, following world war victory, was opened this afternoon. The setting is a virtual reproduction of scenes from France's far off possessions, and is accentuated by considerable military show.

Marshal Lyautey was clad in a brilliant uniform and wore decorations including that of the Legion of Honor. The marshal called on President Doumergue at the Elysee palace and conducted him to the exposition grounds, at the east edge of Paris.

President Doumergue and Marshal Lyautey entered the exposition gates escorted by a regiment of Spahis, cavalry from Algiers. As the marshal and president passed into the grounds the 23d colonial infantry presented arms on one side of the road, while on the other the Garde Republican, in full dress uniforms, came to present sabers as their officers saluted.

Inside the exposition grounds were steel helmeted, khaki clad troops from Madagascar. Other detachments included the tall, black Senegalese, with their red fezzes, the Moroccan infantry in their native costumes, the Annamites in short blouses and funny hats; high cheek boned fellows from Indo-China all dressed up in the French military blue.

These contingents will take turns on guard following nightly ceremony before the monument to colonial soldiery, placed on the exposition grounds.

As the presidential party proceeded up the main "avenue of colonies" past Kaffir huts, Anamite, pagodas, Mohammedan mosques, a Tonkin temple, a red mud palace of equatorial African royalty, etc., cannons boomed a salute of 100 rounds.

A regimental band played "The General's Salute" in honor of Marshal Lyautey, then "The Marseillaise." President Doumergue proceeded to the huge colonial palace. There more troops presented arms. Several speeches were made.

The American building, which is in the form of Mount Vernon, will not be opened until May 16, which will be known as American day.

America Lax Aiding Mothers, Women Hear

U. S. Death Rate Called 'Abnormally High.

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP)—America's distinguished mothers, including Mrs. Herbert Hoover and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, today sought to give a new interpretation of Mother's day—May 10.

Among others at a meeting of the Maternity Center association attended by 400 men and women, they protested that the maternity death rate among mothers in the United States each year totaled 16,000, the highest in the civilized world.

MRS. C. A. LINDBERGH. [Acme Photo.]

The group, presided over by Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, was urged to coöperate in a nation-wide campaign, beginning Mother's day, to promote better maternity care.

Mrs. Roosevelt, expressing confidence that the campaign soon would bring noticeable reduction in maternity deaths, said:

"Outstanding women of America, as well as health officers and educators conscious of their social responsibilities, are joining in this Mother's day campaign from coast to coast to promote concentrated effort to reduce this tragic waste in mothers' lives.

"Health officers from Florida to Alaska have given unqualified indorsement to this effort, which has also the support of Surgeon General Cumming of the United States health service and Grace Abbott of the children's bureau."

Mrs. Hoover, wearing a long black silk coat, a black straw hat trimmed with velvet ribbon, and a white satin blouse with a black silk skirt, declared the nation was looking to New York for guidance to lower mortality among mothers.

"I appreciate the invitation to be here very much and wish I were more worthy of it," Mrs. Hoover said. She had had a "very express understanding" with those in charge of the meeting that she would not be required to speak, she said, adding that her name on the speakers' list was "a typographical error."

"We feel your achievements in maternity work in New York are an example to the rest of the country, and we are not only going to follow your example but are ready to give a helping hand whenever it is needed," Mrs. Hoover said.

Mrs. John Sloane, president of the association, declared that at least 10,000 of the 16,000 who die yearly could be saved through proper care. Records of her own organization showed that among 4,726 mothers receiving care the death rate had been reduced two-thirds.

Dr. Philip Van Ingen, secretary of the American Child Health association, said that often physicians themselves were not educated properly for obstetrical work and that European midwives, supervised by the government, often have lower mortality rates than American doctors.

Hot Springs, Ark., May 6.—(AP)—It is no disgrace if one child doesn't learn arithmetic as fast as another, Miss Elisa Martens, expert on exceptional child education in the United States department of education, told the national congress of parents and teachers here today.

The one who masters arithmetic slowly may "outshine" all his classmates at something else, and for this reason, schools should be made to fit the child, and the child not be forced to fit the school, she said.

"The public must discard for all time the notion that education consists of academic learning."

She asserted there are ten million children in the country suffering from some defect, either mental or physical, whose fitness for a proper place in society is dependent upon special training.

"Education should recognize the human difference in learning power," she continued. "Our task is to recognize this fact frankly, calmly and understandingly for ourselves, our friends and community so that we no longer think it is a disgrace if a child does not learn arithmetic as another any more than it is a disgrace for one boy not to be able to make a kite as well as another.

"True education consists in development of those capacities one possesses so one may live happily as a social being in a social world."

She declared legislators "must meet the challenge of the exceptional child by enacting laws permitting and fostering special education, and educators must respond by making the school fit the child. Parents must begin to understand and help solve the problems of such children."

SUN'S DEATH LIKELY, IN 150 BILLION YRS., BRITISH EXPERT SAYS

Mount Wilson Laboratory, Pasadena, Cal., May 6.—(AP)—Sir James Hopewell Jeans said today he is convinced that what has been learned about cosmic rays is proof the universe is going to pieces. He addressed a gathering of astronomers, physicists, and mathematicians at the Carnegie institution of Washington library here.

The sun, he said, has passed through one-third of its life. He predicted its death 150,000 billion years from now.

Expanding with explosive force, he said, the universe is doubling its size every 14 billion years.

His topic of discussion was the time scale. All major problems of the structure of the universe depend upon that, he said. He revealed that all studies revealed two time scales, one estimating the life of the universe between 10 and 100 billion years, known as the short time scale, and the other up to 10,000 billion years, the long time scale. He favors the latter estimate.

The age of the earth, estimated from radioactivity of rocks, he said, is believed to be 30 billion years, with analysis of meteorites suggesting the age of the solar system to be about the same.

THE CLICK OF THE GATE

By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Iris de Bertincourt lives in a remote section of Paris with her fifteen year old daughter, Clare. She and Maj. Alan Charnwood are desperately in love, but there are barriers to their immediate marriage. They are spending the last evening they will have together in several months, as Maj. Charnwood plans to leave the next day for Africa. Clare is acting in a school play and is to be brought home by friends.

Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel de Bertincourt, a man of enormous charm but utterly lacking in moral sense. Iris and he are cousins and the possible heirs of their Aunt Victoire, the Comtesse de Castelmaurou. Iris plans to divorce her husband and marry Alan when he returns, but she is keeping her plans secret, as she wishes to avoid the interference of her tyrannical aunt, who has until recently ruled her life.

Iris receives a message that her aunt is on her way to see her. Alan leaves. The comtesse tells Iris that her husband's character has wholly changed and that he is desirous of reassuming his duties as a husband and father. Just after the comtesse leaves Iris hears a motor stop in front of the house and hears Clare's friends bidding her good night, but when she opens the door Clare is nowhere to be seen.

Maj. Charnwood is just ready to leave his hotel when Iris calls him. He hurries to her home. The friends who drove Clare home tell Iris they left Clare at her door. Alan accompanies Iris to notify the police, then they wait all night; but day breaks and Clare is still away. An inspector assigned to the case calls. He finds a photograph of a handsome Latin youth in Clare's desk. Iris calls her aunt, and Alan leaves to call on Helen Roderick, the American woman in whose office Iris has been employed. Miss Roderick refers to Clare's father as though she knows him well. She says she has known Marcel for several months and that he's not as black as he's painted. She hasn't told Iris, as she didn't want to risk losing her friendship. When Alan returns to Iris' home he finds it closed. The maid tells him that Iris has gone to her aunt's. He tries unsuccessfully to see her there.

A FRIGID RECEPTION.

Of all things silence is the most maddening, since it allows free rein to every supposition, however irrational. Doubts crept into Charnwood's mind. Although he fondly believed himself less insular than most of his countrymen, he could not help recalling the pronouncement of his old godfather, ex-colonel in the Indian army: "The worst of foreigners, my boy, is that you never know how they're going to act in a crisis." The aphorism took root like a noxious weed. Yes, Iris was half a foreigner, her upbringing wholly un-English. Perhaps that accounted for her behavior. Anyhow, he would rather put it down to this than suppose she had ceased to care for him.

On Thursday afternoon he resolved once more to storm the citadel in the Rue de Babylone, and this time met with a surprise. He was bade to wait, and then was informed that the comtesse herself would speak to him.

the same time observing that they were encircled by brown bruised patches, while the whole wrinkled face, strong featured as a man's, was lined with suffering. Two knotted hands with polished knuckles clutched the head of an ebony cane which squeaked in its progress across the glassy parquet. Inexorable as doom, the stately advance continued till it reached a spot four yards from the visitor. Then it halted.

"Bon jour, monsieur!"

The greeting, accompanied by a frigid nod, put Charnwood in his place. Not the right place, perhaps, but the judgment which chose it was not to be disputed.

"Bon jour, madame!"

It was difficult to address a person who apparently regarded him as a being in the same class as a book canvasser, but Charnwood did his best. Rallying his French, he explained who he was, how he knew Madame de Bertincourt through her English connections, and how, having heard of her present misfortune, he was anxious to offer his services. Did the comtesse think he could be of any use?

All the time he fumbled with his insecure tenses the little dark eyes remained fixed upon him without the slightest alteration of expression. Whether or not his version of things was believed he could not possibly tell. She waited till he had finished, then bowed in acceptance of his statement.

"I thank you, monsieur," she replied with deliberate but remote courtesy, choosing her words with precision, "on behalf of my niece for your extremely kind intentions. Be pleased to accept through me her sincere appreciation. At the same time you will readily understand how impossible it is for Madame de Bertincourt to receive strangers, also that while the present uncertainty continues she can have no desire to do so."

"I take it there have been no further developments?" inquired Charnwood, determined not to be offended.

"None, monsieur."

There was a touch of hauteur in the denial, as though the question were in bad taste. However, Charnwood floundered on in sheer doggedness.

"I hope, madame, that both you and your niece will look on me as a friend. If there are any onerous details connected with this affair I should like to ——"

He was checked by a cold gesture.

"We require no assistance, monsieur. Fortunately, my nephew, Monsieur Marcel de Bertincourt, is assuming entire responsibility. You may rest assured that he will leave no stone unturned to recover his daughter."

De Bertincourt! Charnwood had almost forgotten him. The calm mention of his name now brought an unpleasant shock. Stealing a glance at the rigid features he fancied a gleam of malevolent triumph, as if the owner knew she had scored.

While he hesitated for the right remark the comtesse's manner made it plain that she considered the interview closed.

"Charles!" she called over her shoulder, rapping sharply with her cane.

"Good day, monsieur—and once more my gratitude for your attentions."

He bent over the hand she grudgingly extended, caught a whiff of some aromatic medicament exhale from the somber garments, and before he could collect his faculties found himself traversing the long salon. He might have been a barbarian under guard, evicted from an imperial presence.

Evicted! Yes, there was no doubt as to the meaning lurking in his courteous dismissal. He was forbidden to see Iris now or at any future time, so long as she was her aunt's guest. At his next visit he would not be allowed past the outer gates. The magnificent house took on the aspect of a prison with the old woman as jailer. What he had done to rouse her distrust was neither here nor there. Enough that she had cast him forth, neck and crop, without hope of appeal.

All at once a new idea turned him cold. Suppose Iris really did not want to see him and had allowed her aunt to act for her in order to spare his feelings? Such a theory would explain both his failure to hear from her and the repeated assertions of her absence. If this were so, it altered the whole case. The ground reeled beneath him. . . .

At the foot of the stairs something happened. A little withered woman with a frightened face brushed against him sideways, muttering a gasping sentence to the footman. The latter glanced round uncertainly, hesitated, then melted away into the shades of the rotunda.

Was she speaking to him? The downcast eyes made him doubtful. Yet there was no one else in sight. He bent to catch the faint whisper,

The comtesse's butler had spoken the truth each time he declared Iris to be out. From the moment she yielded to her aunt's insistence and returned to the Rue de Babylone, nine-tenths of her day had been spent in driving about Paris, ceaselessly hunting for the lost Clare.

Futile as she knew the pursuit to be, it was only in constant movement that her torment found relief. To be doing something, anything, rather than sit idle—for it was during the periods of enforced quiet that her brain swung back and forth between hideous conjecture and unavailing effort to shut out thought.

Her aunt humored her, but refused to let her go alone, and so, never once free from the grimly anxious guardianship at her side, she sat hour after hour in the smoothly rolling car leaning tensely forward as they explored every known and unknown quarter of the city. Thus she was likely to continue till nervous exhaustion laid her low, unable to rest, unable to sleep except with a sedative, sickened by the mere thought of food.

Strict, Impersonal Regime Proves Bad for Little Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A letter which shows the two opinions on baby upbringing is used today because so many people believe in one or the other of the two extremes.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I'm a young mother confronted with the problem of child training. A discussion on the question brought about an argument between a friend and myself. The child in question is a 10 months old, smiling boy, playful and lively. He cries when he wants to be picked up, quite often.

"Picking him up, I'm told, is spoiling the baby and at no time should parents give in to the crying baby. My views are not so. I feel that a normal child cannot be left on the floor or in chair for a long time and be expected to keep quiet.

"I have tried to explain my views to this friend. When the child arrives at the age of understanding [that is 2 or 3 years] I will teach him right from wrong by explaining things to him in a nice way. But my friend disagrees with me on every point and says that strict discipline and not motherly love will bring the child up right.

"Feeling that you are in a position to decide this, I trust you will answer."

If I were this jolly baby boy I'd choose the mother rather than the friend, even though she is making some mistakes. The strictly business-like, impersonal system of bringing up babies that her friend recommends has been tried and found wanting. When the death rate of babies in institutions—the best ones, too—was so high, investigation proved that is was because the babies needed the love, play and individual interest that they can get only in a real home. Long before ten months have passed a baby is ready to love and be loved.

Of course, a baby can't be brought up with only his physcial wants attended to and discipline administered. A baby is so much more than a little animal from the time he is born, and it is not true that "strict discipline and not motherly love" will bring a child up right.

He must have his play with his mother, his holding and loving—but not because he cries for it. The time to give him that regularly is when he is not crying. If he cries from pain or because he is in discomfort he may have to be taken up and when the pain is gone laid down again, but he must not find out that crying secures for him what he wants.

Another "but" for this young mother, to modify her management. She cannot wait until her baby is 2 or 3 years old to train him. His understanding begins much before that. But her ideal is fundamentally right—to show her love and to appeal to her little boy's intelligence by explanation.

Still she must begin early, there are many mothers who do not know just how to begin training who would be helped by some simple reading on baby and child management. Such references are obtainable through this department.

Evening Jackets Grow Still Shorter

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Short jackets are far and away the smartest evening wraps for this spring and summer; in fact, the shorter the better seems to be fashion's rule.

All Paris couturiers feature the short evening jacket, though they may show longer evening wraps, as well. Sometimes these brief coatlets match the dress in fabric and color. Oftener they form a vivid contrast to it, though they may pick up the tone of jewels or handkerchief. Velveteen and Lyons velvet, satin, taffeta, and chiffon are the smart fabrics, and every possible shape is favored, provided it be no longer than the hip bones; and Worth and Regny both show pocket size boleros that barely cover the armpits.

Three of the season's knockouts in the evening jacket competition are sketched today.

At the top of the drawing is Lanvin's kimono bolero, that is made like the top of a kimono, cut off at the waistline and with the two ends of the neck bank trailing down the front. This one is in orange satin, but she also shows them entirely made of small bright wooden beads or paillettes.

In the center is Schiaparelli's brand new evening jacket in gold lacquered satin. It has raglan sleeves and is fitted in to the waistline in back by three darts. Sash ends of cantaloupe colored georgette to match the frock, are set into cuts on each side of the front under the bust; they are worn crossed and wound round the waist and tied in a bow in front.

The third jacket is from Chanel and it's a miracle of cutting, being fitted by three tiny gores at each side of the front and back, that curve around above the tiny circular peplum. The elbow bell sleeves are also gored. The front of the jacket is cut into huge revers that may be worn tied as you see or falling open. This one is in crushed strawbegry taffeta.

FARM AND GARDEN

SOILS NEAR FOUNDATIONS.

Diets of sand and sawdust would be about as efficient for growing flowers and shrubs as the soil around most house foundations. Only one-fourth of the normal water supply for growing a normal plant is available.

These statements are made as the result of studies by Prof. J. P. Porter of the New York State College of Agriculture. In many cases, he finds, the soil around foundations is the poorest of subsoil backfilled against the wall after it has been taken out of the cellar. What little supply of water reaches this leaches away rapidly.

Remedies for this situation usually consist in digging out to a depth of 18 inches or 2 feet and replacing with a bed of rich soil. A generous supply of well rotted leaf mold or manure placed in the bottom of this trench will facilitate the holding of water for plant use.

After the soil change has been made, then the gardener can use his experience or obtain knowledge from those who know the shade loving plants and the sun loving kinds, for suitable use of the plant bed.

Food Talk.

Mr. H. F. D., who has been gathering and eating wild mushrooms for more than forty years, suggests that we give some information in this column on the canning and drying of mushrooms. Canning mushrooms is not practical for the city housewife. Drying them seems much more practical because one is seldom able to purchase less than a pound and often there are a few left over and these become moldy before they are used. It would be an economy to dry the excess. In the preparation of many foods a few dried mushrooms will do much to improve the flavor.

In either canning or drying, the first thing to do is to procure the freshest mushrooms. If you purchase them from the vegetable market the only thing you will need to know is that they are freshly removed from the beds. If you are gathering them yourself from pastures and lowlands your greatest concern will be to select only esculent varieties, and it takes experience or a knowledge of fungi to be able to distinguish between the poisonous and nonpoisonous. We emphasized this in our Sunday article of March 22.

As soon as you have obtained the mushrooms, lose no time in preparation. The sooner they can be put into cans and sterilized the more satisfactory will be the results. First sort into at least two sizes—the buttons and the larger open ones. Then wash in a weak vinegar solution. The vinegar prevents discoloring. One tablespoon of vinegar to a quart of water is sufficient. Lift out of the washing water and remove any imperfections or spots, break the stems from the caps and quickly throw into cold water, to prevent any discoloration of the cut surfaces. And use only granite pans. An iron vessel should never be used because iron quickly discolors mushrooms.

Tie the mushrooms in a cheese cloth bag and put them into boiling water to blanch. Blanching shrinks them. Another way to shrink the mushrooms and one recommended by the Oregon agricultural experiment station is to put the cleaned mushrooms into a granite pan with a little butter but without any water and heat them slowly over direct heat 8 or 10 minutes until they shrink as much as they will. In this method there is no loss of juice in blanching.

After blanching plunge into cold water to cool. Drain and pack tightly in clean glass jars. Add a boiling hot brine to fill all air spaces, just as one does in canning vegetables. The brine may be made from the blanching water and this is a wise practice because it conserves flavor, since the blanching water contains minerals and flavoring extracts that are sure to dissolve out of the mushrooms in that eight or ten minutes of blanching. From 1 to 2 teaspoons of salt for each quart of water used should be sufficient for the brine, but be guided by your taste.

Place the lids on the cans and sterilize in the usual way in a pressure cooker. About 25 minutes sterilizing at 240 degrees F. is sufficient for quart cans, 20 minutes for pints.

Mushrooms are easily dried. It is an especially good way to preserve the older mushrooms. Clean as you would for canning. Grading for size is not necessary. Place on drying racks, cup side down, only one deep, and expose them to the sun and air. Turn over every day. And do not leave them out during the night as they absorb moisture very rapidly. They may also be dried in a warm room. When they feel dry to the touch finish them in a slow oven until brittle. Then pack in jars and keep dry. They may be ground to a powder. Bottles or jars used for storing need to be very dry. The dry powder is especially nice for flavoring gravies and meat sauces. Mushroom atsup is another method of preserving mushrooms.

TONGUE SANDWICH.

Spread creamed butter on thin slices of rye or whole wheat bread. On one slice place thin slices of boiled smoked ox tongue. Add a leaf of lettuce and press on the upper buttered slice of bread. Trim and cut in the preferred shape. Garnish with a thick slice of tomato on which is lightly piled a delicious cole slaw.

New Plane Is Tested as Lake Foresters Watch.

It was extra exciting out at Palwaukee airport last Sunday afternoon. A large and interested gallery, including a number of the Lake Foresters who motor out to the port frequently to see what's going on, watched the initial flight of a unique plane. It was built by two of the field pilots in their off time—an exact duplicate of one of the big Bellancas, but only a third as large. "It went up like a skyrocket," according to one of the spectators, and everybody was very much thrilled. Tom Lauder made up a pool on the to speed the craft will be able to rush—somewhere between 125 and 145 miles an hour—but the speed test hasn't been made yet. Gordon Kelley, whose slick new Laird plane—black and gold and capable of doing 160 per—had just arrived on Saturday, was out at the field, and took several trips. Others watching the flights and landings included the Randolph Owsleys, Bob Curtis, Duncan Hodges, the George Leaches, the Morrow Krums, and Mrs. Howard Peabody, whose week-end guest, Lord Lionel Tennyson, was off playing golf and giving a cricket match during the afternoon.

Lord Tennyson, who was adjudged a "darling" by the ladies and a "good egg" by the men, was a popular and rushed around visitor. He played golf at Onwentsia and went out in 40 for the first nine holes, and later exhibited his skill as champion cricketer of England at the Cricket club. He departed for the east yesterday.

Union League Boys' Club Is Pride of Its Sponsors.

Any one who ever has heard one of the Union League members wax eloquent on the subject of their Boys' club over on the west side will be particularly interested to hear of the benefit concert to be given for the club by the Division for the Advancement of Music of Lyon & Healy, Inc., at Orchestra hall next Monday evening. An important group of patrons and patronesses interested in "the building of good citizenship among Chicago boys" is sponsoring the concert, all the proceeds of which are to go to the club.

The Friends of Opera spring meeting will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the ballroom of the Drake.

Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes and Miss Vivian Small, president of Lake Erie college, who is to be her house guest for the week-end, are to be special guests at the garden party and tea following the annual luncheon of the Mount Holyoke club at the Skokie Country club on Saturday. Mrs. Homer Horton, president of the Glencoe Garden club, is to take the guests on a tour of the Glencoe gardens. Miss Small is a Mount Holyoke graduate.

In announcing the May board meeting of the Illinois League of Women Voters, to take place next Wednesday at Mrs. James W. Morrisson's residence, the president, Mrs. Ralph E. Treadway remarked, "The league never intends to say good-by to its former president, Mrs. James W. Morrisson, but it wanted to offer her its good wishes before she moves her goods and chattels to Connecticut this spring. Several suggestions were made as to informal festivities, but before anything could be decided Mrs. Morrisson cleverly turned the tables and has invited the state board to have their May meeting with her."

There's a Perfume for Every Type, from Cleo to Little Nell

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday we talked a bit about perfumes and how the individual theme is now preferred instead of a perfume for each mood, occasion and dress. But that single scent song should be a smash hit, my sisters. It should be you, your style and your kind of girl. That is, if you're a positive modern you won't want to go ga-ga with sweet, sentimental bouquet odors. No, it's a spicy, sophisticated scent you should take on.

But if you're a dainty, demure blond and shy you tease the passing nostril with a delicate flower or light bouquet odor. Lily-of-the-valley might just place you properly in a good man's dreams.

If you are an exotic dear, unusual, distinctive, who wouldn't wear an orchid unless it were an unusual greenish shade, a smart saleswoman will try to tempt you with a heavy, sweet perfume whose oil or floral source could only be wildly guessed at.

If a sports loving girl, it's the outdoor odors for you.

The cool, aloof, well poised, mature type who, if she were given to wearing flowers, would wear violets or gardenias, can get her scents from those bottled odors. The choosing, my sisters, however, isn't the half of it. It's how you use that subtle scent that's going to count in heart slayings and nasal ticklings.

That old-fashioned idea of smelling up the hanky as a last minute preparation for the scene of conquest is just all wrong. Your hanky gets perfumed in its hanky box or other hanky holder. Simply take a tiny piece of absorbent cotton, dampen it with your best perfume and tuck this into the hanky box. Take another bit of cotton, give it a bit of the same scent and park this tiny cotton ball with your lingerie; have another for your glove box and stocking box. And renew when necessary.

An ever so slight rub of a scent dipped finger tip across the eyebrows is another custom that might have more vogue.

It was extra exciting out at Palwaukee airport last Sunday afternoon. A large and interested gallery, including a number of the Lake Foresters who motor out to the port frequently to see what's going on, watched the initial flight of a unique plane. It was built by two of the field pilots in their off time—an exact duplicate of one of the big Bellancas, but only a third as large. "It went up like a skyrocket," according to one of the spectators, and everybody was very much thrilled. Ross Lauder made up a pool on the top speed the craft will be able to reach—somewhere between 125 and 145 miles an hour—but the speed test hasn't been made yet. Gordon Kelley, whose slick new Laird plane—black and gold and capable of doing 160 per—had just arrived on Saturday, was out at the field, and took several trips. Others watching the flights and landings included the Randolph Owsleys, Bob Curtis, Duncan Hodges, the George Leaches, the Morrow Krums, and Mrs. Howard Peabody, whose week-end guest, Lord Lionel Tennyson, was off playing golf and giving a cricket match during the afternoon.

Lord Tennyson, who was adjudged a "darling" by the ladies and a "good egg" by the men, was a popular and rushed around visitor. He played golf at Onwentsia and went out in 40 for the first nine holes, and later exhibited his skill as champion cricketer of England at the Cricket club. He departed for the east yesterday.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

IF there is one institution in Chicago better known throughout the country and the world than another, it is Hull House, which, under the spiritual and actual guidance of Jane Addams, has achieved a unique place among the important efforts of the century.

Hull House has, among many other interests, succeeded in building up a distinctly personal approach to the arts and crafts. Several young artists hail from there. The children's classes with their pottery and drawings and pictures are given annual exhibits at the Chicago Art institute. In Diana court recently a little gallery opened where the animal sculpture and the weaving peculiar to Hull House is on view. Young men gifted in their crafts are in the gallery every day demonstrating their ability in weaving and in modeling.

During these first two weeks of May an exhibition of paintings by Sadie Ellis Garland and Leon Garland, husband and wife, both teachers of art in Hull House, is on view in Diana Court salon. Mr. and Mrs. Garland are recently returned from Europe, where they have been painting and studying, particularly in France and Germany. Next Saturday a reception in their honor will be held in Diana Court salon and meanwhile their exhibit is worth seeing.

A course of lectures to interpret the aims and traditions of the arts and crafts activities of Hull House is planned in Diana Court salon, of which Increase Robinson is director, on successive Thursday afternoons at 3 o'clock. The first lecture is today and Jane Addams herself, president of Hull House association, will speak on the "Arts and Crafts at Hull House for Forty Years."

The following four lectures are "Why the Artist Does What He Does," by Edgar Miller; "Art and the Factory," by Alice Hamilton, M. D., professor of industrial medicine, Harvard medical school; "The Earliest Florentine Work of Art," by Ferdinand Schevill, Chicago university professor of medieval history, and "Ceramics in Education," by Myrtle Merritt French, head of the department of ceramics, Art institute of Chicago and of Hull house.

In the studio gallery, opening from Diana Court salon, during May and June there is being held a timely exhibition of water colors, lithographs, and etchings by many Chicago artists, among them Ethel Spears, Francis Chapin, Davenport Griffen, Emil Armin, William S. Schwartz, and Frances Foy.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

(Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

GIRL'S DRESS.

Schoolgirl smartness is expressed in this dress. The waist closes in the front, lapping over the left side and buttoning there. The sleeves are gathered into deep wristbands, and the neck of the waist may be faced or bound. A navy blue crepe with red pin dots is as pretty as possible, with the buttons in a matching red shade and the rolled collar and cuffs of white pique.

Pattern No. 2681 comes in sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1¾ yards of 30 inch material with ⅝ yard of 32 inch contrasting and a leather belt.

If Smoking Irks Fiance, Give It Up, Is Doris' Advice

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"The problem which troubles me is to curb my fiancée's smoking habit. I never used tobacco in my life and I hate her smoking. My appeals have had no effect. She smoked rarely during our first three years' acquaintance, but now since her girl friends and co-workers indulge, she seems to be trying to work up a reputation as a consumer. What can I do with her?

"PHIL."

It probably isn't a reputation the girl is trying to work up, but a habit that is working up its own reputation. The smoking habit grows that way.

I am constantly reminded that though cigaret smoking among women has resulted in terrific annual cigaret consumption, many, many men stand just about where their grandfathers stood on the subject. Or, maybe they're just a little more "broad-minded." They don't mind it if people like to smoke, but they don't want their own precious girl to be numbered among these people.

In eulogizing a nice, young person of the feminine sex, too, it's still common to hear it said of her that she doesn't smoke. It proves that there is still much conventional attitude toward smoking operating among us. Women are less conventional about the cigaret habit among their sex than men, I find.

It does seem, however, quite aside from the question of women's smoking, as it is generally discussed, that if it matters a lot to the boy who has asked you to marry him, it is not asking too much to forego it. It's something that can be gotten along without beautifully. And if it is an irritant to him, why continue?

It's quite probable the boy has to give up certain things, too, to give all of his time and devotion to one girl. Maybe, indeed, he has forsworn an irritating habit of his own.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., May 6.—The White Sox were their own worst enemies today and disaster overtook them. With Irving Jeffries in the role of director of operations, the Chicagoans donated five runs to the cause of the other fellows and that's exactly the number by which the Tigers defeated the visiting athletes in the third of the series. The score was 9 to 4. Thus the Sox have given away eighteen runs in the last four days.

The first thing done by Jeffries was to mess up an apparently easy double play that let two Tigers seep home in the second. It was a jolt that Pat Caraway, seeking his fourth consecutive triumph of the campaign, didn't deserve, but the damage done by the error was irreparable and after five innings Pat quit with only four runs and four hits against his record.

Three Others Score.

Then with Braxton southpawing in the sixth and having troubles of his own, Jeffries innocently caused confusion that converted the third out into a two bagger and sent three undeserved runs over the plate. The Tigers really earned their other tallies.

The Sox also were remiss in their duties on attack. Tom Bridges, a rookie, started against them and on his wildness alone deserved to have his ears pinned back at the very outset, but he proved a past master at escaping trouble. Because of his lack of control he either was walking batters or threatening to walk them in every inning and he finally reached a total of nine free tickets.

Blue's walk, Cissell's single, and Simons' two bagger gave the Sox one run in the first inning.

Jeffries Throws Wild.

The two Tiger runs in the second would have been avoided if Jeffries had made use of the time at his disposal. With one out McManus walked and went to third on Doljack's single to right. Schang walked, partly because Caraway figured it was a good way to be rid of him. Bridges then cracked a sharp bounder to Cissell, who picked it up and tossed to Jeffries to force Schang at second. There was no necessity to hurry the throw to first to complete the double play but Jeff did hurry and the peg rolled into the Sox dugout. Meanwhile McManus and Doljack registered.

A single by Schang and doubles by Johnson and Owen scored two more Tiger runs in the fifth. Then the Sox pitched one up in the sixth on Watwood's pass followed by singles by Kerr and Reynolds.

Easy Fly Misjudged.

The nightmare that let the Tigers pick up three runs against Braxton in the sixth started when Umpire Hildebrand decided Stone had beaten Jeffries' throw to first on a grounder. McManus singled to center and Doljack also would have had a hit if Fothergill hadn't started a diving catch of a short fly. Braxton made a wild throw to catch Stone off second so the two runners moved up a peg, whereupon Braxton purposely passed Schang. Bridges struck out and Johnson lifted a fly to short center. Simons could have caught it with ease, but Jeffries insisted on having it. He didn't get it, as Johnson profited by a cheap double and the Tigers by three runs.

Two runs for the Pale Hose in the seventh resulted from a double by Fothergill, a pass to Simons, and a single by Tate. The Tigers bounced right back in their half with their last two runs, Jim Moore being the victim of a single by Koenig, a double by Alexander, and a single by McManus did this.

Tommy Thomas will labor in the series final tomorrow, and Earl Whitehill, the southpaw, is to be the Tiger choice.

Twenty Grand and Equipoise Speed in Preakness Trials

Pimlico, Md., May 6.—[Special.]—Insofar as a workout can tell the story of the Preakness three days in advance, the speed flashed by the Greentree stable's Twenty Grand at this course this morning should go a long way toward the solution of the big race Saturday.

Twenty Grand, with Marshall Lilly up and 120 pounds in the saddle, before the large crowd at the sidelines was fully aware what was taking place, was circling the hilltop course in one of the greatest trials ever seen here. When the St. Germans colt easily made the mile in 1:38 2-5 he became the Preakness favorite. On he swept for a mile and a furlong in 1:51 2-5, finishing out the mile apd a quarter in 2:05 3-5, pulled up.

Equipoise Timed in 2:07.

Any doubt as to the fitness of Equipoise, C. V. Whitney's Preakness and Derby hope, because of his poor showing recently at Havre de Grace, was removed this afternoon when the colt stepped a mile in 1:39 3-5, a mile and an eighth in 1:53 2-5, and a mile and a quarter in 2:07, pulled up, in a public speed trial here.

With Sonny Workman in the saddle, Equipoise, in company with Totem, was given the test between the first and second races. His time was a little slower than that of Twenty Grand, but he was not pressed.

Fractions of the Twenty Grand trial were: :24 1-5, :36, :49 2-5, 1:01 2-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:25 2-5, 1:38 2-5, 1:51 2-5, 2:05 3-5, eased. Anchors Aweigh broke three lengths in front of Twenty Grand and went the mile and a quarter in 2:07.

Rowe Happy Over Trials.

Surf Board (McAtee is coming here to ride him in the Preakness) was brought out at 6 o'clock and worked a mile and an eighth in 1:53 2-5. James Rowe, Greentree stable trainer, after the great trials of his charges, looked like a man in a poker game with four aces.

Surf Board's fractions were: :24 2-5, :48 2-5, :59 3-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:29 2-5, 1:52 2-5, taken in hand toward the latter part of the trial.

Seagram stable's Soil Gills opened the eyes of many. He went along in :23 3-5, :35, :47 4-5, 1:00 3-5, 1:14, 1:27, 1:40 1-5, 1:53 3-5, 2:08.

Old Timers Gather.

The renewal of the Preakness every spring, as well as the Kentucky Derby, brings to the south a gathering of the old time jockeys, as well as the younger ones who are not called to study elsewhere. They hold their "hot stove league" meetings Preakness week.

HO HUM! RAIN GIVES CUBS THEIR 7TH DAY OF REST

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs yesterday stocked up their seventh postponement of this infant season, when rain prevented the contest scheduled with the Cincinnati Reds. It was the third postponement in the Cincinnati-Chicago series in ten days.

The Cubs and Reds will play their final this afternoon, with Ed Baecht pitching against Red Lucas. Then the team will rush to the La Salle street station where they will board the same train and ride as far as Albany together. From Albany the Reds go to Boston and the Cubs go to New York, where on Saturday the opening games of the first western invasion of the east will be played.

Four games will be played by the Cubs against the Giants, after which they will move across the bridge for a three game series with Brooklyn.

Everybody in, Condition.

Unless accidents befall the nine in the game at Wrigley field this afternoon, they will move on the seaboard enemies in perfect physical condition. Now that Pat Malone's temperamental thumb is well, Dr. Andy Lotshaw's sick bay is without an inmate.

Malone, Root, Smith, and Blake probably will carry the burden of the pitching against the Giants, while the lefthanders, Sweetland, May, and Teachout are likely to see service against the Robins. Of the first nine defeats suffered by the Robins at the outset of the season, eight were administered by southpaws.

Open with Phils May 16.

After their week in Greater New York the Cubs will take the two-hour ride over to Philadelphia, opening with a scheduled doubleheader on May 16. They rest on the next day and play the final on May 18 before proceeding to Boston for three games.

The Cubs will be back home on May 23 for a three game series with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

DERBY CANDIDATES

The Latest Flash on the 3-Year-Olds Which Will Battle for Kentucky's Famous Turf Prize on May 16.

BY FRENCH LANE

PITTSBURGHER.

Owner—Theodore Mueller.

Trainer—J. H. Moody.

The best recommendation for this fellow is that he is closely related to Exterminator, that he looks like Exterminator and a lot of Kentuckians say he runs like Exterminator.

Right now it seems that Pittsburgher must win the Derby if a western colt is to capture the prize. For a time it looked like the west had two possible Derby chances in Pittsburgher and Insco. But Insco has suddenly fallen by the wayside.

All last year people who knew about Pittsburgher expected him to jump into the limelight and show his heels to a lot of turf blue bloods of his age. Time after time he was backed to turn the trick and time after time he failed.

But Pittsburgher was a big awkward fellow, he was growing and a bit lazy and he never ran as a 2 year old like those most interested in him expected him to run.

Pittsburgher is a grandson of famous old McGee. His daddy, In Memoriam, is a son of McGee. So was Exterminator a son of McGee, and by a queer twist of breeding Pittsburgher more nearly resembles his uncle Exterminator than he does his daddy In Memoriam.

Pittsburgher's mother was Wistaria, a daughter of Ballot. Daughters of Ballot have been good producers, so it seems to be up to Pittsburgher to quit being lazy and go out and carry on for his illustrious ancestors. His big long legs move like a machine this year and they eat up a lot of distance at every leap.

This colt which looks like Exterminator might be the outsider that can win this year's Derby. He might make the highly exploited easterners look like a hundred car freight train when the Century Limited dashes past it.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

S. S. France, Sandy Hook, N. Y., May 6.—As the steamship France was approaching New York this morning bringing the French amateur boxing team for the bouts in Chicago, a fog came down and the captain had to park the boat. Some people have been saying that the captain himself wanted to keep on going and unload the passengers at the scheduled time because a steamboat captain is a kind of seagoing landlady and is compelled to keep on feeding the boarders until they can be put ashore. When he stops the boat the passengers keep on eating and this, of course, runs up the expenses and this is no boost for the captain.

The story is that the pilot who came aboard at Sandy Hook was the one who refused to take the boat up the bay, but there is no getting at the truth of rumors among passengers, especially when the passengers include a scattering of inveterate world travelers who remember the time they were befogged for six months at Plymouth.

For a while nobody thought much of the delay, but along toward 10 o'clock the situation became serious when the first customers went to the bar and came away with blanched faces to spread the news that the bar was closed. Nobody had had the foresight to lay away anything in case of fog and, of course, nobody ever lays away anything for smuggling purposes any more, because it is so much cheaper and more convenient to call up a number and have it delivered. But when prohibition hits a French boat there is nobody to call up, and the suffering of the passengers became more and more acute as the day wore on.

Socially, the delay has been a great inconvenience, for the municipal yacht Macom of the City of New York has been bobbing about among the flotsam and the jetsam of New York

French Boys Say Hello to America and Seem to Like It

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 6.—[Special.]—Friend Arch: Bon jour. Your ten French champions are just about to climb down the steps of their private car and look Chicago over. Tonight they are speeding toward the end of their long journey, and if the Manhattan Limited keeps on steaming that end will come at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Chicago's Union station.

It is almost finished, this trip which ten adventure seeking boys began a week ago Wednesday in Paris. Every one of the ten will tell you tomorrow, Arch, that it has been the greatest week of their lives.

Other dispatches will give the details of the magnificent welcome which the New York Daily News had prepared for this team of amateur French boxers when, after hours of delay caused by fog just when the palatial liner France was almost at the completion of ocean crossing, the boys disembarked at the Battery this afternoon. Westbrook Pegler has telegraphed a description of those fog bound hours off Sandy Hook. This letter, Arch, is to give you the details of the next to last day of the big trip and tell you what the boys thought of their first glimpse of America.

Prof. Cuny, the little French war veteran and Olympic trainer, led the boys straight from the dining salon to their rooms last night. He told the boxers the France was due to reach quarantine at 8 o'clock in the morning and if they'd like breakfast before clambering down to the decks of the Macom, New York's official welcoming boat, they'd have to get up at 6 a. m.

The boys needed no urging. All were in bed at 9. And all were up at 5, lest the famous skyline of the magic city they had heard so much about come into view unseen by them.

As it turned out, Prof. Cuny might have let the boys stay up later and sleep until midafternoon. Of course, Cuny didn't know that fog was to steal up and disarrange all the welcoming plans.

The France was anchored when the boys had breakfast in their rooms. And it remained at anchor until 2:30 in the afternoon.

All day the boys leaned over the deck railing listening to the foghorns of other vessels and the constant ringing of bells fore and aft on their own. At noon they had a light lunch, holding in their appetites as much as possible to save room for the official luncheon in New York.

At 2 p. m. it looked as though the France were to be marooned off the Hook all day, and Cuny had just about decided to order shadow boxing in the ring on the sports deck when suddenly the fog drifted away and the France began moving toward quarantine.

Dr. Sebenq, the boss of the invaders, and Prof. Cuny hurriedly counted noses, got the boys' baggage assembled, and all the boys went down to C deck in preparation for the transfer to the Macom.

When the France reached quarantine there the little boat lay all decked out in French and our flags. As the big liner came to anchor a band on the Macom began playing, the yacht's siren began an echo defying salute, and the boys raced up on deck to see what all the commotion was about. They couldn't believe it when they were told the music and the flags and the sirens were for them.

It was unbelievable, at that. As the little Macom tied up alongside the France an airplane zoomed out of the clouds and gave the boys a new thrill.

Then came customs officers and immigration inspectors and doctors. While the other passengers looked on, the French boys passed inspection and went aboard the Macom, which puffed away with the band playing the "Marseillaise," followed by the "Star Spangled Banner." The boys were wonder struck anew and there were tears in the eyes of Sebenq and Cuny.

The boys had so much to view coming up the harbor they raced from one side of the boat to another to miss nothing of the marvels of the city of wonders. The Statue of Liberty, the

Mayor to Receive Boys at 3 P. M.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Dense fog off the Atlantic coast yesterday delayed the S. S. France, bringing the champion amateur boxers of France for the international bouts at Soldiers' field May 12, and the liner did not arrive at New York until late afternoon. However, at 7 o'clock last night, after dinner at the Hotel Pennsylvania, the French boxers and the New York intercity champions, started for Chicago.

The invaders will steam into Union station this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Manhattan Limited. They will be escorted by French and American soldiers, the Chicago Golden Gloves team and representatives of the French consulate to Mayor Cermak's office, there to receive official greeting by the mayor.

50,000 Seats on Sale.

Fifty thousand general admission tickets now are on sale at Tribune public service offices. These tickets are boxing's greatest bargain. The price is 50 cents. For that sum one may sit in the concrete stands on the east and west sides of Soldiers' field gridiron within 150 feet of the ring. The elevation assures an excellent view.

The tickets will be kept on sale until Tuesday noon. At 4 o'clock that afternoon twenty ticket booths will be opened at Soldiers' field. By purchasing general admission tickets in advance, there will be no delay in entering the stadium. The tickets are redeemable if the contests are held at the Chicago Stadium.

Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Young Will Stribling yesterday wired he would attend the international bouts. He plans to fly from Macon, Ga., on May 11. Stribling and Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight titleholder, who also will see the amateur champions in action, will serve as guest officials, judging or referring some of the bouts on the program.

To See Stadium Bouts.

The Chicago Golden Gloves fighters yesterday accepted the invitation of Sidney Strotz to watch the Jack Thompson-Bucky Lawless bout at the Stadium tomorrow night. Max Schmeling also will exhibit on the same card. The French team previously had accepted an invitation to the fights. The French champions also will be guests at one of the games of the White Sox-New York Yankees series, which opens at Comiskey park tomorrow.

Chicago's boxers, unable to go on the road yesterday morning because of the rain, indulged in a gymnasium workout.

Substitutes Get Ready.

Yesterday's boxing program had Fred Caserio, Leo Rodak, Jack Kranz and Scotty Sylvano paired up with some of the best amateur boxers in Chicago. George Keenan, who is conditioning himself to replace Phil Dardell of New York, intercity welterweight champion, if necessary; Adam Smith, substitute for Yustin Sirutis, also of New York; Tony Sutton and Georgere Goodman were hard at work.

The prizes for the international competition were received yesterday. The champion will receive a diamond studded gold belt. An American eagle with the crossed flags of France and the United States are at the top of the belt. The loser in each bout will receive the same reward except that the belt does not contain any diamonds.

FRENCH BOXING TEAM ARRIVES IN CHICAGO TODAY

Heavy Fog Delays New York Landing.

ately, after the manner of a traveling salesman who has time only to kiss the baby and change a collar.

The fog, insidious enemy of ocean voyagers by water or air, delayed the boxers' arrival from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5:30 in the evening. As a result all ceremony was omitted and the lads got their first taste of American bustle by stopping for a bite at the Pennsylvania hotel and dashing under the subway for a 7 o'clock train.

The port officials expedited matters by special dispensations as to baggage, customs, cutters, and whatnot. After the Broadway left without the battlers it was arranged to take the Golden Arrow at 5 o'clock. The Pennsylvania held this train for fifteen minutes, but that disjointment of schedule availed nothing, since that old graybeard fog was just permitting the France to pull into quarantine about that time.

Meanwhile the good ship Macom, official welcoming vessel of the city, was cruising in and about the harbor, tooting its horn and attempting to solve the mystery of the missing France by radio. The harbor itself was comparatively free from the enemy fog which, however, had concentrated its forces outside the port, where it would do the most harm.

All through the day Admiral Gallice was pacing the decks of the Macom, disturbing the ether with radio calls, making a very earnest attempt to move that portion of the heavens which was spoiling the party.

M. Henri Job, French consul, was there with Joseph Donon, who is president of the French war veterans, and many of his men. J. Driscall Tucker, head of the mayor's committee of welcome, conducted himself nobly without aid from a single gardenia.

Finally the fog lifted and the parade of ships steamed into quarantine with the France leading. Hurriedly the Macom took its position alongside and after the briefest necessary delays the boys from France began to get their first taste of welcome to America.

Elyas First to Land.

Alexander Elyas, Sorbonne student, light heavyweight and captain of the invaders, emerged from the hold and stepped to the figurative American soil of the Macom. The photographers held him there, but no force was necessary. Something of the inevitable proud thrill of the occasion shone through the intelligent features of the lad—something which was reflected more plainly on the faces of the other seven youngsters who thus realized the Cinderella dream which first came to them a month ago in the promise of this trip to America.

Don Maxwell and Westbrook Pegler delivered their charges from the custody of THE TRIBUNE to the impatient arms of Mr. Gallico of the News.

Without delay the Macom began steaming up the bay, now warm with a bright sun that flashed on the façade of the skyline, making a fetching, if tediously delayed, finish to the journey of the fighting young men of France.

harbor near quarantine since 7 o'clock in the morning with an official committee waiting to welcome the French boxers. The Macom has been sending over plaintive wireless messages every half hour or so stating, "band is waiting at the Battery" and "no food aboard here; please hurry," and "what are your plans for world series?"

The reception committee also mentioned the fact that sixty guests had been invited first for breakfast, then for luncheon, and finally for dinner in honor of the boxers, and that the members of the motorcycle police escort were becoming saddle galled waiting for the command to ride up Broadway.

At the present writing it looks as though this dispatch might have to be enclosed in a bottle and hurled into the sea. Some pretty punk material comes in bottles nowadays.

Kidding Tournament Continues.

On board the France, people who had been telling one another about the importance of their jobs, the clubs they belong to and the prominent persons with whom they were on intimate terms had spent most of the last night in the final and championship round of competitive kidding and had parted in the belief that that ended it. But today everybody was walking around the decks meeting one another again and remarking surprisedly, "Hello; still here, I see." It was a disconcerting experience all around, this day in the fog by Sandy Hook.

As the fog began to lift late this afternoon, the French kids of the boxing team climbed the superstructure to look at the ships as they sprang mysteriously into view. Two freighters suddenly popped out of the fog. They had pulled up and started to hike the instant the fog broke and there was a white wave folding back from the bow of each as they passed rapidly across the stern of the France. A big shape a mile off and still mooing sadly showed where the Leviathan was eating her head off and not earning a dime's worth of keep.

WAKE PROBLEMS.

FRIEND ARCH: Well, Arch, as you know, the international Golden Gloves bouts are next Tuesday and the Kentucky Derby is a week from Saturday. So I thought, before you got so busy parley-vousing to our visitors and arranging all the final details for the boxing, we better get straightened out on just what you want me to do.

Usually, I go to Louisville about ten days before the Derby and French Lane follows a few days later. So I was wondering whether you wouldn't like to reverse the order this year. I spoke to Lane about it and it's all right with him because he saw so many preliminary bouts this year in our Golden Gloves that he doesn't care so much, while I was ill with flu and missed many of them, so I'd rather like to see these bouts Tuesday, but I could leave that night after the bouts were over. Whatever you decide is all right, however.

Another thing, I'd like a few minutes' talk with you before I leave, whenever that is, about my expense account. Of course, if I'm only there four days, it won't be so difficult, but you know I always run behind and it's quite a problem in my expense account when I'm short that way.

Through your influence the auditing department has passed my items called "experience" and also "good will," but I couldn't use either of those again. I had thought of "self-restraint," but that isn't so good because self-restraint should reduce instead of increase one's expenses. I also had thought of "nullification," but that's too patent and, anyway, I'm sober minded. It's quite a problem and I'd like your advice. Do you think, by any chance, a charge for "exuberance" would get by? Let me hear from you. Regards,

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

We note that Wrestler Strangler Lewis was disqualified for alleged biting of an opponent in Montreal. We're glad to have that point settled. It was about the only attack we didn't see in the bouts recently attended at the Stadium, and we wondered at the time why it was omitted.

French Boys Like America at First Sight

A few minutes' rest at the Pennsylvania hotel, then "All aboard" the Manhattan Limited. The tricolors on a high standard marked the boxers' car, next to the observation coach, incidentally, a coach which, like their first American diner, amazed the visitors.

The boys ate with the two New York boxers, Sirutis and Dardell. The menu called for celery soup, steak, baked potatoes, asparagus, hot muffins, and brick ice cream covered with fresh strawberries. Prof. Cuny turned thumbs down on the soup and potatoes, fearing that the boys are getting overweight, but permitted the ice cream, which so far has been the boys' chief gastronomic delight. The boys have now gone back to their Pullman, where they are laughing at the antics of the jokester, Gaston Mayor, and anticipating the fun it will be to see the midget Perrier climb into the first upper berth he ever saw. One of the boys had to sleep in an upper, and Perrier, much to his own delight, was elected to the honor.

Cuny says lights go out at 10 o'clock and breakfast of bacon and eggs, toast and coffee is set for 7:30.

The luncheon menu chosen by the coach consists of steak, two green vegetables, salad and ice cream. Arch, get the ice cream order in now. The boys want it at every meal, secretly pining for it, I imagine, at breakfast.

Bon nuit, Arch. The champs will be seeing you tomorrow.

DON MAXWELL.

P. S.—The porter has just discovered Rene Aubry alseep with all his clothes on in an unmade upper. He had sneaked up when the porter wasn't looking.

FAMILIAR FACES APPEAR AGAIN IN BATTING RACE

Gradually the "flash" hitters fall back and old familiar faces appear in the select circle of major league batting leaders. The latest to forge into the thick of the race is Al Simmons, Athletic left fielder. He hit five out of five against the Red Sox yesterday to set his average at .417 and go into third place. Babe Ruth smacked two out of three, including his fourth home run, to stay at the top with .452. The leaders:

What type of tennis do you play?

For American style The Top-Flite

AMERICA plays smashing, "put-it-away" tennis. The Spalding Top-Flite, the world's fastest racket, was designed for that game... Europe, on the other hand, believes in "keeping the ball in play." The Kozeluh was designed for that. Its broader head and thinner handle help get the ball back. Take your choice—both are marvelous rackets. $15 each.

MAKE THIS TEST!

Here's a good way to test your nerve stability. Without resting your arm on the table or lifting your pencil from the paper, run a continuous line in and out the dots (completing the line started). Do this rapidly. If your curves are uneven, if you strike a dot, if your line shows jumpiness—well, your nerves aren't as good as they might be.

Are your spirits up today and down tomorrow? Scientists say that's "nerves". And nervous conditions often result from smoking the wrong cigar. Switch your smoke and pacify your nerves—switch to El Toro, the cigar that never gets on your nerves.

El Toros are made of the mildest, smoothest, finest-flavored tobacco leaf in the world. This is tobacco grown and ripened in the same tropical climate as Havana but given a wonderful flavor all its own by the ideal soil conditions of Porto Rico.

And because El Toros are so well made they have the lip-comfort of a 25c Havana. Long filler, 100% machine-made—100% sanitary. El Toros come from Porto Rico duty free—thus cost only 5c instead of much more.

If you cannot pass this test—switch to EL TOROS for your nerves' sake

If you can pass it—switch to EL TOROS anyway for the flavor's sake

THOMPSON ENDS WORKOUTS FOR LAWLESS FIGHT

Levinsky Lays Plans to Halt Rocco.

Young Jack Thompson, who twice has held the welterweight championship, is ready to even an old score with Bucky Lawless, the Irishman from Auburn, when they meet in the Stadium tomorrow night. Thompson came through his preliminary training in good shape for his first start since regaining the championship by knocking out Tommy Freeman several weeks ago.

Both Thompson and Levinsky finished their training yesterday by batting down a spar boy apiece. Lawless will take a short drill today, while Rocco, the blustery Pennsylvania Italian who outpointed Levinsky a week ago, will confine his final day of drill to a little road work.

Lawless Is Body Puncher.

Lawless has shown great strength and stamina in his workouts. He is a crowding type of fighter like Jack Kid Berg and fires ceaselessly to the body. This is the style of attack which is expected to overcome Thompson's hard right hand punches.

Levinsky, who has campaigned with little success in the outlying fight centers since his last appearance at the Stadium, has apparently regained the range with his murderous swings. In his last three drills he has landed frequently and squarely on an assorted lot of spar boys. His lone chance, he figures, is to stop Rocco. After yesterday's practice, his sister-manager, Mrs. Lena Levy, declared he was prepared to do just this. The King holds a grievance against Rocco. He contends Rocco was no gentleman for accepting the verdict in the last fight because it was a bad decision.

Grogan Vs. Dublinsky.

Another bout brings together Danny Delmont and Davey Abad, the latter a ranking lightweight with victories over Tony Canzoneri, Benny Bass, and Eddie Shea.

As an added attraction, the Stadium has signed Max Schmeling, world heavyweight champion, to appear in his last exhibition before he starts training for the defense of his title against W. L. Stribling. Schmeling has not appeared here since he won the championship. He will box four rounds, two against each of his sparring partners.

RAIN POSTPONES MAROON-HOSEI BASEBALL GAME

Although rain caused a postponement of the Maroon-Hosei baseball game yesterday afternoon, the Japanese team probably will meet Chicago at a later date. Coach Page hopes to bring the Japanese champions to Chicago on June 16, on their way back to the Pacific coast, and play the game in a big league park.

The Japanese players were guests of Harold H. Swift, president of the board of trustees of the University of Chicago, yesterday morning, and attended a dinner last night as the guests of Director Stagg. Members of the Chicago team which went to Japan last year were also at the dinner along with the present team. Vice President Frederic Woodward gave a luncheon at the Quadrangle club for Toshio Muto, Japanese consul, and other guests. Hosei will meet Notre Dame today and tomorrow at South Bend.

The Purdue-Chicago dual tennis match, also rained out yesterday, will be played this afternoon at 2 o'clock on the courts at University avenue and 55th street.

San Francisco, Cal., May 6.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey's next fight promotion venture will occur at Reno, Nev., on July 4, with Max Baer of Livermore, Cal., as one of the principals, Ancil Hoffman, local promoter, said today. Hoffman said Baer's opponent would be selected from Paulino Uscudun of Spain, Vittorio Campolo, giant Argentine, and Jim Maloney of Boston.

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Joseph Diehl of Rockford, Ill., overwhelmed Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia, 125 to 36, in the all star pocket billiard tournament today. Favorites Get Home First in Aurora Mud

[OTHER RACE NEWS ON NEXT PAGE.]

The selling platers had their day at Aurora yesterday, when some 58 of them went into action over a muddy track in the seven races. And you may not believe it, but those old platers ran almost strictly to form. That is, the favorites were winning most of the afternoon.

The two best races on the program were captured by odds on choices when Bocaratone won the six furlong dash which was third on the program and Modern Times made a show of his field in the Dixon claiming purse.

Modern Times Wins Easily.

Both won as odds on choices should win. In fact, Modern Times at 9 to 10 in the betting won so easily all those behind him seemed completely outclassed. Finnic, which finished second after running out on both turns, was booed by those who backed him when he was brought back to be unsaddled. The others were never close enough to rate on a boo.

Bocaratone won his race very handily, although he gave his backers all sorts of heart trouble when he let Bourbon Maid make the pace for him through the early stages. Bocaratone was never far back and when they headed into the stretch he began to pick up on Bourbon Maid and had her beaten a furlong from home.

His margin of victory was not very wide but it could have been much greater if Jockey R. Jones would have ridden him out. Bourbon Maid saved second money from the fast finishing Miss Perfection.

Finnic Runs Out.

For Modern Times it was a gallop. Jockey Fage raced him to the front as the barrier lifted. Finnic tried to keep up but ran out on the first turn and ran out again on the last turn. Jockey Berry had no control over him. In the mutuels Bocaratone paid $3.58 and Modern Times paid $3.80.

The steady drizzle of rain which fell all morning and early in the afternoon soaked the track up just enough to make it treacherous. There was a mean looking spill in the second race in which four jockeys were sent spinning headlong into the muddy racing strip. Two horses had fallen and two others had swerved so sharply that their riders fell out of the saddle.

For an instant it looked as if horses and jockeys had been seriously injured. But there was hardly a scratch or a bruise on any of them except Jockey Longdon whose leg was severely hurt. Relline won the face after leading all the way.

Easter Boy Falls First.

The first horse to fall was Easter Boy from the Emil Denemark stable on which there had been a plunge right at post time. He was running sixth when he went down and Princess Evol fell over him. Their riders were Longdon and H. Clements. Then H. Roble fell out of the saddle on By An Inch and an instant later Dontados swarved and Jockey J. Bradshaw went spinning into the mud.

Escaping the jamming which followed the spill Prancing Step, a long shot, was able to finish second but far back of Relline. Thistle Evie struggled home in third place.

Trout Lurk Near Houses of Beavers

BY BOB BECKER.

Argonne National Forest, Wis., May 6.—[Special.]—How the brook trout do like the handiwork of the beaver in these northern Wisconsin streams. When the flattails make their enormous round topped homes out of cuttings and when they drag all kinds of small logs into the streams they play right into the trout's program, because the debris in the stream provides old fontinalis, the kind of cover he likes.

Approach the site of one of these beaver houses, cast close to the house and then draw your fly or spinner past the branches and cuttings, and invariably a strike will result. That was our experience with a whopping big beaver house on the bank of the Brule, where we have been trout fishing. The third cast resulted in an 11 inch fish.

The interesting work of the beavers, with all the engineering projects that these animals carry on when they take over a stream, is bound to be one of the major attractions for visitors to this new national forest. This wilderness playground will be opened as soon as the government has its preliminary work finished and roads are available for tourists. Incidentally, this forest unit is going to interest the trout fishermen, because the development of it into a recreational area will mean that several good trout streams become accessible to the boys who wave the long bamboo rods in the air.

The other night E. W. Tinker, the district forester who is in charge of all national forest units in the lake states, told us as we sat around a big wood fire that this year should see the completion of three of the government's objectives in the forest communication, transportation, and detection. As soon as these projects have been mastered the public will be able to use part of the forest. Then fishermen, campers, and others will come into their own.

Right now the forester is busy building roads so that the 148,000 acres which Uncle Sam eventually will own, can be policed. Roads are necessary first because of fire protection.

Springfield, Ill., May 6.—(AP)—Asserting that his 15 round boxing bill would make possible the Stribling-Schmeling heavyweight championship bout in Chicago, Frank E. Foster [Rep., Harvey] today succeeded in getting his amended boxing commission bill through the house by a vote of 89 to 10.

The bill, which now goes to the senate, raises the legal limit for boxing matches in Illinois from 10 to 15 rounds. When an attempt was made to pass it two weeks ago with an attached emergency clause for salary increases for commissioners, its defeat was indicated before the roll call was complete. As a result Foster asked leave of the house to recall it and make requisite amendments.

As passed today the bill holds salaries at the same figure as provided when the boxing bill was first adopted.

CARNERA FILES ANSWER.

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, giant Italian heavyweight, and his managers, William Duffy and Leon See, filed affidavits in federal court today in answer to the plea of the Madison Square Garden corporation of Illinois for an injunction restraining the Italian from boxing Jack Sharkey at Ebbets' field, Brooklyn, June 16. Hearing on the injunction is scheduled for Friday morning in federal court here.

Carnera, in his reply to the claim that he had been signed by the Garden on Jan. 13, 193-, for a September match with the winner of the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling bout in Cleveland July 3, set up nine defenses.

Bressler Scores from 3d in Seventh.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 6.—(AP)—A timely fly to the outfield by Ernie Lombardi, Brooklyn's big rookie catcher, provided the Robins with the only run of the game today as they defeated the Giants, 1 to 0, and squared the four game series.

Lombardi's wallop came in the seventh, when he pinch hitted for Babe Phelps, and brought Bressler home from third base.

You Can Save 20% on Your Automobile Insurance

Last year this return amounted to $798,030.12. Many members save enough to pay their annual tire bills. The Inter-Insurance Exchange always has returned 20% of the amount paid the "exchange" for insurance coverage.

The "valued form" policy is still another feature that accounts for the growth of the "exchange." In the event of total loss, you are paid the face value of your policy, the amount upon which you have paid insurance. The policy issued covers you anywhere in the United States or Canada.

Other services of the club are: Free mechanical first aid and towing service, home district service, accident prevention work, travel service, and bail bond service.

STOCK VALUES RECEDE NEARLY FIVE BILLIONS

April Shows Severe Market Slump.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Nearly $5,000,000,000 of quoted values were sweated out of stocks listed on the New York Stock exchange last month. It was the most severe decline that has occurred since last November, when the market was headed for the erstwhile low level of mid-December.

Furthermore, the April decline brought the aggregate value of all listed stocks to the lowest total since 1927. As this record was set despite the great increase in listings in the last four years, it is apparent that the average price of stocks now is probably around the figure of 1925 or 1926. In other words, most of the appreciation established during the prolonged bull market that really started with the election of President Coolidge in 1924 has been canceled.

Average Share Value.

The quoted value of all listed shares was $48,469,988,485 on May 1, according to the New York Stock exchange's monthly report. This marked a shrinkage of $4,886,406,010 from the total on April 1. The average value of listed shares on May 1 was $37.23, compared with $41.08 on April 1. There were 1,297 issues aggregating 1,304,-765,685 shares listed on May 1, compared with 1,300 issues aggregating 1,256,492,276 shares on April 1.

Coincident with last month's decline in stock prices, the amount of credit used in speculation also declined markedly. Total borrowings of members of the New York exchange on stock collateral were $1,651,128,124 on May 1, a decline of $257,682,370 during April and establishing the lowest mark since publication of the figures was begun in 1926. These borrowings amounted to 3.40 per cent of the market value of all listed shares on May 1, compared with 3.58 per cent on April 1 and 6.72 per cent on May 1, 1930.

Still lower money rates, particularly in the east, appeared in prospect yesterday. The Boston federal reserve bank reduced its rediscount rate from 3½ to 3 per cent, and the Philadelphia reserve bank cut its rate from 3½ to 3 per cent. The New York bank has maintained a 2 per cent rate since Jan. 9. Of the other nine reserve banks, five are on a 3½ per cent basis and four have a 3 per cent rate.

New Acceptance Rate.

The reductions by the Boston and Philadelphia banks revived rumors that the New York institution may reduce its rate still further today, although its present 2 per cent rate is the lowest in the history of the reserve system. Additional credence was given to the rumor by the fact that the New York bank yesterday reduced the cost of federal reserve credit in the form of bankers' acceptances to a new low level.

The New York bank made its discount rate at which it will buy acceptances from member banks or dealers to 1¼ per cent for 30 day bills and 1½ per cent for maturities thence up to 90 days. This marks a reduction of one-eighth of 1 per cent and is the third reduction in the last two weeks. These reductions are in line with the policy of the reserve authorities to afford credit to business and industry at the lowest cost. Another effect of the change may be to divert bank funds from the short term money market, now clogged with unlendable funds, to investment in bonds, thereby stimulating the bond market. Still another influence may be to check the influx of foreign gold and even divert gold now here to other countries.

Steel Output Drops.

A further slight recession in steel production is noted by the midweek trade reviews. The Iron Age estimates the country's average output this week at 47 per cent of capacity, compared with about 48 per cent a week ago, while "Steel" places operations at 48 per cent, compared with 49-50 per cent last week. Little change in demand is manifested by the principal steel consuming industries.

Pig iron production last month made the fourth consecutive monthly gain on a daily basis, although it still was the smallest for any April since 1921 and with that exception the lowest since 1909. April production was 2,818,339 tons, compared with 2,032,-946 tons in March but the daily average last month was 67,317 tons, compared with 65,556 tons in March.

Controversy Arises Over Waterway Corp. "Profit"

BY SCRUTATOR.

On the heels of the Inland Waterways corporation's annual report for 1930 there has arisen a heated controversy.

The corporation, a government owned concern operating boats in the upper and lower Mississippi and Warrior rivers, had been running in the red. Last year it reported net income of $46,767.

Immediately the railroads took issue. Charts were published interpreting the figures in a different way and adding charges not contained in the corporation's report.

C. D. Morris, representing the western railways, says that instead of earning a net profit of $46,767 last year the barge lines actually cost the government a loss of $1,289,317.

Cites Taxes, Capital Charges.

In arriving at this figure Mr. Morris finds that if the Inland Waterway corporation had paid in taxes 6 cents out of each dollar of its revenues, as do the railroads, its tax bill would have been $367,753. He then adds $958,331, representing a charge of 4 per cent on its capital cost of $23,958,283.

The waterway corporation does not pay taxes, nor does it deduct an amount for interest on invested capital.

"One thing is certain," said Mr. Morris, "if their [the railroads'] service is to be maintained, our government policy must be changed from one of subsidization to one of fairness to all forms of transportation."

With this side of the argument in mind, the writer went to Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, chairman of the Inland Waterways corporation, for his answer.

"The railroads," he said, "are dragging a red herring across the main issue. The chief consideration should not be the welfare of the railroads, but that of the public as a whole. The public is entitled to the cheapest form of transportation that it can get.

Repeats Statement.

"I repeat what I said in my annual report, that to saddle the corporation in its pioneering demonstrative work, which is bringing back water transportation, with a preposterous system of charges which do not exist, which the people have willed should not exist, is to deny to the people the right to reap the benefit of the investment made."

As far as taxes are concerned, Gen. Ashburn expressed the opinion that inasmuch as the government, through the interstate commerce commission, seeks to maintain rail rates high enough to net the railroads a reasonable return on their investment, after taxes, that the public, not the railroads, actually pays the taxes under this system of ratemaking.

"Every form of transportation has been subsidized in its early stages," he said. "The railroads themselves since 1850 have been donated 132,173,-224 acres of land. They are subsidized $40,000,000 annually through Pullman surcharges."

In a discussion of this kind there is always a danger of adding pineapples to bananas and dividing by peaches. It is easy to get a figure, but what does it mean?

Still in Early Stages.

The Inland Waterways corporation is still in its early stages of development. Much will have to be done before it reaches a place where its operations may fairly be compared with those of older carriers. That it should have emerged from the red ink in 1930 is encouraging.

Much of its twenty-three millions of capital investment represents boats that it had to take over from the government after the war, regardless of their suitability to the work they had to do.

Political pressure has forced the corporation to begin operations on waterways as yet uncompleted. Between St. Louis and St. Paul there has been at times only four feet of water in some places, and yet the barge lines were compelled to extent their operations to the twin cities.

Canadian Pacific Ry. Cuts Its Dividend Rate in Half

MONTREAL, Que., May 6.—The Canadian Pacific railway slashed its dividend in half today for the first quarter of 1931. For years this leader of Canadian companies has paid 10 per cent on its $100 par stock. The official announcement follows:

"In view of the fact that prospective earnings of the company cannot be estimated with any degree of accuracy, owing to the unusual conditions now prevailing, directors of the Canadian Pacific railway at a meeting today decided that instead of declaring the usual dividend rate of 2½ per cent they will declare an interim dividend at this time of 1¼ per cent and await results of subsequent months' operations before finally deciding on the rate that will be paid for the full year."

E. W. BEATTY.

Action of the company follows a 10 per cent cut in salaries made a week ago. It was stated at the annual meeting of the company today that the salary cut included the staff from the president down. Earnings of the company dropped in 1930 over $48,000,000 from the 1928 peak.

E. W. Beatty, president, said at the annual meeting that he was hopeful and even confident that conditions in Canada will improve and that in due time will be reflected in earnings of the railroad. Discussing the dividend policy, he said that at the end of the first half last year and on the basis of earnings for that period directors felt that the dividend would be earned during the year and decided at that time to maintain the rate for the full year.

Omits Payment.

Directors of the Pierce Petroleum corporation decided today against further dividend payments at this time. This was done, according to the board, to conserve cash and also to insure the company against having to dispose of any of its holdings of Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation common stock other than by distribution to stockholders as planned when the matter of income and excess profit taxes with the government is settled or disposed of.

An initial cash dividend of 12½ cents a share was declared today on the common stock of the Community Water Service company, in addition to the annual stock dividend of 6 per cent.

Atlas Stores corporation today omitted the quarterly stock dividend of 1¼ per cent on common stock. The regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common was declared, payable June 1 to record May 18.

G. M. C. VOTES DIVIDEND

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Directors of General Motors corporation today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock.

Maintenance of the payment at the regular annual rate of $3 had been expected in Wall street. The company's earnings in the first quarter of this year were equivalent to 61 cents a share on the common. Estimates for the second three months place income substantially above the dividend requirements.

Officers of the corporation were re-elected. Edward R. Stettinius, who for several years has been in charge of industrial relations, was made a vice president. Mr. Stettinius, 30 years old, is a son of the late Edward R. Stettinius, who was a partner in J. P. Morgan & Co.

NAME OTIS & CO. IN TWO $100,000 EQUITY SUITS

Boston, May 6.—(AP)—Two $100,000 suits in equity were brought today in Superior court against members of the brokerage firm of Otis & Co. of Cleveland. The actions were brought by Horace U. Gade and seven other subscribers to the extent of $205,000 in the $7,500,000 "utilities syndicate" which was formed in 1929.

The court is asked to decree that purchase by the members of the brokerage company, as syndicate managers, of stock in the Abitibi Power and Paper company, St. Lawrence corporation and James McLaren company constituted a violation of their fiduciary duties.

The plaintiffs state that the syndicate was formed for the purchase and sale of stocks of public utilities, and charge that those three companies were not public utilities but manufacturers of pulp and newsprint. They also charge that some of the respondents were largely interested in those companies, and they ask that the court order the respondents jointly to make restitution to the syndicate of funds lost through unauthorized purchases and that subscriptions improperly invested be restored to the subscribers.

EXPECT FIGURES TO SHOW RUSSIA LEADS IN WHEAT GROWING

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(AP)—Russia again is the world's leading producer of wheat.

Figures supporting that unsuspected and highly significant statement were expected today to be released about May 20 by the United States department of agriculture.

It was said that Russian production for 1930 likely would be announced at around 1,097,000,000 bushels, which is 246,000,000 bushels more than was produced by the United States—wheat growing champions since Russia left the export picture during the war.

That figure would show Russia to have exceeded her greatest production mark since the days when she dominated the world export trade. That mark, established in 1913, credited Russia with a production of 1,028,000,-000 bushels. It was the first time Russia reached the billion bushel score.

The significance of the situation, market experts said, was that it might present to the international wheat conference in London on May 19 the question of reallocating world wheat areas.

During the war and for several years after, great expansion of wheat acreage occurred in the United States, Canada, Argentina, India, and Australia to make up for the deficiency in Europe. European countries which in 1913 produced 1,301,000,000 bushels of wheat grew scarcely none at all. By 1930 they had their production back to 1,362,000,000 bushels.

The non-European countries, however, did not reduce production as it increased in Europe and in 1930 produced 509,000,000 bushels more than in 1913 when Europe was fairly able to feed herself. Russia then provided almost 40 per cent of all grains consumed on the continent. The result was that non-European countries, now wrestling with overproduction and the worst world market in a century, had a surplus last year of 364,000,000 bushels.

Also Russia has served notice she will continue her policy of expansion and underselling if the latter be necessary to the sale of grain. Her plans call for 70,000,000 acres of wheat this year — 19,000,000 acres more than 1930 domestic planting.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 6.—There wasn't enough business on the stock exchange today to pay for having the roof re-shingled. It was even worse than yesterday, the sales total for the five-hour session barely coming to 1,500,000 shares.

The price movements were nothing to strain weak hearts, even among the volatiles. Quitting time found some of the issues to which the market customarily looks for leadership showing fair-sized gains, others a trifle below their closing levels of yesterday and a third group just about holding their own.

Thus General Electric, General Motors, Consolidated Gas, Eastman Kodak, New York Central, Radio and Standard Oil of New Jersey looked from a fraction to 2 points or so better; United States Steel common, American Can, American Tobacco, United Aircraft and Fox Film were off for corresponding amounts and Johns-Manville, National Biscuit, Rock Island and a number of others of like rating were unchanged.

Higher at Close.

While the course of operations was marked by a high degree of irregularity throughout the day, the predominating tendency during the forenoon was toward lower levels, with the swing upward again in the later dealings. U. S. Steel at one time touched 170¾, the lowest level it has bumped since 1924, but the close found it back to 172¼. American Can also broke through its previous low to hit 105¾, but it likewise was 2 points or so better off when the final gong rang.

There wasn't much in the news to disturb trading sentiment for better or worse. The car loadings report

a Test for Trying Times

In times like now, when shrinking earnings are common, it is wise to scrutinize securities on this basis.

How much could earnings available for bond interest shrink before interest is endangered?

Associated Electric Company 4½'s of 1953 have a third larger earnings for interest as compared with bonds of 14 other leading utility companies.

A table showing the comparison referred to may be had by telephoning BOwling Green 9-3957, or writing for Folder E-39.

COULD YOU WRITE A WILL FOR A STRANGER?

Suppose you were called upon to write the will of Mr. X—a man about whom you knew absolutely nothing. What chance do you think there would be that you would deal justly with his family?

The State is confronted with this same problem. If you leave no will the State must say how your estate shall be divided. So the State does the best it can, laying down certain rigid laws. These laws cannot fit everyone's needs—probably do not meet your requirements.

Decide for yourself! Make a will; keep it up-to-date by reviewing it at least once each year. These are matters both of right and obligation.

It is not our province to put your will in legal form—that is a job for your attorney. But our Trust officers will gladly assist you and your attorney in working out the best solution for your estate problems.

EASIER PRICES FEATURE DULL DAY IN CHICAGO

North American Car Co. Reports Income.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The dullest trading day in several months on the Chicago exchange yesterday was marked by a slightly easier trend in prices. The trend was not significant, however, and bore little relation to stock movements on the New York exchange, where two of the leading pivotals showed pronounced weakness and the main body of shares made some improvement.

Professional traders here were showing unusual caution in making commitments. The various interpretations put on the Mellon address made for uncertainty and consequent trimming of activities on the part of speculators. Some brokers advised customers that the Mellon statement was distinctly bearish, but this interpretation was not generally accepted.

There were no developments affecting shares traded in here that could be expected to have an appreciable market influence. North American Car corporation reported net income for the first quarter of $124,722, which was equivalent to 51 cents a share on the common stock outstanding. In the corresponding period last year the company had net profits of $208,592, or $1.07 a share on its common stock.

President Erwin R. Brigham said in connection with the report that the January-February lull in the company's business was over and some foreign orders were now being received.

The arrangements for a temporary loan to Associated Apparel Industry by banking interests have not been completed, but it is expected final decision will be reached shortly. It is understood that plans are being discussed for permanent financing to the extent of $2,000,000 or more.

Heavy Bond Dealing.

Comparatively heavy trading in Insull Utility debentures featured the dealing in the bond list. The issue varied little in price closing up a fraction to 53½. The par value of bonds traded totaled $63,000, of which $60,000 represented transactions in the Insull security.

Exchange governors yesterday approved reductions in the listing of three companies. The firms are the Chicago Artificial Ice company, Great Lakes Utilities corporation, and the 208 South La Salle Street Building corporation. Additional shares of the Middle West Utilities company, the Chicago Railways company, and the Midland United company were approved for listing.

PICK FLAWS IN SUGGESTIONS OF MELVIN TRAYLOR

Bankers and Brokers Offer Other Opinions.

The three suggestions advanced by Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank of Chicago, for reforming the security markets of the country received little approval along Wall and La Salle streets yesterday.

On the question of term settlements, which Mr. Traylor advocated as opposed to the present method of daily settlements, many Chicago and New York bankers and brokers are of the opinion that in a market so speculatively inclined as the American securities markets, term settlements would prove a dangerous innovation. The necessity for daily settling of accounts, it was said, offers a check against overcommitments.

See Temptation.

If settlements had only to be made fortnightly, as is the London system, the temptation would be great for speculators to take a heavy position in the hope of being able to turn a profit before the settlement day.

Another objection advanced against term settlements was that the volume of transactions in this market was so great that the burden of settling two weeks' transactions on one day would be insuperable.

Still another objection was that abolition of daily settlements would mean abolition of the call money market, depriving banks of an outlet for their short term funds, which has been regarded by American banks as an important means of maintaining secondary reserves in a highly liquid form. It was questioned whether a sufficient demand for call money against bankers' bills exists to take care of the needs of the banks.

Meets Better Support.

Mr. Traylor's suggestion that margin transactions of less than $10,000 amount be prohibited met with better support than his other proposals; but in this case, too, the majority disagreed with him. One leading banker said the question of size was not the important consideration in marginal trading, but the character of the trader. A man with millions, he said, was just as apt to come to grief as the small trader. In any case, he said, the small man ought not to be arbitrarily deprived of speculative privileges accorded the wealthy man.

Mr. Traylor's suggestion that the small trader seek his credit accommodations elsewhere than in a broker's office was interpreted to mean that small marginal traders should carry their accounts with their banks. This idea was not relished by the majority of bankers, who said that they did not desire to undertake that type of business in any greater degree than they were forced to.

Favor Floor Trading.

The proposal to abolish floor trading on the stock exchange met with almost universal condemnation from bankers. The function of the floor trader, it was pointed out, is to provide a ready and elastic market for securities. It is not always possible, it was said, to find an immediate genuine purchaser for a considerable amount of stock when a bona fide holder wants to sell. The activity of floor traders, however, makes it possible for the market to absorb such offerings and pass them out again when the ultimate buyer appears. Without floor trading, bankers said, the security market would lost much of its present liquidity.

Those bankers who approved the suggestion said that a system of "jobbers" such as has grown up in the London market would have to be substituted if the floor trader were abolished.

RUSH OF SHORTS TO COVER BOOSTS PRICE OF CORN

Wheat Held Within Narrow Range; Eases Up.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A combination of factors favorable for a higher level of prices resulted yesterday in a stampede on the part of shorts in corn to cover, with the result that the market advanced sharply, with the May in the lead. liquidation in the nearby future having apparently been finished late in April. Selling against offers checked the bulge for a time, but the surplus in the pit was finally absorbed and the close was within a fraction of the top, with net gains of 1¼@2¼c.

May finished at 58½c, or 1½c under the July, compared with 3c under when announcement was made that carlots on track could be delivered on future contracts. September was 59¼@59¼c, or ⅞c under July, compared with even at the close on Tuesday, while December finished at 52⅝@53c.

Wet weather over the greater part of the belt, which will delay planting and the movement, with the forecast for light to heavy frost over night and shipping sales of 215,000 bu, the largest in some time, were factors in starting the buying movement.

More Interest in Corn.

While the trade feels that it is much too early to talk about delayed planting, at the same time the persistent rains which have occurred of late over part of the belt have created a little apprehension. The government weekly weather crop report said planting had made progress in the central and eastern portions of the belt, but in the west and southwest planting was interrupted by rain and wet soil and germination was slow, with considerable complaints of poor stands because of unfavorable soil conditions. In Kansas 10 to 75 per cent of the planting has been completed.

Dull Day in Wheat.

Activity in corn overshadowed the wheat market and prices held within a range of ⅝c for the day, with the finish ⅛@¼c higher on the new crop months, while old May was ⅝c higher, short covering lifting the latter to 57⅛c at the last, while July was 63⅝@63⅛c; September, 63@63¼c, and December, 66⅛c. There was some selling of wheat against purchases of corn, but the aggregate trade in the former was not large at any time. Official reports showed no moisture in Alberta or Saskatchewan and practically no precipitation in the American northwest, with cut worms causing some damage this side of the line and reported as active in central and southern Saskatchewan.

Slowness in the foreign demand checked bullish operations in the Winnipeg wheat market, but it closed ⅛@¼c higher, with July at 63⅝c, or a fraction over Chicago.

Late reports said that 750,000 bu of Canadian wheat had been sold at Winnipeg for export. Duluth sold 350,000 bu of rye to come to Chicago.

Liverpool finished ⅝d lower, with July at 63¼d. Offerings from Russia have a depressing effect and offset a reduction of around 63½c per bu on the import duty into Germany between May 15 and June 15.

May Oats Tight.

Buying of May and selling of July oats by a house with northwestern interest narrowed the spread from ⅝c at the finish on Tuesday to ⅛@⅜c yesterday, with the finish ⅛@⅜c higher, May being 27⅜c; July, 28⅛@28¼c; September, 28⅝@28½c, and December, 30⅝@30¾c. Cash interests took the May toward the last, with shipping sales finally estimated at 142,000 bu. Forecast for frost over the greater part of the belt attracted some attention.

A more friendly feeling toward the buying side of rye was in evidence and the close was 1@1¼c higher, with May 34⅝c; July, 37⅝c, and September, 39c.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat traders are basing their action on weather conditions in the American and Canadian northwest. Any indication of rains is inducing unloading by longs and pressure from the bears, while prospects of continued dry weather brings reinstatement of lines by previous holders and covering by shorts causing bulges and making a nervous, uncertain market. There are more traders, however, favoring buying than there were recently. Pit traders make the point that both old and new style May wheat is becoming more congested daily and responds to efforts on the part of shorts to get in. Old May is deliverable on track all this month, while new style can be delivered only the last three days of the month.

Corn is becoming more attractive to buyers, who take advantage of weak spots. There is no pressure from the country, the industrial and shipping demand is taking care of the receipts, and unfavorable weather is retarding planting in some of the best sections of the west. The technical position, however, is said to have been somewhat weakened by the covering of a large line by a local trader, who also is a large privilege seller.

LARD UP WITH HOGS

Lard futures were stronger on light offerings and scattered buying yesterday. A fair amount of changing from May to distant futures were on but trade was not large nor futures closed 5¼ to 5c higher. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 3d lower, the latter on September. Export clearances were 171,000 lbs. of lard and 32,500 lbs. of bacon. Cash trade was fair. Speculative business in dry salted clear bellies was light, May being unchanged and July 2½c higher. Prices follow:

WEEKLY CROP REPORT

"Winter wheat is in good condition throughout the entire belt," says the government weekly weather crop report. "In Kansas it is mostly jointed while some is coming into boot in the southeastern part. Progress varies from fair to excellent in southwestern part and crop is in boot in Oklahoma. Some reseeding is necessary in parts of the northwest, but in more western parts rapid growth is noted, although more moisture is needed. Spring wheat seeding is practically completed, but more moisture is needed to germinate the crop. Corn planting has made good progress in the central and eastern parts of the belt, but in the west and southwest has been interrupted by rains, and wet soil, with warmer weather needed. Oats are doing well in most sections."

FOREIGN CROP NEWS

Although weather in Europe is generally favorable for growing crops, it is too dry in parts of North Africa, according to Broomhall. Winter wheat abandonment in Germany, Denmark, Sweden, and France has been greater than last season. Seeding of spring wheat is well advanced, but rains would be beneficial this month. Corn is being planted in the Balkan countries and Argentina. Hungary also reports that farmers are busy seeding corn in the early sections and that the seed bed is favorable.

NAME WILHARTZ ATTORNEY FOR REALTY BOARD

Realtors' Body Appoints New Counsel.

BY AL CHASE.

William Wilhartz, senior member of the law firm of Ringer, Wilhartz & Hirsch, has been appointed general counsel of the Chicago Real Estate board by the directors of that organization. He succeeds John Lyle Vette of Herrick, Vette & Peregrine, who has been attorney for the realtors for several years. Mr. Wilhartz is widely known as an attorney in real estate and corporation law.

Among his activities in the field of real estate is a uniform lease for use in the renting of stores which he recently redrafted. This document is now in the hands of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and is expected to be used as a standard throughout the country.

As a member of the Chicago Real Estate board, Mr. Wilhartz is engaged with the committee on bylaws in the revision of the rules of the board. He also is a member of the committee on foreclosure and receivership. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan. He lives at the Shoreland hotel.

Cheap Houses Most Popular.

Actual home buying now going on throughout the country shows a strong preference for houses whose building cost is under the $5,000 mark. A price ranging from $6,000 to $6,900 for the home, land, and building together, is proving the one right now most popular. This is indicated by a study which has just been made by the National Association of Real Estate Boards of the most recent 10,108 home sales made by members of its brokers' division. The reports of sales were from 100 firms in seventy-six cities in twenty-six states and one Canadian province.

Work is under way on a $500,000 compressor house project by the Peoples Gas Gas Light and Coke company at 9719 Baltimore avenue, from plans by R. Schenck, architect for the company. The permit calls for a $100,000 building and the equipment will amount to $400,000. The Robert Black company has the contract.

North Shore Deals.

Frederick B. Thomas & Co. report sales in Winnetka, Glencoe, and Wilmette totaling $200,000. Nellie B. Buckingham bought the brick residence at 1151 Laurel avenue, Hubbard Woods, from Irving D. Fish. The property was held at $45,000. Calvin F. Selfridge bought the eight room house at 1133 Pine street, Winnetka, from Charles E. Maxwell Jr. The property was held at $47,500. Peter Schutter Jr. purchased the nine room residence at 637 Drexel avenue, Glencoe, held at $29,500. The same firm reports having closed residential leases since Jan 1. totaling $70,000.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 6,000; hogs, 18,000; sheep, 14,000.

The hog market was extremely erratic on small receipts yesterday, losing most of the advance after a 25c higher opening. Prices soared to the highest point of the week during the first hour of trading, but most local interests refused to follow at the higher list of quotations established by yard traders and shippers at the open ing.

Most of the 5,000 left at the close were being held off the market in hopes of better demand later in the week. Only 12,000 were unloaded at Chicago yesterday, equaling the smallest Wednesday total this year. The eleven market total at 59,000 showed a decrease of 31,000 head, or 35 per cent, compared with the previous Wednesday's total and was below any corresponding day in recent years.

Today's Hogs Bid $7.50.

Despite the reaction in the cash trade yesterday there were buyers for today's lightweights at $7.50 on the "to arrive" market. Bids were made at that price, but no offers were made. Trading in hog futures slowed down considerably. May light were offered at $7.65 and bid $7.50, while June light were offered at $8.00 and bid $7.50. Most offers and bids for other contracts were far apart. Lightweights for September delivery carried bids of $7.50, but the lowest offer stopped at $8.25.

The largest Wednesday cattle receipts for the year forced prices down again yesterday. Hundreds of cattle went into the afternoon session and some were reported carried over for today, due to unsatisfactory bids. Arrivals totaled 13,000.

Last week's big slaughter, the biggest of the year, has swamped the wholesale market, with beef and local packers in no hurry to take on more cattle except at a sharp reduction in prices. Choice 1,400 lb steers topped the list at $9.25, the bulk going at $6.75@7.75, against $7.00@8.75 last Wednesday.

Lambs Reach $10.25.

A bulge of 15@25c in the lamb market yesterday carried the peak for wool lambs to $10.25, a new high for the year, which goes back to last August for a higher price. However, prevailing quotations are still about $1.00 below a year ago at this time. Native spring lambs were sold at $12.00@12.25 yesterday, while stock from California brought $11.00@11.25.

Freshly shorn lambs sold at $8.75 @9.25. Aged sheep and yearlings were unchanged. Chicago handled more than an average supply for Wednesday, while other points reported substantial decreases. The total at seven leading markets, including Chicago, was smallest for Wednesday in four weeks. The Chicago total at 17,000 was largest in 12 weeks for Wednesday.

TORONTO, May 6.—(AP)—President C. O. Stillman of the Imperial Oil Co., Ltd., told stockholders at the annual meeting today that the company's decreased earnings in 1930 were due to world-wide conditions and continued overproduction of crude, which drastically reduced prices and depreciated inventories.

Total earnings, including income from investments, amounted to $19,020,360 after tax deductions, equal to 71 cents a share, against $26,350,309, equal to 99 cents a share in 1929.

Announcing that the company intends to spend a large sum of money this year for improvements and expansion, Mr. Stillman added:

"This policy is based upon the reasoned belief that the period of readjustment in which we now are is the prelude to an era of normal prosperity based upon economically sound and enduring foundations."
